PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which he must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—IRISH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the sender's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle charges after the question of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangement the purchaser will be liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

In the accompanying drawing (which is true to scale) notice the relative size of the hand and that of the book. From this you will be able to judge the size of this superb volume. Not only is it the largest volume ever published upon Canaries and the only exhaustive treatise upon these lovely creatures, but it is written by the ablest authorities—men who have devoted a lifetime to the study of their habits, and who have been exhibitors, first prize winners, and judges at the principal shows for many years. The Editor of this volume and the principal contributor is Claude St. John, perhaps the best authority on Canaries in the world, and among the other well-known contributors are those well-known judges, C. A. House and G. E. Weston.

This is the only large really comprehensive Book solely on Canaries ever compiled. Experts tell you about :

1. Mating.
2. Nesting Appliances.
3. The Quality of Eggs.
4. Hatching.
5. Aviaries.
6. Incubation.
7. Breeding for Markings.
8. Breeding Stock Birds.
9. Show Birds.
10. How to Exhibit.
11. How to Judge.
12. Preventing Diseases.
13. Training Birds.
14. Crossing.
15. Technical Points of a Bird.
16. Best Markings.
17. Modern Exhibition Crest.
18. Travelling Cases.

"The Red Feed"

The greatest colouring food in the world. This wonderful Pepper cannot be excelled, and with Hot Natal and another ingredient, which not only gives brilliant colour, but that beautiful sheen which is so delightful in one's birds, the Red Feed must become distinguished. A change from one Pepper to another in anticipation of finding "the ideal" is well worth making. A trial will convince you that the change is for the better. No "perhaps" about this feed; it is absolutely IT. Sold in tins, 2/6 and 4/9: Judge Silk, The Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

"PHOSTO"

Don't begin moulting without "Phosto." Don't give your birds tonics and medicines which do no good; give them "Phosto," which will build up the whole system, and enable them to stand the strain of moulting. Don't wait until your birds show signs of softness, start at once to build them up. "Phosto" is a great food, which has now become famous. Give a little with the colour food. A shilling may save you pounds. Don't forget, "Phosto" improves size, and don't forget the name: Judge Silk, The Norwich Specialist, Whitstable. (768)

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING
And British Bird Champion

I deposited £10 to sing any Linnet in the world from £10 to £100 a side for quality singing, and no one in England covered my deposit after waiting 2 months. If anyone disputes my title as British Bird Champion, I am willing to sing them for £25 a side. Linnets from the same place as the Champion Linnet of the World. They make the gamest birds ever carried to a contest; they can run like German Canaries, for voice they have no equal. Now, to give every working man a chance, they are 1/-, 1/6, and a few gems, with beautiful quality notes, 2/6; one of these birds won 1st prize in the all-England contest at Castleford on Whit Monday, beating 74 of the best birds. Linnets taught by the Champion Linnet of the World will sing anywhere; right for catching with, and new cage and my book of secrets, 3/6, 4/6, and some toppers 5/-; they are all champions. Splendid cock Hawfinches, very large birds, 5/-; a few for the bench, perfect in bib, sure prize winners, 10/6; splendid young Seifert Rollers, singing grand, with beautiful quality notes, taught by my champion Canary, winner of 50 1st prizes, 4/6; a few real toppers, 5/6; a few hand-reared Larks, singing at full voice, indoors and out, 3/6 and 4/6; they are toppers. Everybody's welcome to hear my birds sing and see what they are buying; only honest dealing done with me. Plenty in stock. No waiting; post-card before birds. I am busy training birds for my customers.—Harry Allen, British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds. (771)

ENJOYABLE RAMBLE AT LEITH.

Twelve members and a few friends rambled to Raith Estate, Kirkcaldy, June 14 (permission having been kindly granted by R. C. Munro-Ferguson, Esq., M.P. for Leith Burghs). The day being one of glorious sunshine everyone looked forward to a grand time in the woods. The first incident of note on the journey was the loss of a collar stud by the heavy man of the party, which necessitated divesting himself of the most of his clothing before the elusive stud was "collared" again, and once more he wore the "smile that won't come off." While passing over that monument of engineering skill, the Forth Bridge, a grand view of the Forth was got. Kirkcaldy was soon reached, when it was noticed that the sec. took out a current copy of CAGE BIRDS and held it in a very conspicuous position. It was the signal for Mr. Lister (who had very kindly agreed to conduct us) to recognise the party, as we were not known to him. The estate is a very extensive one, being well wooded, and an ideal place to spend a day in quest of wild bird Life. We had not gone very far up the avenue when right in front of us was a Mavis feeding her young on the roadway. A little further on a lovely Chaffinch was perched high up, singing merrily and uttering his familiar "pink, pink"; his size and breast were making the eyes of the British fanciers dazzle with envy. Mr. D. Sayer had been foraging on his own, and discovered a nest containing four small eggs of a brown or cinnamon colour, which was thought to be the Sedge Wadbler's, as they are known to build in very exposed places. A nest was espied between two branches high up, and one of our number climbed up to examine, but found it empty. A Mavis nest was next found with three young about a week old, which were ring. One of the party next created a great commotion on discovering a lot of young water hens swimming about in the water (evidently he had never seen such a sight before). Another member, in his anxiety to see them, slipped almost knee-deep into the water, which no doubt helped to cool his burning feet. On going further up the water's side a Chaffinch's nest was found containing two eggs. Near by was a Greenfinch's nest with two eggs, also a Mavis' with a clutch of four well advanced in incubation. At this point Mr. Lister blew his whistle for the party to retrace their steps, as time was getting on. The return journey was made along the side of the beautiful lake, where many birds were disporting themselves. Another nest between the forked branches of a tree was discovered containing six eggs of the same brownish colour as previously found, and to discover what bird they belonged to, it was decided to conceal ourselves and watch the return of the hen to the nest. It was proved that we were correct in saying they belonged to the Sedge Warbler. The last nest found was a Greenfinch's with six eggs. Taken all over, nests were not so numerous as we expected, especially with young, but no doubt it was owing to being too late for the first nests and too early for the second hatchings. Tracks were at this time made for the station to catch the 7.35 for Edinburgh, but before leaving a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Lister for his kindness in conducting us round the estate. Mr. Lister said it gave him great pleasure to do so, and he hoped that the members had thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Auld Reekie was soon reached, and before separating the company spent a pleasant hour with song and story, and they all hoped when another year came round that the members would turn out in much larger numbers. Twelve out of a membership of 50 was not very satisfactory, and especially the British bird fanciers, for whom the ramble is principally got up. —G. W. Brown, Sec.

HOW TO SEX YOUNG CANARIES.

Our recent competition brings details of a host of interesting methods.

We recently offered a prize of 5s. for the best answer, written on the back of a postcard, to this question: "What is the best and easiest method of distinguishing young cock Canaries from young hens?" We may say that in setting this conundrum before our readers, we find that we have at the same time set up a far from easy puzzle for ourselves—viz., to select the winning reply. However, the situation has had to be faced, and we have decided to award the prize to Mr. R. Yates, 63, South Parade, Anlaby Road, Hull.

We should like to make it clear, however, that we think that valuable points appear in most of the answers given below, and that Canary breeders will obtain a reliable guide to the sexing of their young birds by taking the replies as a whole and noting the points made by the various writers. Several competitors send the method of deciding by the size of the exterior opening of the ear, and a well-known Norwich Plainhead exhibitor, Mr. J. H. Davis, of Leicester, describes an equally curious solution of the problem.

Some Humorous Replies.

Quite a number of readers have approached the matter in a humorous vein, and most of these have favoured us with replies based on the well-known formula: "If he goes to sleep on the left leg, it is a cock, but if she goes to sleep on the right leg, it is a hen." See? It is more than a little difficult, in fact, to decide whether some of the replies are serious or otherwise; we leave it to readers to say. Some of the best of the "funny" ones are:

Wait and see.—J. Bevan (Ipswich).

When young and in the nest the males have their heads turned to the right, whilst females are quite the opposite.—S. Roberts (Garth).

I hold a piece of lump sugar up to the wires of cage, and if she comes up and pecks it, it is a hen, but if he comes up and pecks it, it is a cock.—F. Hughes (Henley).

Take the legs in the right hand and the beak in the left, and watch the tail: if a cock the tail will turn down, if a hen it will turn up.—R. Scase (Camberwell).

[We believe this method is sometimes seriously put forward.—Editor.]

American's Novel Method.

Since the competition closed, the following novel reply has been sent in from an American fancier:—The earliest time about which I tell the cocks from the hens is when I change the young into a clean nest—at, say, eight days old. The breast-bone of the male is one-eighth inch longer than that of the female. This was how I knew I had two cocks and one hen in the nest of Rollers I wrote about a few weeks back, when mentioning the "Eggs and Bacon" diet.—David O'Brien (San Francisco).

The Ear Said to be a Guide.

Young cock Canaries have larger ear-holes than young hens.—Miss M. Spedding (Frizington).

The most sure and easy method, in my opinion, is to wait and hear them sing.—J. Goddard (Dalston).

When about 6 to 8 weeks old watch them as they sleep in the day time; you will see the throats of the cocks quiver and hear a faint twittering.—A. Smith (Aylesbury).

When the young birds begin to feather, the young cocks generally show a little tuft of feathers in the ears. I find this very successful; nine times out of ten I find I am right.—J. H. Davis (Leicester).

When the youngsters are in the flight cages, get a bottle and rub a cork backwards and forwards on it. You will soon solve the problem then, for the cock birds will begin to "sing" against the noise produced by the cork.—T. Emerson (Henley).

Always in the Front Row!

When in the nest pick out the birds with big heads and the boldest eyes. In a full nest these birds most always sit on the top. These are the cocks; mark them.—J. Golsby (Hugglescote).

The best time to sex young Canaries is when the birds are from 6 to 8 weeks old, at which time the cocks begin to assert themselves by "singing," and by their apparently overbearing manner, as against the hens, which, as a rule, are quiet in manner and have only a simple "tweet." If any doubt should exist further evidence may be obtained by closely observing the vent when the birds are changing their nest feathers, as the cocks have some 4 or 5 feathers which stand out prominently, but these are not to be seen on the hens. I have followed this system for some time, and close upon 100 per cent. correct has been the result.—R. Yates (Hull).

I choose the front bird in the nest. If one cock and two hens, cock in front, two hens behind. If two cocks and two hens, two cocks in front and two hens behind.—J. Thomas (Port Talbot).

Young cock Canaries, when they start to "chitter," expand the throat; another point is, the young cock's tail is straight, and the hen's is inclined to turn up.—W. Fleming (Cleator).

Cocks are generally bolder in appearance than hens, with the eye set a little higher in the head. They are also richer in colour, and, if studied, you will find a prominence at the vent not found in hens.—Jas. Calderwood (Kilmarnock).

The Feathers Under the Tail.

The feathers under the roots of the tail feathers I always find much longer in the tails of the cock birds than they are in the hens; also I find the cocks bolder birds possessing larger heads and fuller eyes.—Percy Uren (Hayle).

Cock birds are much quicker in their movements, more bold and defiant, and hop about the cage in a more commanding and fearless manner, the chirp being much clearer and ringing. When in the nest the male birds always stand head and shoulders above the hens, being stronger, and often get more than their share of food.—W. H. Brotherton (York).

Young cocks have a bolder head, with a larger, bolder-looking eye, set slightly higher in the head, located just above the line of the mouth, whereas a hen is more shy, not so bold looking, and with a smaller eye, set lower in the head, rarely clear of the line of the mouth. There are exceptions, of course, both ways, but this is a general guide.—Wm. Coward (Barrow-in-Furness).

The Cocks Will Look Vexed,

A way which seldom fails is to catch the bird and hold it in the hand a few seconds, then put it in the cage again. If a cock, he will expand his chest for all he is worth and appear very vexed; if a hen, she will not do this. I have found this the best way to be sure of the sex, after 20 years' experience.—M. Dawson (Peterborough).

I think the best and easiest way is by the colour and boldness in appearance when they come out of the nest. The cock birds are richer in colour than the hens and bolder in appearance. Whether they are bred from two yellows, two buffs, or yellow and buff, this I have always found to be successful with me.—Robert Cairncross (Edinburgh).

Watch them when they are singing; you will notice the cock bird's throat heaving with a pulse-like motion, which is scarcely seen with the hen.—H. Hawkins (St. George's, E.).

Several held over until next week.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE

Notes by the Secretary are unavoidably held over this week.

500 Sheets, Five Shillings and sixpence.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
Secretary CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

Twitterings.

We hear from Mr. J. R. Colville, hon. sec., that Mr. A. Hirst, Accrington, will judge the annual members' show of the Ashton-under-Lyne O.S.

Mr. T. Barton, hon. sec., writes that the date of Preston O.S. open show has been altered to Nov. 21 and 22, so as not to clash with Nottingham.

Mr. J. T. Cheetham, sec. Smallbridge C.B.S., writes that the second Nest Feather Show will be held in St. John's Schoolroom, July 12. Mr. Schofield, Heywood, will judge.

Allow me to thank Mr. J. Tomlinson for his article "The Master Singer." Being a beginner with the Roller Canary, I have derived much benefit from it.—A. Downes (Risca).

Mr. A. Berry, 7, Ebenezer St., Glossop, writes that he has been appointed sec. of the Glossop, Hadfield C.B.S., and that all business correspondence should be addressed accordingly.

We have secured the services of the following judges at our annual show, Oct. 25, writes Mr. R. Rennie, sec. Falkirk C.B.S.: Norwich, Mr. J. Holmes; Borders and Crests, Mr. R. Lambie; Bri. and For., Mr. J. Steel.

At our meeting on Saturday last, writes Mr. H. Briggs, sec. Ushaw Moor Workmen's Club C.B.S., it was decided that we let our Nest Feather Show fall through this year owing to the bad breeding season our members have had.

We hear that the secretary of the Irvine and Dist. C.B.S. (Mr. H. B. Young) is likely to resign his post, as he feels that owing to lack of time he is unable to give the attention to the work of the society which he considers necessary to its success.

We are holding our first Feather Show on July 12th, writes Mr. E. Jameson, hon. sec. Derwent Valley C.B.S. Mr. T. Dixon, Bedlington, will judge. Owing to our financial position we are not having an open show this year, but a members' show on October 25th.

Mr. J. P. Carr, hon. sec., National British Bird and Mule Club, 45, Overdale Road, S. Ealing, W., asks us to notify that applications for the patronage of the Club must be in by 26 July, giving classification and names of judges, or they cannot be dealt with this season.

I noticed the letter from Mr. H. Hill respecting show staging, writes Mr. H. Orford, 105, Cromwell Road, Patricroft, Manchester, and feel confident I could give satisfaction. I should be pleased to receive inquiries from any show secretaries who may be in want of show staging.

The Y.B. Show of the Clapham and Dis. C.B.A. is being held to-day, July 12, at "The Clock House," Clapham Park Road. There are 13 classes for young Canaries, and two for young Hybrids. In the British section there are 14 classes, and Foreign birds have one class.

Mr. C. W. Law, hon. sec., London and Provincial O.S., writes that a Young Bird Show and Table Show of British Birds and Mules will be held July 17th, at 8 p.m., at The Raglan, Aldersgate Street. All friends and fanciers welcome. Admission free. Specials of 30s. in money, and several L. and P.O.S. silver and bronze medals.

I have been appointed secretary of the Sunderland C.B.A., writes Mr. John Peacock (6, Whitburn Terrace, Fulwell Sunderland), and all matters concerning the affairs of the club should be sent to me. It is very encouraging to, and a great help to, a secretary, in keeping the interest of the members on the doings of their respective Clubs, to have such a paper as Cage Birds.

To Society Secretaries, Advertisers and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION, or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used.

The Keighley and Dist. C.B.S. are not holding an open show this coming season, we are informed.

Mr. W. Cumming, hon sec., Forres and Northern O.A., writes that Mr. J. Strachan will judge the annual show, Dec. 3.

Mr. H. Myers, sec., writes that the annual ramble of the Queensbury C.B.S. will take place July 20, leaving Granby Hotel at 12.30 by car to Shipley Glen, then over the moor to Eldwick, and return by Bingley. Friends cordially invited.

We learn from Mr. T. Dawn, the genial chairman of the Sheffield O.S., that he has been successful in making arrangements for the ramble via Haselhead and Lampett on Sunday next, July 13th. This of itself is a guarantee of success (see Club Notice for particulars).

It was a very generous act, writes a correspondent, on the part of Dr. W. Craig, the smiling treasurer of the Sheffield O.S., to hand over the three specials won by him in the Yorkshire section at the Y.B. show to the runners-up, which was much appreciated by those gentlemen.

I have received as specials for the Southern Border F.C., writes Mr. F. Moore, hon. sec., a diploma for best champion bird and diploma for best novice in each show, presented by Mr. W. Plank. These diplomas are very beautifully designed, and are well worth winning.

OBITUARY.

Dr. P. L. Sclater.

Dr. Philip L. Sclater, who has died in his 85th year, may be said to have paved the way for Darwin and Wallace by his work on the geographical distribution of animals. He was a great naturalist, and was the practical founder of the British Ornithologists' Union. Dr. Sclater had been a Fellow of the Zoological Society of London since 1850, and was its secretary from 1859 to 1902. One of his sons is Mr. W. L. Sclater, also a distinguished zoologist.

We hear that Mr. F. Collins, Camborne, has been engaged to judge the Mule, Hybrid and British section at Exeter open show, Nov. 15.

Mr. J. Griffiths, sec., Clay Cross C.B.S., asks us to announce that fanciers may be elected members on the day of the show, and will be able to compete.

I was agreeably surprised when receiving Cage Birds to find my winning Buff and myself illustrated on front page, many thanks for same and success to Cage Birds.—W. Salter, Hackney.

We hear that there is every prospect of the entry at the young bird show of the North London C.B.A. being a record one. It is held to-day (July 12); note advertisement.

Societies wishing for the patronage of the Southern Border Fancy Club, writes Mr. F. Moore, hon. sec., 49, Kelmscott Road, Clapham Junction, London, S.W., should apply before July 23. Several applications have been received, but still open to receive few more before allotting patronage on July 24th. Classification required, four champion, two novice.

I was surprised and pleased to see the picture of my champion Yellow Wagtail on the front page of the leading bird journal, Cage Birds. It has always been my ambition to moult and exhibit a Softbill to win at the Palace. This bird has never been beaten by one of its own species. I must thank your artist for his splendid work. May Cage Birds always prosper.—F. Collins.

Will societies wanting patronage of the Yorks and Lancs. B.B. and M. Club please apply at once, writes Mr. T. H. Inman, 43, Derby Road, Thornbury, Bradford, as we want to get all fixed up. We have already granted patronage to Leeds, Oct 10-11; Halifax, Oct. 17-18; Manchester and N. Counties, Oct. 24-25; Sheffield, Nov. 7-8; Preston O.S., Nov. 21-22; Bradford Nat., Dec. 5-6-8; Malton, Dec. 26; Doncaster, Jan. 10.

The July issue of "British Birds" (Messrs. Witherby and Co., 326, High Holborn) is especially interesting. The articles are "The Sense of Smell in the Grey Lag-Goose," by Misses Mary G. S. Best and Maud D. Haviland, illustrated by clever photographs by Miss Best, and a most entertaining account of a colony of Tree Sparrows on Inishtrahull Island, by Professor C. J. Patten. The usual "Notes" contain many items of great interest.

Schedules of members' young stock show, fixed for July 30, have been sent to all members, writes Mr. F. W. Capell, hon. sec. Croydon F.A., 121, Brighton Rd., Croydon. Should any have miscarried will members write at once. Classes have been provided for cage birds, children's pets, and other stock. The show will be open from 4 to 9.30. Shall be glad to supply any information regarding the association to any fanciers residing within 12 miles of Croydon. The 4th annual show has been fixed for Nov. 5.

Several letters were sent to my Sheffield address last week, writes Mr. Fred Allen, so will you please mention again that all communications now should be sent to 156, Porter Street, Hull.

The Ardwick and Manchester C.B.S. hold their Nest Feather Show, on July 12, at the St. Thomas' School, Ardwick, writes Mr. J. Spencer, hon. sec. This being the first fixture at the new headquarters I should like to point out that the show will be held in the schoolroom in Thomas Street, the far side of the clock looking from Ardwick Green Park. Special meeting of members at 6.

Swallow's Nest in Bedroom.

In one of my spare bedrooms swallows have built their nest and laid eggs, and have now three young birds. It's quite a pretty sight to see the mother bird feed her young. The window is always left open for her writes Mr. F. Wentford (Ship Inn, South Walsham) on June 29th, to the "Eastern Daily Press."

Cuckoo's Egg in Ring Ousel's Nest.

A Ring Ousel's nest was found in a bank in Airedale (Yorks), on June 10th, containing three of the bird's own eggs, and also that of a Cuckoo. As the Ring Ousel usually lays four eggs, and clutches of five are occasionally met with, the Cuckoo had probably ejected one to make room for her own contribution.

Sheffield's Red Letter Days.

Nov. 7 and 8, 1913, are to be red letter days in Sheffield, we hear. The Sheffield O.S. have engaged the largest room in the Cutler's Hall, at enormous expense, for their annual show, and the schedule when issued will close upon "lick creation." All prize-money will be guaranteed by two well-known stalwarts in Messrs. Thos. Dawn (chairman), and Dr. Craig (treasurer). Enterprise such as this deserves the greatest of success.

The Sparrows' Cool Cheek.

A few weeks back, says a writer in the "Western Mail," I was walking through the zoological gardens in Lisbon and came to a very large aviary, in which were confined numerous Eagles, Vultures, Buzzards, and other birds of prey. Against the wires of the aviary, and quite within reach of some of the smaller occupants, a pair of Sparrows had built their nest, and were industriously cultivating a family. For cool cheek I think that takes some beating.

150 Canaries at a Wedding.

A romance which began at Palm Beach, Florida, has led to the marriage, at St. Louis, of Mr. Charles Squier, a rich broker, of New York, and Miss Olive Ray, one of the younger leaders of society in St. Louis. The marriage was celebrated at the Buckingham Hotel, and vied with some of the more extravagant weddings for which New York and Chicago are renowned. One hundred and fifty Canary birds joined the orchestra in providing music, and during the ceremony hundreds of butterflies were released and flew over the heads of the guests.

Cage Birds 1913 Annual: A Few Copies Now for Sale

Some time back we had to announce the fact that our very successful "Annual" for 1913 was out of print. We have now, however, succeeded in getting together about 50 copies from various agents, and these can be obtained direct from our offices at the usual prize; viz., 8d. post free. Orders should be sent early, as there is no possibility of more of this splendid edition being on sale. Please note that these copies can only be obtained through the post, direct from 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

Country Rambles.

The following rambles have been arranged: Larkhall C.B.A., July 19, to Bonnington, Falls of Clyde; Cumnock C.B.S., July 12, to Lorn Estate, meet at Auchinleck Station Road End; Longton C.B.S., July 13, to Cheadle, meet Longton Station 9.15: Sunderland C.B.A., July 12, to Haltwhistle, meet North end of Central Station, 12.45, tram leaves 1.0; Sheffield O.S., July 13, to Haselhead and Langsett, train leaves Central station 1.15: Queensbury C.B.S., July 20, to Eldwick, etc., leave Granby Hotel 12.30; Sheffield C.B.S., July 19, to Wyming Brook, meet Malin Bridge car terminus 2.30.

The Patronage of Specialist Clubs.

Societies desiring the patronage of the specialist clubs at their 1913 shows should apply as follows, stating classification given, and judges appointed: National Green Marked Y.C.S., Mr. J. Chambers, 22, St. Anne's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds; National British Bird and Mule Club, Mr. J. P. Carr, 45, Overdale Road, S. Ealing, W.; latest date, 26th July. Southern Norwich P.C., Mr. F. S. Matthee, 34, Rotherhithe New Road, S.E.; Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., Mr. R. Garnett, 8, Leeds Road, Windhill, Shipley; Green C.A., F. Handley, 23, Coventry Rd., Wavertree, Liverpool; closing date, July 17th. Yorks and Lancs. Brit. B. and M.C., T. H. Inman, 43, Derby Rd., Thornbury, Bradford; Cinnamon C.C., Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, 68, Brunswick Road, Liverpool; Northern Border and S.F.C.C., Mr. M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Midland Counties Y.C.C., Mr. J. Sheppard, 129, Floyer Road, Small Heath, Birmingham; Fife and Kinross N.P.C., A. Dickson, 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty; Southern Border F.C., F. Moore, 49, Kelmscott-rd., Clapham Junction, S.W., closing date July 23rd.

Where Advertising Pays.

CAGE BIRDS will sell your surplus stock at once. Advertise, and see for yourself.

"I have had so many applications for Bullfinches, advertised in your paper, CAGE BIRDS, that I cannot answer them all."—H. HOLLAND (Chel-tenham).

"I may say that I am highly satisfied with the results of my small advert. in CAGE BIRDS. I received replies from England, Scotland and Ireland, and could have sold the birds many times over. Please thank, through the medium of your paper, all those who made inquiries."—W. F. BUZZA (Leominster).

"Please thank all those who replied to my advert. of Hen Canaries. Birds were sold by wire at 3 o'clock Friday. I cannot answer all applicants individually. Could have sold them several times over, which speaks volumes for your paper. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success."—J. MILLS (Liscard).

"Mr. W. T. HARDING, Birmingham, has disposed locally of his birds advertised in CAGE BIRDS. The applications were so numerous, and from as far as Ireland, Scotland, Wales, and the Channel Islands that he could not reply to them all personally, and those who have not heard from him will quite understand the circumstances."

"Please thank all who answered our advert. in your valuable paper. We could have sent a lot more off if we had got them to spare. We can find nothing like CAGE BIRDS for Adverts. It would be a good thing if those answering adverts. and wanting an answer would enclose stamp. Wishing CAGE BIRDS and every fancier success during 1913."—TURNER & ROBERTS (Ripley).

Nightingales Extending their Range.

It has always been recognised as a fact that the distribution of the most charming of all our summer visitors, the Nightingale, has been roughly limited by a line drawn in a west by south direction from The Wash on our east coast to the southern portions of Hereford and Glamorgan, and thence southward across Somerset and Devon to the River Dart. Like many others of our British birds, this talented songster appears now to be extending its range, and the line across England will have to be drawn almost East to West, for Mr. H. E. Forrest writes to "British Birds" (July issue) that "the present season has witnessed an influx of Nightingales into localities in Shropshire where they do not occur regularly." Mr. Forrest has located six pairs within a few miles of Shrewsbury, and others have been unmistakably identified in the same county. Mr. Forrest says "the above is the only instance of the species occurring in North-east Shropshire that has come under my notice during the twenty years I have kept the county records."

Important Developments in Our Championship Scheme.

Continued Splendid Response of Societies and Exhibitors: All Limitations to Competition Removed.

WE have two important announcements to make this week in connection with our Great Championship Competition.

In the first place we have under consideration a modification of the method of distributing the special prize-money in the specified sections at the Palace Show. This, mark well, does not in any case mean that the amount in cash specials (at present totalling the huge sum of £99) will be reduced. The contrary, indeed, is the actual fact, as we may see our way to increase not only this very large amount of money, but also to add one or two further sections in which it may be competed for. Our sole desire is to afford every one of our readers the easiest possible chance of sharing in this unprecedented collection of cash specials. We have not been able to come to a definite decision, however, before this issue must go to press. Don't miss our next number; we will tell you all about it therein.

Specials Open to Every Bird.

In the second place, we have reconsidered the position of ring birds in relation to our scheme. It has been represented to us that any sort of limitation of our competition prevents the equitable use of the term "championship" in connection with it. This seems to us a reasonable view to take, and we have therefore decided to delete rule 4, seeing that it tends to impose this said limitation. We are gratified beyond measure at the splendid reception accorded our Championship Competition, and with the great possibilities so clearly looming ahead—it is pleasant to find societies and exhibitors so widely and unanimously recognising our efforts to provide a means of adding interest to our shows, of stimulating bird-keepers to support them, and of helping along the hobby we all love.

An Objection Considered.

We have also given further thought to the objection raised by the members of the Cardiff Society, viz., that our specials (the 10s. cash) will be won every time by rare Hybrids, or Foreigners, or Crests. We really cannot (we say it with all respect to them) see the force of this contention. (1) One exhibitor can win only two of the 10s. specials, and each of these must be won by a different bird, so that even if every owner of rare Hybrids, rare Foreigners, or champion Crests, competes (and this, of course, may not be the case) it is quite impossible for this contention to prove correct. (2) We hope to enrol at least 100 coupon shows, and it is unthinkable that Crests, Hybrids, and Foreigners of sufficiently high merit to be worthy of being considered even serious competitors for the position of best bird, will be found at even a small proportion of them. The records of past shows fully support this view.

An Accusation of Bias Against Judges.

It must be remembered, too, that it is not a case of every bird in the show competing for our specials—they are confined solely to coupon birds, and it is impossible for anyone to foretell what birds may, or may not, be competing under our scheme at any particular show, just as it is impossible to foretell what individual fanciers may think fit to join in. We cannot bring ourselves to believe, either, that our judges are prejudiced in favour of Crests, Hybrids or Foreigners. One of our correspondents goes so far as to say that the winning of the specials will "mostly depend on the judge's fancy. If he favours Borders or Norwich or Crests or Foreign, or anything else, where his fancy leads him no others will have any chance, although perhaps other sections contain much superior birds of their own kind. Nobody could blame him; it is his fancy and he is quite right to follow it." Frankly, we find it amazing that anyone can pen such an opinion as this, and, in particular, to say that no one could "blame" a judge for giving an inferior bird the special for best in show, just because he fancies the variety to which it belongs, when there are superior birds of other kinds present. Personally, we should think "blame" a mild punishment to visit upon any judge who allowed his awards to be biassed in so flagrant a manner. We cannot think our correspondent is justified in writing his remarks.

In any case exhibitors, whether competing for ordinary or for special prizes, have to bow to the judges' opinions concerning the merits of the birds put before them, and so long as their opinions are honestly expressed no one can ask more or can justly complain. There is no other possible system under which prizes can be awarded, and we cannot believe that any capable judge would overlook the claims of what one might term 100-point Borders, or Norwich, or Yorkshires, in favour of Crests which are not so good from the point of view of standard specimens of this variety, or of Hybrids or Foreigners which are merely "rare." There is another side to this question, too; we will deal with this next week.

Coupons Steadily in Demand.

Orders for coupons flow steadily in from both exhibitors and societies (the preliminary order from Stoke is for one hundred), and societies are notifying their acceptance of the scheme practically as fast as meetings of the members can be held to discuss it. Among the newcomers during the past week are:—

ALNWICK C.B.S.
BURTON-ON-TRENT C.B.S.
CHELTENHAM C.B.S.
FORRES AND NORTHERN O.A.
HARROGATE C.B.S.
SHEFFIELD C.B.S.
STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

A full list of the Coupon Shows to date appears on page 8

Recognition of a Good Thing.

The London and Provincial O.S. and myself give your scheme our unanimous support.—C. W. Law, hon. sec.

I sincerely hope that CAGE BIRDS' great prize scheme will meet with the success it deserves.—W. Cumming, hon. sec., Forres and Northern O.A.

Enclosed please find acceptance form for Championship Competition. Personally I do not see how any society can afford to be outside this Competition. The prizes offered will make a nice addition to the special prize list of any show, and I think the conditions very simple and just, giving, as they do, a reasonable chance to all competitors to win something at one or other of the shows accepting your conditions. I wish CAGE BIRDS' scheme the success it deserves.—A. Hobson, secretary Sheffield C.B.S.

A KEEN AMERICAN BIRD-LOVER.

Our photograph is of Mr. David O'Brien (San Francisco). The Roller Canary is the especial favourite of this gentleman, who recently contributed an interesting article to our pages concerning it. He raises a novel point, too, in a note published this week in our article, "How to Sex Young Canaries." Mr. O'Brien is an enthusiastic bowler, and the photo was taken on the green of the San Francisco Bowling Club.

Some Points Raised by Correspondents.

We purpose now to consider a few points from letters which have reached us.

A correspondent writes that he supposes it is impossible for natural coloured birds to compete at the Palace show in the Norwich and Yorkshire sections. This is not the case, however. Though colour-fed birds are barred in certain sections (Borders, for instance), natural-colour birds can compete wherever their owners choose to enter them. We can find nothing in the Palace schedule which debars them from taking their chance in any class in the show. It is the present-day fashion to colour-feed certain varieties, true, but the majority of show schedules lay it down that the prizes shall be awarded for "purity of breed, beauty of plumage, and high condition." Thus it clearly seems left to the judge to decide the precise value of the colour-feeding as an aid to attaining the ideal "beauty of plumage."

No Age Limit Applies.

Several enquirers ask as to the age of birds eligible to compete in our championship competition. They may be of any age; it is an open matter. In the future we may consider the desirability of (1) limiting the competition in Canaries and Mules and Hybrids to birds bred during the current year, or (2) providing special prizes confined to birds of the current year.

All Societies Can Make a Profit.

A secretary asks whether societies adopting our scheme are involved in any outlay. The reply is, none whatever, except that we ask societies adopting our scheme to put a brief notice (roughly, quarter-page space) announcing the same in their show schedules and catalogues—the wording of the notice being supplied by us. As a matter of fact, every society can make money by the scheme, as secretaries are supplied at a reduced rate with coupons to sell to their members and others, the profit therefrom belonging to the society. Then, of course, every section of our Coupon Shows should be benefited in entries, by reason of the competition for the diplomas and the right which they convey to participate in the grand finale at the Palace for the £99 (cash) in special prizes, and the £10 10s. challenge shield, all of which, of course, are confined strictly to coupon birds.

Our Money Ready Irrespective of Entries.

"How many entries are expected before you pay over the prize-money?" asks another secretary. We make no stipulation whatever on this point beyond that contained in rule 6, i.e., that there must be not less than 10 separate competitors in our competition at any diploma show. If there be ten competitors we shall pay the £1 cash (10s. for champions and 10s. for novices) quite irrespective of the number of coupon birds entered by each competitor. The prizes at the Palace show (£99 cash and £10 10s. shield) will be competed for without any stipulation as to number of either competitors or birds—i.e., if there are competitors to win them the prizes will be awarded.

The Choice of Venue for the Finale.

We have been asked why we allotted the bulk of the specials to the Crystal Palace Show. It is purely a matter of convenience. This fixture is the last great show of the year, and thus we are able to offer every preceding show the chance of participating in the benefits of our scheme, and every member of our great circle of readers the chance of competing for diplomas and cash specials at all the leading shows of the season. And only by fixing upon the Palace show can we secure these two very important points. No question of "favouritism" enters into the arrangements at all. That the Crystal Palace is accessible to everyone is established by the birds which reach there year after year from all quarters of the British Isles.

We would remind secretaries that our pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme have now been sent out; if any secretary has been inadvertently overlooked, we shall be pleased to forward him one if he will be good enough to notify us to this effect. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154 Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before the end of July, 1913.

TWO PRIZES OF 10S. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, such diploma to be given for the best bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS
(4) BORDER FANCIES
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3; SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1; FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of August, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bona-fide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one diploma show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

The Blackbird's Expensive Nest.

In one of the villa gardens at Crathes (Aberdeen) the other day a Blackbird's nest of curious construction was found by the gardener over one of the bow-windows of the house. He had planted out a number of stocks, asters, and nemesias, and was unable to account for their partial disappearance on the next day. He rose before the sun was up and set to watch. He was not long in noting two Blackbirds pulling up the plants by the roots and carrying them to the top of the nearest window, where they had chosen to build their nest. Besides the seedlings, a number of viola flowers, white and mauve, had also been used.

Owing to unprecedented pressure on space, our notes on the "Hobby Week by Week" have had to be held over.—Editor.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

(For Rules See Last Week's Issue.)

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

WEAK HIND CLAW. (Mr. V. Lee).—No, the claw, judging from your description, is not dislocated. Treat it as advised fully to "A. W." in last issue, which should set things right. You will do well to allow the hen to sit her full time, as however sure you may feel that the eggs must necessarily prove infertile it does not preclude the probability that events have occurred in the early mornings of which you know nothing, but which will ensure the fertility of the eggs.

LUMP UNDER FOOT (A.W.). It is a pity you did not carefully examine the foot before sending the previous query, and thereby save losing time with unsuitable treatment. Bathe the foot in fairly warm water for a few minutes, then dry it, and paint over the lump with tincture of iodine. Repeat this treatment four or five times with an interval of four clear days between each time. If this does not cause the lump to disappear, and the bird is a valuable one, your best course is to ask a veterinary to look at it. The substance might be removed by excision, but do not attempt this yourself.

MISSING TOES. (J. S.).—Your surmise so far as it goes is undoubtedly correct. The missing portions of the toes without a doubt have been bitten off by one or other of the parents whilst the chicks were very young. It is not certain that the hen was the culprit, and indeed, the cock is even more to be suspected than the hen when he is left with the hen during hatching and rearing. It is a vicious habit not infrequently met with, and can only be dealt with by keeping a sharp look-out and discovering the real culprit. If it proves to be the cock the remedy is obvious—remove him during the hatching and rearing periods. If it is the hen the only course is to transfer the young to a more natural hen to be reared. In such cases it is always well to examine the nest to see if it is free from insects, as it is not unlikely the irritation from these pests may incite a hen to commit these unnatural acts. It would be a mercy to destroy any young with feet as bad as those sent for inspection.

PLUCKS OUT HIS FEATHERS (13th Hussar).—Catch the bird and examine it carefully for the presence of grey lice. Also examine cage closely for red mites. If either pest is found, take steps to exterminate it as frequently explained in this column. In addition to staple seed diet, give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and then sprinkled well with maw seed every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days add as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash to its drinking water, and give a morsel of ripe banana, or some kind of green food. For green food use half ripe plantain stalks, as these will find occupation for the bird and help to divert its attention from its plumage. If greater diversion seems necessary, fix a cube of lump sugar in the wires at the end of a perch, and tie a couple of inches of string on the wires for it to unravel.

CAGE FALLING (Brighton).—It is impossible to say what will be the result of such an accident as this in any particular case. The shock will scarcely cause some birds to "turn a feather," whilst others will not get over it for years, in spite of every care. Beyond saying the bird has gone off song, you do not say whether it appears to be ill or injured in any way. It is doubtful whether the bird will quite recover itself and come into song again now until it has moulted, and considering the nearness of the moult, I think you may as well give up the idea of getting it right to breed again this season. If it appears bright and healthy in a general way, keep it caged alone for a time. Add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to its water for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for three or four days. After this turn it into a flight with other stock for a week or two, when it should quite throw off the effects of the shocks in the course of a few weeks.

FEEDING IN OUTDOOR AVIARY (W. Emmott).—You do not mention the size of your aviary nor the type, so I am assuming that it is a fair-sized structure wherein the birds get exercise in the open air. In such circumstances it is best to give the staple seed diet of canary and summer rape in a self supplying hopper divided into two compartments to keep each seed separately. The supply of each may be unlimited. In addition, during the breeding season, when young are in the nest, give a saucer of egg-food daily, supply cracked hemp in another vessel, and once a day give a supply of soaked or scalded rape sufficient to last, say, two hours only, on account of its liability to turn sour. Give the egg-food, green food, and any wild seed heads fresh each morning and afternoon. Two or three times a week a small supply of a mixture of equal parts hemp, black rape, inga, millet, teazle, and broken groats may be given, and anytime when available a box of sprouted seedlings may be placed in the flight as a special treat. During the moult the supply of egg food should be limited to a heaped teaspoonful for every three birds every second day, and a little of the above seed mixture given on the intervening days. A rather more liberal supply of various wild seeds may be given, and a few handfuls of waste seeds, grass, etc., from a threshing machine thrown on the floor now again will be much appreciated, and keep birds occupied at the same time. In other respects the above dietary will suffice while birds are moulting. At ordinary times cut down the egg food to once or twice a week, the mixed seeds ditto, and let the rest of above dietary remain.

A LATE START (Perplexed). I have some doubts whether this pair will really start at all this season now, we are so near the moulting season. Judging from your account of their performances, however, there is just a bare chance they may do so, and your best course to hasten the event is to treat the bird for a fortnight or so, the same as advised to "Segrave," in this issue.

NOT BREEDING (Segrave).—The cock that had his claws clipped so clumsily has probably been much run down from the consequent bleeding, and the subsequent moulting, which sufficiently accounts for his failure to breed so far this season. It is almost too late to expect him to do so now, as even the most robust birds will be rapidly going off breeding condition now. Still, you might try the effect of giving him half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two or three finely minced fat mealworms mixed in it, and about half the bulk of a mixture of equal parts maw, sesame and gold of pleasure seed added to it. Give this every second day for a fortnight or so, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, teazle, and broken groats. Give a liberal supply of dandelion seed heads, and shepherd's purse or plantain seed stalks. In the drinking water give four drops each of the tinctures of gentian, calumba, and steel every second day for a fortnight. It is not unlikely that the second cock has gone off breeding condition preparatory to an early moult. You may treat this bird and his mate as above for a fortnight, leaving them together, of course, by which time you should see whether they are going to settle down for another nest this season.

CONTINUALLY MOULTING (E. C.).—We are just now on the verge of the moulting season, and many birds are already deep in moult, so it is only natural for your bird to be losing feathers more freely now. It is indeed a very favourable sign, as, given proper care, the bird will get through a complete moult, and be cured of the continual loss of feathers. Keep the cage in a fairly warm position, and in as equable a place as possible, but free from impure air or draughts, and throw a light cover over it. Allow bird to bathe daily, if it desires to do so. In addition to the ordinary seed diet, give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, slightly dusted with flour of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days add as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence and a few blades of saffron to the drinking water. After this, omit the sulphur, but continue giving the cake and maw for another month, and on the alternate days, give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, linseed and broken groats. Give a little green food or wild seeds in variety four times a week. In the water during this time give 20 drops of Chemical Food every third day for a fortnight or so, the same as advised to "Segrave" in this issue.

HOW NOT TO DO IT. (F. D.).—Your record of three years' experiences in the fancy reads somewhat like an essay on The Trials of a Would-be Canary Breeder. You appear to have had a long run of hard luck, and after carefully considering your record I am inclined to think your management is partly, and it may be largely, accountable for your non-success. There are portions of your letter which give me the impression that you, perhaps, interfere with the birds' domestic arrangements too much. Is this so? If this surmise is correct it will go far to explain your failures, and you would meet with better success next season by making a firm resolve to interfere as little as possible with the birds from the time they are mated. Your feeding also may be at fault, but on this point you do not give sufficient details. Anyway, I would advise you to get "Canary Breeding for Beginners" and master its contents between now and next season, when you should follow its instructions implicitly. Also clear out your present unsatisfactory stock and get one or two pairs or a trio of healthy, vigorous young birds to start afresh with. If the cock which has been filling eggs well this season is not older than 1911 bred, and gets through the moult well and in good robust condition you might keep him to breed with next season. But let the rest go, and get strong active 1913 bred birds to replace them to make up a trio, or two pairs. Try with this number only next year on the lines laid down in the hand-book mentioned above, when I feel sure, you will meet with more success. If anything goes wrong, or you fail to understand anything in the book, write us at once and I shall be pleased to assist you to achieve success after so many failures.

NESTING DIARRHOEA (C H.T.).—Considering the number of hens affected, it appears tolerably certain that the cause of your trouble arises from something of a general character to which all your birds are exposed. The fluctuations of temperature, though certainly bad for the birds, are not, I think, wholly the cause of the trouble. Still you would be well advised to remedy this as far as possible. The chief cause, I believe, lies in some portion of the dietary, or the method of supplying it, but you give no particulars at all about your feeding when young are hatched. See that your hemp is quite good and sound in kernel; use only fresh eggs from healthy fowls in making egg-food; and never allow the egg-food, nor the water supply, to be exposed to the rays and heat of the sun in the aviary. When young are hatched give a moderate supply of egg-food, freshly prepared each time at least twice a day—and prepare it with half the bulk of stale bread crumbs or manzena wafer biscuits, to which you may add a few sprinkling of rice powder for the first few days. After two days slowly increase the proportion of bread or biscuit to twice above amount. Give a little maw separately each day. Do not give green food until young are three days old; then give only moderate supplies, quite fresh, and be careful it is not wet or too rankly grown. At a week old add a supply of well-boiled summer rape daily. This may be given earlier if any signs of looseness appear. At eight or ten days add a little cracked sound hemp. Unless something is radically wrong with your aviary or treatment, of which I have no knowledge, this undue looseness should not occur under this treatment. If any signs of it appear, however, at once dust the egg food for a day or two with carbonate of bismuth, and add to each ounce of drinking water six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of opium for a day or two.

A SICK ROLLER (T. Ward).—Keep the bird in a warm and fairly equable place, and where it will get plenty of fresh pure air, but still avoid direct draughts, and fumes from burning lights in the evenings. Keep on a staple diet of two parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition to this, give daily for a week a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, dusted with carbonate of bismuth, and then sprinkled with maw. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of scalded rape, and on the alternate days a half ripe stalk of plantain seed, or a seedy head or two of shepherd's purse. Add thirty drops of fluid magnesia to the drinking water daily for three days. After this give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid, every second day for a week, and on the alternate days 20 drops of Chemical Food, continuing the latter for two or three weeks. After the end of the first week stop the bismuth, give the bread and milk with maw every second day, and twice each week on these days add also a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, teazle, and broken groats. On the intervening days continue giving the scalded rape and the plantain or shepherd's purse. Continue this feeding until the bird is once more in nice plump condition.

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

MULING HEN NOT LAYING (Winox).—The fact of a hen Canary sitting in a nest and not laying is unfortunately a rather common occurrence. The only way to deal with her is to take the nest away and let her have a fresh start in about a week or ten days. Tie a piece of rough string on the wires of the cage front, and as soon as you see the hen pulling at it, give her a nest pan and building materials. There is still time for a clutch this season providing neither of the birds drops into moult. While waiting, feed them well, and allow them to bathe daily; in fact, do all you can to keep them fit. Do not on any account move them from their present position, as doing so would probably throw them into the moult at once.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

LIBERATING A THRUSH (G. Underwood).—The bird would doubtless live all right if you were to set it free now—that is, if it were liberated near a wood in which it could find food and shelter. The moulting season will soon be here, and unless you liberate the bird at once, it will be better to keep it over its moult and through the winter, when food may be difficult to find in freedom. You could then let it have its liberty in the spring.

BULLFINCH UNSETTLED (Inquirer).—It is doubtless the proximity of the wild birds which is unsettling your tame Bullfinch, and to get him a hen at this season of the year would not be likely to mend matters very much. It would, however, do no harm, and there can be no objection to your trying it. If they make friends so much the better, and you might get young ones in the spring. The leaves you mention will not hurt the bird, and it would certainly not harm him to pick at the growing vine leaves. I am sorry that I am not able to advise as to the "bare patch on the head" without further particulars. Is it simply that a few feathers have fallen out, or is there really a bare patch of any size? If the skin is bare, is it scurfy, or inflamed, or merely normal? It may be that some of the other birds have pulled a feather or two from the head of the Bullfinch.

FOOD FOR ORTOLAN BUNTING AND HAWFINCH (J.M.W.).—An Ortolan requires only the same food as other Buntings, and, like the others, will live almost entirely on seed. As you are doing so well with the Snow, Reed, and Yellow Buntings, you should succeed equally well with the Ortolan. (2) It is fortunate that birds do not eat "according to their size," and a Hawfinch would certainly not require twice as much as a Chaffinch, as you suggest. A Hawfinch is not a difficult bird for which to cater in captivity. It likes a change of food, as do most birds, but is not a big eater for its size. His especial favourites in the way of seeds are sunflower and hemp, and a good stock mixture would be sunflower 2 parts, hemp 1 part, and ½ part each of rape, canary, and linseed. Supply also garden peas, fruit, small snails, smooth caterpillars, mealworms, wild berries, and beech nuts, and seeding weeds of any kind, not all at once, of course, but change them about from time to time.

TAMING A BULLFINCH (Bullie).—It is not often one hears of a "very wild Bullfinch," as you describe your bird. Bullfinches, generally, adapt themselves very quickly to cage life, and soon become the most delightful pets. In taming this species we have that most useful ally, "cupboard love," for there are many things of which a Bullie is very fond. Hempseed, for instance, is an irresistible treat. Every time you approach his cage, put between the bars one or two grains of hemp, and leave him to eat them in peace. He will soon begin to associate your coming with the appearance in his cage of his especial dainty, and will begin to look for your approach. In a very little while he should take a grain from the end of his perch while you are standing by, and it is then only a short step to induce him to take it from your fingers or from the tip of your tongue. You must be careful with this seed, however, for if you give him sufficient of this he will eat nothing else, and will soon get too fat, to say nothing of losing his breast colour at his next moult. There are many other things which are beloved by a Bullie. He will appreciate, and much to the advantage of his health and colour, any kind of berries or other fruit you may offer him. Cherries, blackberries, elder, privet, etc., any of these may be given ad lib. Your stock food is quite all right, but you might add a little sunflower (break the seeds at first if the bird will not crack them for himself). You will find much valuable information in our Nutshell No. 11, "The Bullfinch," 2½d. post free from our office, or 2d. from your local dealer or newsagent.

THRUSH OFF SONG (J. Ramsbottom).—Your bird has probably simply gone off song in the ordinary way before moulting in due season. It is not possible to advise without full particulars of feeding, symptoms, etc., and details as to the duration of the suspected trouble. If you will let me know more about your methods I shall be pleased to help you if possible. You will find valuable information as to the proper feeding and treatment of a Thrush in either the "Song Thrush and Blackbird," or the "Larger Insectivorous Birds" Nutshell (see italic advt. inset in this column).

A YOUNG CHAFFINCH (Miss Griffin).—Your Chaffinch should now be able to feed himself, and after a little while you may altogether discontinue feeding him by hand. Give an occasional small mealworm, smooth green caterpillar, well scoured gentle, housefly, spider, rose aphis, or any insects or grubs available. Young Chaffinches are largely insectivorous, and should be treated accordingly. Offer also sprouting seedlings of almost any kind of plant, especially turnips and radishes. Gradually get it on to a stock mixture made up as follows: Canary seed 1 pint, German rape ½ pint, teazle 1 pint, charlock ½ pint, and give at times linseed, maw seed, sunflower, broken walnuts, thistle seed, beech mast kernels, and wild seeds of sorts. You would find Nutshell No. 13, "The Chaffinch," very helpful. Price 2½d. post free from our publisher, or twopence from your local dealer or newsagent.

VARIOUS QUERIES (T. W. Haddle).—(1) Robins with young may be fed upon a mixture made up of equal parts, by weight, of ants' cocoons, dried flies, preserved yolk of egg, and fine meat powder (crissel), to which is added powdered biscuit to make up to three times the weight. A portion of the mixture sufficient for a day's supply should be moistened to a crumbly consistency by the addition of boiled potato, grated carrot, chopped green stuff, boiled greens from the table, or occasionally with water or milk. (2) Bananas and any fruit in season are quite the best of food for all softbills which will eat them. (3) The Nuthatches would not hurt the boarded sides of your aviary, nor would they interfere with the other inmates. An ordinary insectile food with a few cracked nuts, sunflower seed, beechmast, etc., with such grubs and insects as you are giving to your other softbills, will meet their requirements. (4) Many birds which live mainly on insect food eat also seed at some time of the year, not "for purposes of digestion," as you put it, but as food. It is held by some aviculturists of experience that some portion of indigestible matter, such as seed husks, the cases of ants' pupæ (the cocoons), etc., is useful in the way of cleansing the crop before being ejected by the bird in the form of pellets, and you will find the matter referred to in the portion of Mr. Teschemaker's article "Something about my Nightingales," published in our issue of July 5th.

ABOUT OWL-KEEPING (A.W.K.).—This is a subject upon which I know very little from personal experience, as Owl-keeping is a branch of aviculture which has never appealed to me. The danger of advising without full knowledge was recently brought home forcibly to me. In an answer about Owl-keeping I had said: "Of course, they want water, all birds do." A friend told me that this was quite wrong. He had kept Little Owls quite well without water; ergo, Owls did not drink or bathe. I have since learnt from those with more extended experience, that while the Little Owl will exist without water, there are some Owls, the Tawny and the Long-eared, for example, that delight in a bath. As for the Barn Owl, a friend who has kept the species, assures me it drinks and bathes, while I learn in another quarter that it does neither. So my answer was the better after all. It is better to advise something which may not be a necessity than to advise the deprivation of something which may be absolutely indispensable. Now to answer your questions:—(1) The principal food should be rats, mice, and small birds, with lean raw meat as a substitute when these are not readily obtainable. (2) Notwithstanding the fact that I know that the Little Owl has been successfully kept in a cage, I have no hesitation in saying that a cage is not a suitable place in which to keep an Owl, especially a pair, as you suggest. Nothing less than a large aviary fitted with thick boughs as perches, and with suitable shelter places, will suffice for the proper keeping of Owls in confinement. (3) In properly equipped aviaries, some kinds at least will breed regularly. (4) I do not know of any book which treats fully on the keeping of Owls in captivity. (5) Different species of Owls will agree in company with one another, but "ructions" sometimes occur, and a fight between Owls is not a small matter. I should certainly not chance other birds with them, even such large ones as those you mention, the Jay, Magpie, and Jackdaw.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

BUDGERIGARS (A. Hinxman).—The general diet, viz., canary and white millet seeds, millet in the ear (spray millet), crushed oats, and greenfood about meets the wants of these hardy and beautiful birds. In a large enclosure this should suffice to keep them in condition. In many aviaries these birds are now in moult, and this may be the case with your birds. If you think they are all out of condition, give first a laxative one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water for one day; follow this by putting half a teaspoonful lyno-phosphates to each ounce of the drinking water for the remainder of the month, treat so weekly for a month. It would be well also to supply seeding (flowering) grass as long as it is obtainable. The birds should have continuous access to grit and cuttlebone.

WHAT BIRD? (R. S. Bowell) —I have carefully considered your description, but it is not full enough for me to act upon, though I think the bird is a Weaver. Please describe separately the colours of the various parts of the body as fully as possible, viz., head, sides of face, back, tail, throat, breast, abdomen then I think I shall be in a position to give you a reply.

WHAT IS IT? (A. R. Coe) —I think it must be the Two-coloured Mannikin as stated last week. With the Mannikin group audible song counts for very little, and you have to go by gesture, movement of the throat, etc., but there is usually a distinguishable difference either in volume of sound or vigour of movement. With most species of birds in which the plumage of both sexes is similar, there is usually some slight difference in size, in form of beak, or shape of head, and birds are well worth studying from this standpoint. In seed-eaters the upper mandible of the male is often strongly arched and stouter than that of the hen; that of the hen being mostly narrower at the base and more pointed and the upper mandible only slightly arched. In a few species these conditions are wholly or partially reversed in the respective sexes. Hope you'll have luck with Alarios. Serins and their allies are usually keen on getting some live food for the progeny, especially during the first seven days.

WHAT BIRD? (B. Heness).—Where the description of a bird is closely similar to that of many others it is very difficult to actually define them and this is the case with the description you send. I gather it is about the size of a Siskin, and I am inclined to think it is a Green Singing Finch, or some other nearly related Serin—there are so many green and yellow birds with darker markings that unless the description is both accurate and minute, it is difficult to place them with certainty, and I think your bird is as above, though it might be one of the Siskins. If you can improve on the description I shall be pleased to try and be more definite.

AILING PEKIN ROBIN. (C. G. H.).—Give this bird a really good insectile mixture for a time, say one part each crushed arrowroot biscuit, crumbled sponge cake, ant's eggs, and dried flies—well mix these together and then moisten the daily portion with boiling water. Continue to give the live insects, but half-a-dozen mealworms in the course of the day will not be too many. Also supply ripe fruit liberally. As you have it in a cage, you should carefully catch twice or thrice weekly (daily would be better) while the eye trouble lasts, and first cleanse with tepid water, partially dry with a soft cloth and then bathe with a rose water and zinc eye solution. While the eye trouble lasts, soak half-a-teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the soft food (insectile mixture) twice a week, and put daily half-a-teaspoonful of byno-phosphates into the drinking water for a month. Keep the bird out of draught, but it should get plenty of light and air.

WHAT BIRD? (J. W. McDonald).—I gather from your remarks that the bird referred to is some species of Parrot, and from your description is undoubtedly a Senegal Parrot, which is an African species. Once over importation troubles, they are hardy, but often arrive in very poor condition. Give it a seed mixture of one quart each canary and white millet seeds; one pint each oats, hemp, dari, half a pint sunflower seeds, add a few shelled nuts, and well mix the whole; this mixture will form the staple dietary, but ripe fruit, pieces of plain biscuit, sponge cake, or stale bread, greenfood, and a few nuts should be given regularly as extras. For a month give once a week as a laxative ten drops of Dinneford's Magnesia soaked into a piece of spouge cake, or something similar, and allowed to become dry before offering to the bird. Every other day put half a teaspoonful of byno-phosphates in the drinking water. The bird should have continuous access to grit and cuttlebone, and if tame a fly round the room when convenient will prove a great conditioner.

PARROT SQUAWKING (P. A. L.).—As you say, this is more or less the natural call of the bird, but as a rule once a bird has become fairly tame and a talker, it is either teasing, causing anger, or a sudden scare which sets up this vexatious habit. I should be inclined to try the opposite to what you have been doing. While the summer lasts put it out of doors on every possible occasion, keep it interested, and also fuss about with it in a quiet way, and when you see symptoms of the squawking coming on, talk to it, give it some tit-bit of which it is very fond, and seek by every way you can, without scaring it, to engage its attention and thus check the squawking. If it has not been accustomed to have its liberty at all, and its temperament is such that you can venture to let it have a fly round the room when convenient, such would most probably be another means to the desired end. I presume there is nothing it sees about which it is craving for, and, being denied this, it vents its disapproval by squawking. At the same time do not give it unwholesome messes to quieten it—this is a matter you can decide by observation. Also, if possible, trace the cause of the squawking by close observation, and if you can succeed in this, it should be fairly easy to remove it. I take it the bird is perfectly fit, and that there is no probability of the squawking being occasioned by internal discomfort or pain. In a bird such as you describe there must be a distinct cause—your letter does not disclose one, and only you or someone with it for longish periods can discover it.

BUDGERIGARS (Mrs. C. H. B.).—It will be better to put in additional nests (two) at once, as the birds are barely settled yet, and to have to do it later will seriously disturb them. I think the present position of the cage is the better of the two. The birds will ultimately go to nest, but they have not yet had time to settle, and there is plenty of time for them to bring off broods yet. I should not increase their number, as when they have young the accommodation of your cage will be fully taxed. While it lasts, give them as much flowering (seeding) grass as they will eat. Budgerigars are not delicate, and only need protection from draught. Keep a millet spray in the cage, renewing it as often as one gets picked clean. If you only have two nests, the probability will be the choice of both pair will fall on the same nest, and the result be more or less continuous bickering. The birds should breed for you this year, but they may not actually take to the husks for another month yet. The season is not over for these birds till the end of October, and young are often reared in November and December. If you supply sound, sweet food according to directions, and let them have plenty of light and air without draught, they will do well, and you have only to wait till they have fully settled; one pair may settle in a month and another pair take three or four months to do so.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

E. C. Floyd.—Cirrhosis or hardening of the liver due to impurities partaken of somewhen in the food. It is a slow and insidious disease, and illness is rarely manifested until the liver is so badly affected as to interfere with its normal function, and death occurs as the result.

W. Brinkman, junr.—Death occurred from enteritis, following fatty degeneration of the liver. This disease is not of a hereditary nature, as you surmise, but follows the introduction of impurities or irritants partaken of in the food. In some cases it is due to a contagious element, but not so in this instance.

E. Paterson.—I am inclined to suspect "septic fever." There is some evidence of it, but not sufficient to make certain. You must send along another bird, in the event of such loss occurring.

"Edina."—The liver was in a very advanced stage of fatty degeneration, which, in my opinion, had been in existence for some time. Death resulted from enteritis, due to disorganisation of this organ. Your treatment was good, but in any case, would be ineffective, treating the effects as you were, and not knowing the cause.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

G. Oliver.—We will see if we can get a satisfactory reproduction; many thanks

A. Hale.—We must ask you to excuse us publishing your letter; the record is too depressing for anything. May there not be something amiss with your methods?

Interested.—The seeding head you send is that of the Yellow Goat's-beard (popularly known as "John-go-to-bed-at-noon."

R. J. Tuckett.—We are much obliged to you for giving us the opportunity of perusing the papers, and regret to hear of the unsatisfactory ending.

W. Gambrill.—We do not think for one moment that the condition you mention will be prejudicial to the welfare of the birds.

H. W. Carrier.—The publisher of the work in question ("The Rudimeuts of Angling") is Mr. Matthews, the Cabot Press, Bristol.

A. J. Linsey.—We think this is rather a well-known idea; we have often seen it put into practice by aviarists.

J. Peacock and B. Bnult.—Many thanks for the newspaper cuttings so kindly forwarded.

Thirteenth Hussar.—If the bird is not as represented, and you can prove it, you can refuse to pay, and defend any action to compel payment. We notice you say it is a "young" cock. If you mean a bird bred this year, how could you expect it to prove a "grand singer"?—it would be too young to prove so.

BOURNEMOUTH C.B.A.

F.F. show held in St. Peter's Hall, July 2. The hall is a capital place for a show, the light being A1. 120 birds faced the judge, and all cards were up by 1.30. The Sec. and Committee did all they could for the comfort of the exhibitors and visitors, and are to be congratulated upon the manner the show was carried out. There were some very nice birds staged, The winner of challenge cup was a clear buff Norwich, a very promising youngster. He has a nice head, good body and wing carriage, and well filled-in neck. The Crest and Crestbreds were moderate. The winning Crest was dark crest and even-marked wings, neat. The old bird class of Norwich turned up trumps with 24 in the class and not a bad one in it. Foreigners were not well represented in numbers, but quality was good. The exhibits of Miss Bousfield drew much attention and were well staged. British birds brought out some really good specimens and were much admired for condition, the winner being a splendid Waxwing, 2nd a grand Snow Bunting, and 3rd a Yellowhammer. Miss Bousfield won special for most points, but, being herself the donor, kindly passed it on to Mr. Fulford, who ran up closely. Mr. W. Haysom, Southampton, judged.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow) C.B.S.

First Feather Show held July 5th, in Marie Stuart Halls, Crosshill. Over 50 exhibits were staged, some very fine specimens amongst them. Yorks. made the strongest section, and it was here the judge found the best bird in the hall, a very typical ticked buff cock, belonging to Mr. Johnson, the runner-up being Mr. R. B. Cairns with a nice variegated yellow Norwich. The judge remarked that it was a very fine bird, only it lost points on the feather, which was corded a bit in front. Should it moult out well Mr. Cairns will be proud of him yet. The show was well patronised. The judge, Mr. Charles Campbell, got through in good time, and no complaints were heard as to his decisions.

How Bird Breeders Are Faring in 1913.

Notes on the results of the present breeding season, or of any interesting happenings, are invited from the secretaries of societies and others. The communications must in each case be accompanied by the sender's name and address.

Mixed Luck at New Cross.

The members of the New Cross C.B.S. have had mixed luck during the present breeding season, several not having a single youngster on the sticks, while others have had a record year. Amongst the latter is Mr. Fuller, who has now finished breeding, having reared 44 youngsters, chiefly Norwich, from 5 pairs. Mr. Pope has also done well, having about 25 Norwich and several Goldie Mules. Mr. Gardner, too, is one of the lucky ones, having 18 young Norwich from 3 pairs. The Border Fanciers have not done so well as usual, clear eggs and youngsters dying being the chief complaints. Mr. Williams has over 20, Mr. Sutton 18, Mr. Preece 14, Mr. Joplin 5, Mr. Culham 9, Mr. Martin 8, Mr. Kay 5 (this fancier has had hard luck, having lost a lot of youngsters a few days old), Mr. Rosendale 4 (here, again, a lot of youngsters have been lost). Messrs. Burton Bros., after starting badly, getting only 15 from their first 17 nests, have now about 50, all Borders. Mr. Hill cannot do anything right with his Norwich pairs, and it seems as if he will have a blank season with this variety; he has a few nice Yorkies on the sticks. The Yorkshire breeders generally are having a bad time; but we trust the later nests are turning out better and that all members will finish the season pleased with themselves.—Burton Bros., hon. secs.

Country Rambles

LEICESTER C.B.S.

On July 5 a few cycling members journeyed to Tur Langton for a ramble, arriving about five o'clock, after an eventful ride. Leaving our cycles at The Checkers Inn, we had a good ramble through fields and woods for about two hours, when we made our way back to the inn feeling tired and hungry, to do justice to the good spread provided by our genial host, who was only sorry he could not accompany us on our ramble. Altogether, we had a very enjoyable afternoon, our members hoping that it would not be the last.—J. Cook, Sec.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S. HAVE A GRAND DAY'S OUTING.

Under a summer sky, we meet at Lochgelly Cross at 8.30 on the morning of June 2, a company of thirteen. Our way lies through the public park, thence to the public highway into that part locally known as the "Avenue," owing to its being approximate to Minto House. Here in the hawthorn hedge we get a view of a fine looking pair of Greenies, doing a little spooning, the cock showing off with outspread wings, and crying for sheer joy. The Spittal wood now takes up our attention, but we pass this rather quickly, as we are timed to meet our guide at Johnny Blair's Store; we can hear, however, the pink-pink of the Chaffies, the "Pretty Joey" of the Thrush, and the long drawn "chree" of some little Tits, which are disporting themselves in a beech tree. Soon we come in sight of Lochgelly Loch, where a pair of Swans can be seen, and the cry of the Coot and Plover can be heard. Passing Muirhead farm we eventually arrive at Dundonald, where the keeper and forester meet us. Off we start for Birkhead Farm, which is to be the scene of our operations. The first find is declared by A. Strachan, a Blackbird's nest, with 4 eggs. M. Smith almost immediately found a neat little Chaffinch's, also 4 eggs; Johnny Anderson now gives the signal, a Thrush with 4 eggs, mother Thrush having just disappeared with a startled cry into a neighbouring bush. A little further on Dr. Dunsire declares another bird, and all gather round in the attempt to specify. The keeper does not hesitate on pronouncing it a Goldfinch's nest, with 4 eggs. Two others are found by J. Anderson and J. McLeod, each six eggs. We wait here for some time on the chance of seeing the owner of the little homesteads, but can only detect the cry of a Goldfinch cock some little distance away. So far we have done exceptionally well, and the inner man is crying out. A nice little clearing at hand, we sit down to lunch, good and substantial, with the usual dessert of birdy stories. Wild flowers and seeding plants are here in profusion, not forgetting the noble mountain ash, the silver birches, the larch, and the lordly spruce fir, all these forming a birdy home, rarely to be seen in our rambles. Our friend the forester gave some insight into one species of plant, which was named something like a Black Italian poppy. On our way once more, we find more Thrush and Blackbird nests. Arrived by the West River, we proceed to Crouple Craig, where we receive an agreeable surprise on viewing the beautiful cascade which pours over the rock to a depth of 40 or 50ft., through a veritable forest of bracken and tangled undergrowth, and, farther on, empties itself into the lake. The lake soon appears to view, and we are in the presence of many species of wild fowl. Among the rushes Mr. Smith finds a nice little Bullfinch family of three, the first of its kind we had seen. By this time, 3.15, we are just a wee bit "peckish," and send off a detachment with orders for dinner. Half-an-hour elapses, detachment back, signal "all's well in the canteen," at the Antony Temperance Hotel, to which we proceed. Mr. P. McCue occupied the chair, and in a few well-chosen remarks, thanks, the keeper and the forester for their kind assistance. A resolution is passed that the secretary be instructed to thank our patrons, Lady Helen and the Hon. Munro Ferguson, for the permission so kindly granted to our society. Tired out, but pleased at our day's work, which has made us feel as if life was worth living, we entrain for home, arriving in Lochgelly about 8.—P. Muir, Sec.

New Society for Newton-le-Willows, Lancs.

Sir,—At a meeting held at the "Pied Bull" Hotel, Newton-le-Willows, on Wed. last, it was decided to form a "Newton-le-Willows Fur and Feather Society." Our next meeting will be held at the same place, which we have fixed as headquarters, on July 16th, at 8 p.m., and fortnightly afterwards. Any fancier is heartily invited to join. The subscription is 2s. 6d. per year, and 1s. nomination fee.

Birds as Distributors of Weed Seeds.

Sir,—It is surely contrary to general opinion that seeds pass through the system of our Finches without being really digested, and without having their natural functions damaged. One of the varieties of seeds mentioned by Mr. Collinge is charlock seed. That is a bold round seed, and it is difficult to imagine a seed of that description passing through the digestive organs of a Finch without suffering damage, so that its powers of germination are not spoiled. On the other hand though, it is remarkable how nature—in the form of wild seeds—is tenacious of life. As example, take horse droppings and notice how oats will grow from them. Still, there is a vast amount of difference between oats growing from horse droppings and Charlock seed from the droppings of a Finch. I haven't read the "Journal of the Board of Agriculture," so haven't seen the full report of Mr. Collinge's experiments; but if he happens to be a reader of Cage Birds, perhaps he will tell us in which way the soil was sterilised before the droppings were laid on, and how the droppings were collected. Were the captive Finches fed on the separate varieties of wild seeds previous to the experiments, or were the droppings collected immediately after the capture of wild Finches? The whole subject is very interesting.

Interesting Experiences with Foreign Birds in an Aviary.

Sir,—Will you kindly tell me if Pekin Nightingales and Pekin Robins are the same birds? I have the latter in splendid form in an outdoor aviary. I can fully endorse what a recent correspondent says as to the anxiety shown by escaped birds to get home again. I have at different times lost several, Cockatiels (young), Cordons, Waxbills, Madagascar Weavers, and others, but have recovered them, as they make every effort to get through the wires of the aviary. We generally, for a small bird, open the outer wire, unless it is small enough, as in the case of a Waxbill, to get through itself. When between the two wires, it is easy to close the first and open a small part of the inner, and gently drive the bird to the opening—which it is only too delighted to find. I have double wire everywhere, on account of cats. The birds then seem to realise that no cat can get at them, and feed and sing fearlessly, while the furry foe sits harmless on the outer wire, admiring the tantalising inmates. One morning, coming up to the aviary, I heard the door gently opening and shutting (it has a spring, and cannot fly open), and to my surprise and horror, saw my cat's paw inserted in the opening trying to push the door wide enough to get out. I naturally released her promptly! and looked to see whether any birds had fallen victims. They had merely flown to the furthest division (the open-air flight), and appeared perfectly unconcerned. The cat's great desire evidently was to get out. How she managed to get in I do not know, but aviary life seemed to have no charm from within, however pleasing it looked from without. I think she had come in quest of mice rather than birds. I have just now a fine nest of young Cockatiels in a barrel, seven good birds, every egg of the clutch.

Are Zinc Drinkers Dangerous to Birds?

Our correspondent most emphatically says "Yes."

Sir,—During the last correspondence on the keeping and feeding of Goldfinches, no one, in my opinion, pointed to the real cause of so many Goldies dying, with the exception of Mr. F. Balcombe, and he only slightly. I refer to the zinc drinkers used by "Goldfinch Fancier," and, no doubt, many others. My advice is to do away with every one you have, throw them into the dustbin, and let the man cart them away. I have not the slightest hesitation in saying that the cause of the loss is nothing more nor less than the zinc drinkers. I have kept Goldfinches for years, in fact, ever since I was a little boy going to school, and now I am nearing forty, and have never had a Goldfinch die through ill-health—accidents, yes. I do not wish to say a word against the way others feed their Finches, but I would advise "Goldfinch Fancier" to follow the advice given by Mr. G. E. Weston ("our" expert). I feed in the same way as Mr. Weston during the winter months, except that I give hemp every day, and plenty of it; in fact, there is always some left over next morning. As a tit-bit I give three times a week Messrs. W. A. Rudd and Co's Goldfinch Mixture, and this mixture I give as a stock food during the breeding season, with all the wild seeds I can gather, and almost any kind of green food, even to grass; but during the frosty weather I give a bit of apple. Last year I had 13 Mules hatch out and reared eleven, not so bad. The water I am most particular over. I boil rain water in an iron kettle, then pour it into a jug and let it stand until cold. I then give it in glass drinkers, which I run my fingers round every time I give water (that is sometimes twice and sometimes three times in a day), and twice a week I scour them out with hot water and soap, using a good sized painter's sash tool, with the handle cut off about one inch above the binding. The latter will be found very handy for cleaning any drinker. Best wishes to Cage Birds.

A New Cage Bird Society for North Liverpool.

Sir,—The North Liverpool and District Cage Bird Society is the title of a new club recently formed in the North-end. We are having our nest feather show next Wednesday, July 16th, in the Hall, Royal Street, Liverpool, N., Mr. Hamilton, of Bootle, having kindly consented to judge. Our next meeting takes place August 6th at 8 p.m., in the same rooms. Fanciers wishing to join can have particulars from the honorary secretary, Starling's Nest Built in the Wool of a Sheep!

Astonishing Happening near Morpeth.

Sir,—A Morpeth correspondent writes in the "Newcastle Chronicle," on July 4: An event of unusual interest and unique character is reported from the neighbourhood of Blagdon. As Mr. George Pringle, of Bellasis Parks, was clipping sheep last Friday (June 27), a Starling's nest, containing three hatched birds, was discovered in the fleece. The young birds had evidently been suffocated when the sheep was turned over, and the first intimation of anything unusual was the appearance of the blood when the still warm birds were cut by the shears. The sheep in question is a half-bred Oxford hogg, and it has been running in a flock of thirty, in a twelve-acre field, since "dipping" a month ago John Stevens.

Fertile Eggs After Five Weeks' Separation.

Sir,—Allow me to thank "Victor" for sending report of the fertility of the clutch of eggs he had previously enquired about. I regret that owing to accidentally mislaying a clipping of his letter I have not been able to acknowledge his favour earlier. As I said in my reply to his query, the "possibility" of all the eggs proving fertile from the previous mating was recognised, but, notwithstanding, the result of the clutch was most interesting—that is, assuming no mistake was possible in the marking—in that the latter half of clutch, which had ample time to have been impregnated by the second mating should prove barren, whilst those from the union of weeks beforehand were fruitful. Incidentally "Victor" adds a thread of evidence regarding the harmlessness of marking eggs with copying pencil, which has been accused of causing dead embryos.

The Fancy in South Africa.

A Few Notes from an ex-Durhamite.

Sir,—I am enclosing a letter I have received from a fancier in South Africa. If you think it would be interesting to any readers of your paper would you please publish it.

R Peart, Sec. Annfield Plain C.B.S.

Natal, June 6th, 1913.

Sir,—I feel I must write and ask you to favour me with news of your C.B.S. I see in Cage Birds that you are now secretary. I do not know whether you will remember me, but I think if you will look back to the first exhibition of the Leadgate C.B.S., you will be able to call me to mind when I mention the only Starling in the show, I being the exhibitor of the same. I am not amongst the feathered pets here at present, but for all that I take a great interest in them, and I have a dear friend at Pietermaritzburg who owns some very good stock in Yorkshires and Britishers, and is at present busy preparing for the annual show during the present month, and which show I hope to visit. I am very pleased to be able to tell you that the Fancy is going strong out in this country, and one needs very good birds to stand a chance on the bench. I expect to see some very good stock at the coming show, and I think the judge will have a very hard task. I may here state that the judge is a Newcastle-on-Tyne gentleman, Mr. Cox, and that he acted as judge last year and gave every satisfaction. It gives me very great pleasure when I look back and think of the happy times I have had visiting the shows in the County of Durham, and I can tell you I have looked forward to mail days during the past home show season to get my Cage Birds to see who has been doing all the winning. I often wish I had brought my Britishers out here with me, especially when I visit the fanciers and look at their stock of beauties. The bright-plumaged Britishers do not keep their colours here as in the old country, but the Linnet family do all right. My friend has a fine Siskin for the show. Mr. Peart, I wish you and your society every success during the coming season.

A Fight Between Swans at Hampstead Ponds.

Sir,—On the morning of July 3, about 10 o'clock, a fight took place between two Swans on a pond at South Hill, Hampstead Heath. The pond has been for some time the haunt of a pair of Swans with three cygnets, which are now about two months old. The male has always resented intruders, and early this week attacked two men who were working in a punt. Yesterday another pair of Swans with three young arrived from a pond at the Vale of Health, and the male was savagely engaged by the one in possession. An hour's exciting struggle resulted in the total defeat of the newcomer. It was rescued by a keeper, who waded into the water and transferred the bird with its mate and young to the bathing pond. Both Swans lost some plumage and the blows from their wings were audible a long way.

A Hampstead Reader.

The Effect of Thunder and Vibration on Fertile Eggs.

Sir,—I always read my Cage Birds with great interest, especially Mr. Weston's ideas, and I have been very interested in the discussion about the effect of thunder and vibration upon fertile eggs. I have come to the conclusion that so far as vibration doing harm is concerned, it is a fable. For seven years I worked under a steam-hammer, the weight of which is 5 tons, and I can assure you that when it strikes a blow a passing train is nothing to compare with it so far as vibration goes. Yet the Sparrows and Starlings in numbers have hatched out their young successfuly under the same roof, which also covered a 3-ton hammer, and both hammers were working night and day. Canaries, too, have been hatched for years, not 20 yards away, in house property, the occupants of which had to be careful how they placed their crockery on small shelves. At present I am working under an 8-ton hammer, and there are plenty of young birds about the roofs that have been bred not many yards away. So far as thunder and its effects go, I, with many more brother fanciers, have seen no damage done, and I have had eggs incubating at all stages. In my opinion there is no fear unless it may be of startling nervy hens and causing them to forsake their nests.

Thomas Peters.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

Hen Redpoll's Great Record.

Eighteen Eggs all Fertile by a Greenfinch

Sir,—It may interest your readers to know the result of my mating a cock Greenfinch with a hen Redpoll. The hen laid 11 eggs, one each day for 11 days, and every egg proved fertile, eight chicks hatching out. I lost three after hatching, and now have five on the sticks. She has seven eggs for her second nest, all fertile. I have bred the Redpoll-Greenie, but do not remember the Greenfinch Redpoll being exhibited. This beats all my own previous records—eighteen eggs in two nests, all fertile.

Are Prohibitive Prices Objectionable?

A Plea for the "N.F.S."

Sir,—In reference to the paragraph under "Twitterings" in Cage Birds of July 5, re the Provincial Roller Club's decision as to placing "N.F.S." (not for sale) against the entry, laying the exhibitor open to being objected to should he win a prize, I consider this is a matter that could well be discussed in your columns. My humble opinion is that it is far preferable to see "N.F.S." in a catalogue than to see a bird priced at £1,000. Many times have I been told by visitors to shows, not fanciers, that they have seen Canaries worth £1,000. In all probability the birds would be dear at 1,000 pence. The letters "N.F.S." are not misleading, whereas prohibitive prices very often are, and do the Fancy no good.

A. W. Morrison.

Linnets that are Actors and Acrobats.

Durham Man's Remarkable Training Feat.

Sir,—I send you the following from the "Newcastle Chronicle," as I think it will be of great interest to many of your readers:—

"Mr. William Cutter, of Coalburns, possesses two Brown Linnets which are remarkable actors and acrobats, and go through performances which show at once their remarkable intelligence and the infinite trouble taken in their training by their owner. They drive a toy motor car (driven by clockwork), one acting as chauffeur and the other sitting in the seat, they ride the see-saw, 'die for their country,' stand on their heads, walk up a ladder, climb a stick, turn somersaults, walk a tight rope, keep their balance on a revolving postcard, work a windmill, skip, jump hurdles, and swing in a swing boat. They will go outside with Mr. Cutter without attempting to regain their liberty, will sit on his pipe while he smokes, and sing beautifully when asked to do so. Mr. Cutter is a shaftsman at Greenside Pit, and was for a short time incapacitated by an injury to one of his thumbs, and buying from different quarters two Linnets which had just been caught, and were consequently quite wild, he conceived the idea of training the birds to 'do tricks' with the object of making his enforced idleness less irksome. This was six months ago, and his efforts have been crowned with remarkable success."

I think we have here evidence enough to convert even those faddists who are always preaching about the "cruelty" of keeping birds in captivity, when this can be done with birds of wild birth in such a short time. It speaks volumes in favour of their owner's treatment and of the birds' appreciation of his kindness. John Stevens.

The Breeding of Goldfinch-Twite Hybrids.

Sir,—In reply to Mr. Carroll Dawson, who, I may say, is unknown to me, I have last year's Goldie-Twite preserved, and it is in splendid condition. This year's young one is out, flying about the cage; it came out yesterday, when 17 days old. I have two more eggs fertile out of four, and the Twite is building again. I shall be pleased to show them to Mr. Dawson, or anyone who cares to come to see them, any day.

E. Southwood.

Old Head, Kinsale, Co. Cork.

Sir,—Goldfinch-Twite Hybrids were bred here in Arbroath last year by Messrs. Muir and Heenan. The parents were a British Goldfinch cock and a white-cheeked hen Twite. Altogether the hen laid 28 eggs, and four young resulted by the end of the season. They showed one of them at Broughty Ferry show and it was placed third. This year the same pair have gone to nest, and up to now have four or five young. I wish your championship scheme every success.

The lower photo depicts the excellent display of special prizes; in the upper one figure Messrs. A. Snape, G. Fletcher and E. Matthews (standing, left to right), and W. Baxby, J. C. Barnes (judge), E. C. Job (sec.), R. Colton (assist. sec.), and T. Dunford (seated).

Young Blackbirds with their Beaks Eaten Away.

What is the Explanation?

Sir,—It is not very unusual for Canary breeders to find young in the nest with beaks and legs "eaten," but I have never heard of a case like the following, which I cut from the local "City News." "A strange or mysterious thing has happened here," writes Mr. W. Lockett. "Can any of your naturalist correspondents suggest an explanation? The man who attends to my garden found in the fence a Blackbird's nest, with five young birds about half grown. One had the upper mandible of its bill entirely eaten off. Another had it eaten off to about half. In the case of the third the point of the bill was so far gone as would have rendered it incapable of picking up food for itself. When the old birds ceased to feed these they would have starved to death. They were not injured in any part of the body, nor could any injury be found on either of the other young birds. When I went into the garden the man showed them to me, he had just killed them all. He said it was no good putting the two uninjured ones into the nest as they would have lost their bills even as the others had. I examined them very carefully. They were quite warm, just out of the nest. The injury to the bills had decided the appearance of having been eaten away, but they were the very last thing that I should have expected to have been attacked."

THE MASTER SINGER OF THE CANARY TRIBE

By J. TOMLINSON

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

IF the hens are all ready to go to nest together, the chances are against the majority of the eggs being fertilized; to overcome this a portion of their number should be removed, and another cock be provided. Another disadvantage is that some hens may not have youngsters to rear, and they consume the egg-food that must necessarily be provided for those hens with young. This is very unsatisfactory, as birds should never be alowed to eat large quantities of egg-food, excepting when they are feeding youngsters. In some cases it will be very fattening, in others it will upset the stomach, and have a tendency to lead to inflammation. Another disadvantage is that there will be a certain amount of fighting amongst the birds that are put up to breed in this way. Sometimes the cock will take a fancy to one hen, and bully the others, or it may be found the hens fight amongst themselves; but if they go on satisfactorily with their breeding duties, too much importance should not be attached to these family squabbles, but in some cases the culprit must be removed from the cage.

How to use the Double-Breeder.

The double breeder is a useful cage; another name for this cage is the two compartment breeding cage. The majority of these are constructed of wood, with a removable wire front. These double breeders may be purchased made of block tin, or zinc, but, like the wire breeding cages, are expensive. The compartments are divided by wooden slides; some of them have a small portion of the wooden slide cut out, and wires fitted into the aperture. Others will have an extra whole wire slide. The wire slide is used when pairing the birds together; the cock is placed in one compartment and the hen in the other, with the wire slide between them. When it is noticed that the cock is passing food through the wires into the hen's mouth, the slide can be withdrawn, and no notice need be taken of any little family "spar" that may occur. Sometimes a cock will refuse to allow the hen to touch any dainty bit of food that may be given to them. With a threatening manner and open mouth, he will drive her away, and shortly afterwards the "oddity" will go and feed her with all the food he has been eating.

The double breeder may be used either for two pairs of birds, or for one cock and two hens, there are several ways that can be adopted when the latter are put up. Often it will be the condition of the birds that will compel you to follow a method, even though it does not work in accordance with your views. For instance, it may be that one hen is more forward than the other; this can be ascertained by watching the hen's demeanour, at the sound of the cock's voice she pulls herself together, and utters shrill calls in return, and tries by every possible means to get a peep at the cock. At other times she will carry in her beak any loose bit of material that may be in the cage. Travelling quickly from one perch to another she retains her bit of treasure; after a few moments she tires of this pastime, and shows she wants to build a nest. If there is no nest pan in the cage, she tries the egg-food pan, or a corner of the cage bottom, and should the headholes in the cage front be large enough she will get inside the seed hopper and try to form a nest among the seed. Another sign, and it is her last one before she begins to lay her eggs: her evident desire that those eggs should be fertilized. When she hears the cock singing she will at once assume a crouching attitude, with tail slightly raised, and beak pointed upwards. She utters a low rapidly given call; somewhat nasalised in tone, and sounding to the human ear as a very rapidly breathed sc, sc, sc, sc, sc.

Where Fanciers Sometimes Go Astray.

I might mention at this point that when birds are placed in the breeding cages the nest-pans should be placed into their positions at the same time, allowing three pans for each two hens, or if only one hen she should have a couple to choose from. One of the chief causes of hens desiring to make a nest otherwise than in the nest-pan, is dilatoriness of the fancier in supplying the nest-pans; no harm is done, and nothing is lost, if a small portion of nesting material is also put in the cage.

To revert to the methods of using the double breeding cage, the cock is placed in one compartment with the hen that is showing a desire to go to nest. He should be left with this hen, which I will name No. 1, until the evening of the day she lays her third egg. Why I recommend his removal at night is that a hen may be met with that will refuse to sit, should he be removed in the daylight. Place him then with hen No. 2 until the evening of the day she also lays her third egg, then remove him entirely out of the breeding room.

I have given you a picture when the sun is shining, now let me give it when things don't work smoothly. A hen may be met with that will not sit without the cock is left in the cage with her; such instances are few I admit, but yet there are such hens. Again, some will be found to sit all right, and then refuse to feed without the aid of the cock. In the first case, where the hen will not sit without his company, and it is not convenient to purchase another cock for hen No. 2, there is no alternative but to let him stay with her and try one of the following methods.

Withdraw the slide from the middle of the cage and allow them all to be together; probably this may not suit the hen that is sitting, and she commences to rush off her nest when No. 2 approaches her, and rushes the intruder about the cage. If she goes back to her eggs again, and eventually settles down peacefully, then let them all remain together. Otherwise, if the fighting becomes so serious that she begins to neglect her eggs, No. 2 must be partitioned off again by herself, when No. 1, well satisfied, will go back to her eggs.

Two Wives for Every Male.

Again, it may be that the cock will not take kindly to No. 2 hen, and the only way out of either of these difficulties is to withdraw the slide a little and gently drive him into the compartment containing No. 2 hen, but before doing so make sure that this No. 2 hen is in a forward condition. Then, immediately copulation has taken place withdraw the slide again just a little and drive the cock back again to No. 1 hen. This should be repeated each day until No. 2 hen has laid her third egg, as this will afford every opportunity of the whole clutch being fertilised.

We are always learning something, and an experience that I have met with in my own breeding room this year may be worth relating, as it bears on the method of mating that I have just described. I have a hen that I have tried to pair with three different cocks, and she refuses all of them, or seems to do so when I am in the room; it is just the same should she come in contact with another hen, there is a bit of a scuffle, and out of the contest she comes victorious with a beak full of feathers. She simply ignores the cock's advances, and artfully dodges out of the way. Sometimes she will stand on the opposite perch, then make a rush, and that poor cock finds himself on the cage bottom! As a last hope I ran a vigorous young cock with her for a few minutes each day, each time leaving the room immediately; and she has laid two clutches of fertile eggs.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S.

Meeting, held July 2, in Drill Hall, Mr. Wildridge presiding. Sandiford colour food was disposed of. Secretary was asked to intimate that subs., 2s. 6d., is now due, and will be received at members' earliest convenience.—R. Mnlr.

BOWHILL O.S.

Meeting held in the Gothenburg, June 28, Dr. T. R. Hunter chair. There was a good turn-out of fanciers. Agreed to have a judge for each section of Canaries. Secretary was instructed to engage a separate hall for the staging of cage birds, as entries have been falling back, through the birds being staged with the poultry. Please watch CAGE BIRDS for show date. R. Taylor, Sec.

BOLDON COLLIERY F. & F.S.

Meeting held June 28, Mr J. Stephenson chair. Large number of members present. Decided to hold F.F. show July 19 in the Quoit Shed of the Workmen's Social Club, 11 classes for bird, seven rabbits, two cavies. Silver bowls for best young bird bred novice and three best young birds nominated. Members, make as many entries as possible to make the show a great success. Subs. to be paid before show. A. Hirons, Sec.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Meeting held June 28, Mr. J. Stenhouse chair. Agreed to apply for CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition. The Plumage Bill petition was signed by all those present. A wonderful case of plants and seeds belonging to Mr J. B. Clarke, Rothesay, was on view, and members derived great knowledge as to the different uses of some of the most common weeds which grow in this locality. Mr. Clarke must have spent many weary hours before he got his case in such perfect condition, and he fully deserved the vote of thanks accorded to him in his absence. —A Dickson, Sec.

RICHMOND (Surrey) C.B.S.

Meeting, held at the Imperial, Richmond, June 25, Mr. W. Phipps, chair. Final arrangements were made for F.F. Show, July 16, at the Imperial, at 1. Mr. J. Robson judge. Fanciers and friends heartily welcomed. Schedules have been sent to all members; anyone not receiving same, please apply at once to secretary. We have received a special for most points during the year, points to count at all table, F.F., and autumn shows, up to December 30, also two specials, kindly given by Messrs. Rudd and Co., Bishopsgate, E.C., for the best Norwich and Yorks., fed on their colour feed. Same can be obtained from the Hon. Sec., W. Nichols.

SCOTTISH CRESTED C.C.

Committee meeting held in Nelson's Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow, June 28, Mr. C. Campbell chair. Result of official election for current year was read, and as Messrs. McNaughten and Thomson tied, it was agreed that both gentlemen be asked to accept office on the committee. Mr. Campbell was again elected president without opposition; vice-presidents, Messrs. Moreland, Noble, McLay, Adamson, and McNaughton. Agreed that a club show be held in 1913. Several likely venues and dates were considered, and it was agreed that secretary approach Glasgow and Dis. Association, Nov. 21, 22, with a view to ascertaining if that association would be favourable to granting desired classification, etc. The following were successful in applications for patronage:—Markinch, Dunbar, Dunfermline, and Scottish National. Further consideration to be given at September meeting. The following gentlemen were elected members:—Alex. Gray, Dysart; D. Summers, Markinch; J. Lindsay, Markinch; C. Low, Broughty Ferry; G. S. Hamilton, Motherwell; G. L. Scott, Dunbar.—J. Young, Hon Sec.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Monthly meeting, held July 8, at headquarters, Rose and Crown Hotel, Waringate, Mr. T. Dawn presiding over an exceptionally good attendance. The meeting was set apart for receiving entries for the N.F. Show, and a lecture on Breeding, Exhibiting, and Moulting the Norwich Canary, by Mr. Waters, Wombwell. Mr. Waters gave us his own practical experience, and he has had a good deal, having, as he said, kept birds as a lad at school. In those days he stated he was exceptionally keen, and that keenness had grown up from boyhood to manhood. We can well imagine that the ups and downs during that lengthy period have been great and numerous, and made the lecturer all the more able to deal with his subject in a masterly manner. Pairing, Breeding, Preparing for Exhibition, and Moulting were all subjects dealt with in a manner which no one but those having had the experience of the lecturer could have emulated. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Waters for his very interesting lecture, which was appreciated by all. Ramble, July 13; see Club Notices. —J. T. Woodall, Press Corres.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held July 3, at Wentworth Cafe, Mr. F. Jones, chair, supported by the Secs.; attendance was very good, the attraction being the special table show, which brought together 71 entries. Quality all round was very good, several birds of great promise being staged. Several items of correspondence were dealt with; one was an explanation re the cup, given by Mr. Fletcher, which goes to the foreign section. Secretary was instructed to ask for CAGE BIRDS' COMPETITION for open show and to secure coupons. A vote of thanks to Mr. Bishop for kindly judging our N.F. Show was carried by acclamation, also the thanks of the meeting were given to the stewards, Messrs. Kelley and Curley. Mr. Curley also received a word of praise for guiding us on our recent ramble. The second ramble of the season has been fixed for July 19th, to Wyming Brook; meet at Malin Bridge car terminus, 2.30; friends are cordially invited, including the ladies; the man with the camera will be there. Messrs. Tomlinson and Memmott promised specials for the table shows, also Mr. Mace promised a 10s. special. Messrs. J. W. Oates and Evans were elected members. The judges, Messrs. Bloom, Mace and Taylor were thanked for their services, and Mr. Mace suitably acknowledged CHAMP., YELL., YORKS.: 1, 2, vhc, Tomlinson, 3, 4, Furness; hc, Butler; c, Sorsby and Billard. FALKIRK (Good Intent) C.B.A.

Meeting held Oddfellows' Hall, June 25, James Muir presiding. A table show of British birds was judged by W. F. Sutton, who gave every satisfaction in his awards. 1, Leishman, Linnet; 2, J. Muir, Greenie; 3, Gillespie, Goldie; 4, Hunter, Bullie; 8 birds were tabled. Three new members were elected. F.F. show takes place July 26, our next meeting day, please have a good entry and have them in by two o'clock.—Walter Clarkson, Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

At the usual monthly meeting there was a fair turnout of members, who considered at great length the various classes for schedule re annual show, and ultimately decided to have the following classes:—Norwich, eleven classes; Crest and Crest-bred, seven; Yorks, nine; Borders, eight; Cinnamons, Lizards, and Scotch Fancies, two each; Selling, four; Mules, two; British, eight; and Foreign, two. Will fanciers please support what we consider a fairly good classification?—G. Havver.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held White Lion Hotel, July 6. A good number present. M. Dixon chair. After the letters from judges were read, M. A. Brown (Gateshead) was selected for our annual show, which will be held on Nov. 29. N.F. show business was gone into, and we decided to accept entries until 10.30 on the morning of the show, July 12, although a fair number were taken; birds staged by 11. Mr. W. Reid judge. We appeal to members to bring in as large an entry as possible, and help to make the show a success.—R. H. Dixon, Sec.

STANLEY (Victoria Club) F. & F.S.

Meeting held July 6, Mr. T. H. Curry chair, who said he had received word from Mr. E. Forsdick thanking the members for their kind wishes. Final arrangements were made for our char-a-banc trip. Leaving the club at 6 a.m., we stop at Riding Mill; next stop, Hexham; stop at Wark, and on to Bellingham, where we have dinner at the Black Bull; on to Scots Gap, and next stop at Morpeth, where we have tea; on to Ponteland and Newcastle, leaving at nine o'clock for home. If we are fortunate to have a fine day, members will have something interesting to tell at our first meeting after the trip. The route chosen is supposed to be 125 miles.—R. Peart, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting held July 5, Mr. Farrer presiding over a good attendance. Mr. T. Davison, owing to his employment, could not give sufficient time to his duties as secretary, and resigned the position, and Mr. J. Peacock, 6, Whitburn Terrace, Fulwell, Sunderland, was elected to the vacancy, with Mr. F. Riseborough as assist. sec. Our chairman was appointed show manager of open show Jan. 16 and 17, 1914. The secretary was instructed to engage Miner's Hall for open show, it the fee is same as last year. Letters were read from M.C.C. re patronage, and from CAGE BIRDS re competition, and both matters are to come up for further consideration. A letter was read from the N.B. and S.F.C., asking for nine classes (Borders), and it was agreed to have that number, if patronage was granted to us. Decided to have a ramble to Haltwhistle on July 12, there being no excursion to Corbridge that day. Meet at north end of Central Station at 12.45, train leaves at 1. All fanciers are invited. The second N.F. show is to be held at headquarters, July 19; birds staged by six; judge, Mr. J. Clarke.—John Peacock, Hon. Sec.

IDLE C.B.S.

This society had another treat on July 2 at the White Bear Inn, in a lecture ably given by Mr. H. J. Chittenden on colour feeding; Mr. T. Elsegood in the chair. Mr. Chittenden handled his subject in a lucid and masterly style, the same being made more interesting by the fact that the lecturer had brought with him, through the kindness of Mr. Ramsden, some samples of pepper (hot and cold) in their natural state. Much real and good knowledge was gained from this veteran of the bird fancy, for not only did he give those present the why and wherefore of colour feeding, but he also gave his experience, which has extended over many years. The lecture was much appreciated by our members, especially by the novice section of which we have a good number. After having been on his feet for two hours Mr. Chittenden invited questions, and answered them to everybody's satisfaction. They, like Oliver Twist, ask for more first-hand knowledge such as they had been privileged to hear from the lecturer. A vote of thanks was proposed to Mr. Chittenden and the chairman, and was carried with acclamation, every member present being more than satisfied and feeling that time had been well spent. All eagerly asked the question, "When is the next lecture?".—C. E. Hylton, Sec.

GRANTHAM C.B.S.

A little more life was shown at our monthly meeting, held July 7, but the attendance was nothing near the number we expected to see after Mr. Ratcliffe's appeal to the fanciers of Grantham through CAGE BIRDS. The society is quite sound financially. A special meeting and lecture is to be held at the headquarters, Brewer's Arms, Brewer Hill, July 21, at 8, and I appeal to every member to make a special effort to attend and express his views as to what shall be our future. I think all will agree that it is high time some definite decision was arrived at and a few show dates arranged. I think as most of our members up to now have had bad luck this season, they are looking on the black side of things; but turn your heads the other way and look on the future. Come forward and push the wheel of prosperity, and I am sure we shall all push in the right direction. A hearty invitation is given to all Grantham fanciers to attend this special meeting.—H. Lowther, Hon. Sec.

Owing to the enormous number of show reports which have reached us this week, we have been compelled to hold several over until our next issue.—Editor.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Annual nest feather show held Foresters' Hall, July 5th. The entry was capital, and many grand exhibits were on view. In Yorkshires Dr. Craig benched a magnificent team, and G. L. Sampson put down some "right 'uns." Norwich contained a few sparklers, notable being those owned by Messrs. Waters, Bagnall, and Dunford. In Crests, Messrs. J. Evans and J. Memmott took leading honours with promising youngsters. British and Foreign were absolutely a gem collection, from such well-known experts as Messrs. P. Walsh, Geo. Fletcher, J. Milne, and W. Baxby. Amongst the novice birds many likely-looking specimens appeared, and with a good moult should stand a capital chance of gaining high mention later on. As regards the management, one cannot speak too highly. In Mr. Thos. Dawn the society possess a most enthusiastic chairman, and Mr. J. A. T. Woodall acts as understudy in fine style. Mr. E. C. Job, the secretary, has few equals, and Mr. R. Colton (well-known mule exhibitor) ably acts as assist. sec. The staging was very neat, and a very fine array of special prizes was on view for a young bird show. The stewards, who worked judiciously and well, were Messrs. Baxby, Matthews, Dunford, and Snape. When we left the show room many visitors were present, and success appeared assured. Mr. J. C. Barnes judged. Specials: Best in show, Mr. P. Walsh, a very charming Waxwing. Best in Classes 1, 2, 3 (Yorks), Dr. Craig; 4, 5, 6 (Nor.), A. H. Waters; 7, 8 (Crests), J. Memmott; 9 to 17, P. Walsh; 18 to 21, G. Fletcher; 22 to 24, J. Kershaw; 25 to 27, J. Matthews. BURNLEY O.S.

F.F. show held at Star Inn, June 28. Considering the bad season we have had, the entry was very good, while quality was excellent. Mr. Tom Edwards, the one time well-known Norwich exhibitor, was judge, and he did his duty very well. The winner of the breeders' challenge cup, a most handsome trophy, was Mr. Tom Lingard. The team he entered was a grand one, and a credit to any fancier. It is to be hoped that all cage bird fanciers in the district, especially novices, will join us, as we are to have table shows, lectures on colour-feeding, washing, and judging competitions, and a splendid members' show near Christmas, with plenty of specials already promised. The show was opened by Mr. Johnson, who made a few encouraging remarks, and presented the cup to Mr. Tom Lingard, the winner, who stated he would do his best to try and win it again next time.

NOR. CL. YELL.: 1, 2, breeders' chall. cup, T. Lingard, lot a gem, perfect in all points, 2nd not far behind, looks a hen; 3, J. Lingard, grand shape, but not quite as large. BUFF: 1, Spencer, good size, perfect shape; 2, J. Lingard, very sweet shape, will improve; 3, T. Lingard. TKD. YELL.: 1, 3, Baker, real typical youngsters, well staged; 2, Spencer, lovely type, nice condition. BUFF: 1, J. Lingard, one of the smartest variegated youngsters ever staged, grand exhibit all over; 2, Baker, lovely bodied, but not same qual. in head; 3, Spencer, very good example. YORKS. YELL.: 1, 4, J. Lingard, grand shaped Yorkie, variegated, well drawn, good legs, shows himself for all he is worth; 2, 3, Whittaker, really good shaped birds. BUFF: 1, 2, J. Lingard, pair really good shaped Yorkies. A.O.V.: 1, Spencer, very fine Dark Goldie Mule, with a good moult will make a stormer. BRIT. HARD.: 1, 2, 3, 4, Barwise, grand team, Greenie, Goldie, Siskin, and Redpoll.—A. E. Barwise.

QUEENSBURY C.B.S.

Second F.F. show of season held July 5 at Halfway House Inn; 46 birds faced Mr. A. Jowett, whose awards gave general satisfaction. CLASS 1: 1, Blagbrough; 2, Jowett; 3, Pearson; 4, Fowle. NORTH WALES C.B.S.

Show held at Assembly Rooms, Carnarvon, July 5. Entries were very satisfactory on the whole, quality being excellent all round. The young bird classes were well filled, and some good ones were staged. Most of the old birds are well-known winners. Challenge cup for most points Canaries, bred 1913, was won by Mr. Jones, chairman, with a team of nice Yorks. Best Mule or Hyb., Mr. R. E. Griffith, Hon. Sec., Goldie-Bullie, in food fettle. Specials for most points were awarded in every class. Mr. J. Kershaw, Menai Bridge, judged.

KILMARNOCK C.B.F.C.

2nd annual F.F. show held July 5, in Temperance Hall. Although breeding has been giving very poor results up to date, members staged some promising youngsters, including Crestbreds, Norwich and Bord., and Mules. Mr. W. Guthrie judged Borders and C.B. Mr. J. Johnstone Norwich, Mules and Brit., and their awards were well received.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

The young bird show of the City and Suburban A.C.B., held at headquarters, the Church Institute, Paddington-st., W., on July 5, was on the whole very satisfactory, there being the excellent total of 191 exhibits. The Canary sections were quite good in view of the moderate breeding season so many fanciers seem to have experienced. We noticed some very promising youngsters, including a really nice Crest, bred by the chairman, Mr. W. Shepherd; while the Nor. and Yorks were good all through. The silver cup for best youngster fell to Mr. G. Thurley (another triumph for the novices), a very taking marked Norwich deservedly securing this honour. Other chief specials fell to Mr. F. J. Martin (champion points cup); F. Knight (Canary points cup); E. C. Offord (Brit. points cup); while Mrs. Salter and Mrs. Thynne tied for the Sayer cup, and Messrs. Offord and Clark for the Harris cup; most points by a lady, Mrs. Thynne; best lady's Canary, Mrs. Salter. The management was again in the able hands of Mr. V. Wynn, and was at every point absolutely A1. The splendid hall looked at its best, and the staging reflected every credit upon Messrs. Sanders and Rolls. Valuable assistance as stewards, etc., was lent by Mrs. Thynne and Messrs. A. W. Curtis, J. Pooley, F. Thynne (the popular assist. sec.), and other willing helpers. Messrs. Robson and Silver judged.

NOTTINGHAM (High School Pet Show).

A garden party was held June 16th to celebrate the 400th anniversary. A nice exhibition of boys' pets and hobbies was held, which was very interesting to the visitors. Three money prizes were given to each kind of pet, all entries free. Cage birds formed a nice class and included Foreign, British, and Canaries. A large table was filled with silver and silver plated prizes, including three large silver cups, all of which had been won by Mr. Robert Holmes, the judge, who appeared to give satisfaction in all classes.

SHETTLESTON C.B.S.

F.F. show held July 5, in Good Templars' Hall. Entries numbered 47. The Mule and Hybrid classes had to be cancelled owing to lack of entries, and the committee decided to have a show for Mules and Hybrids in August, date to be fixed at next meeting. Mr. Smart (Carnwyle) judged and got through his work in a very able manner.

REDRUTH.

Redruth was gay with bunting on July 2-3, the occasion being the Redruth Exhibition Society's annual show. Our section was nicely staged in a tent set apart for cage birds and fur. The tent was roomy, but at times the pressure was great, and it was somewhat difficult to see the exhibits, so numerous were the visitors. Entries were slightly in advance of last year. Among the Canaries the Norwich were the chief feature, and taking them all round they were a good lot, although some of the local birds inclined a little to lightness of build, yet excelling in quality of feather. Mr. Pascoe, Truro, had out a strong team and did well with them. Mr. Ferrill, Redruth, staged a lovely buff as also did Mr. Kemp. Yorks. were not particularly numerous, but good; the Cornishmen certainly have the type. Special for best went to Mr. Julian for a very smart attractive buff. Mr. Thomas staged the winner in the yellows. It is many years since we saw classes for groups of Canaries; they certainly attracted a lot of attention, and some of the groups were beautifully put down. Hybrids, British, and Foreign were quite a show in themselves. Mr. Collins, Camborne, having quite a field day among the former, he certainly staged a wonderful team and deserved his success. One of the best classes in British was the one for small Hardbills, there was not a bad bird in the collection. Foreign were an interesting lot. Mr. Woolcock won spl. for rarest bird with a beautiful Aurora Finch. The show was splendidly managed, Messrs. Opie and Kemp having everything up-to-date, they were ably assisted by some willing workers, amongst whom were: Messrs. Ferrill, Sherman, Crews, Nelson, Clemo, Smith, Opie, Martin, and Keen. All the birds were packed and despatched within an hour of the closing of the show. Mr. H. Norman judged.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN!

Our photo depicts Mr. E. Abbott, of Stratford, and his pet cage-bred cock Bullfinch. In the smaller (inset) photo this Bullie and his wife (a hen Yorkshire) are seen. The drawing is of a Canary-Bullfinch Hybrid, the kind of bird the couple might have produced had their eggs proved fertile. See letter on page 28 this week.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

"PHOSTO"

Don't begin moulting without "Phosto." Don't give your birds tonics and medicines which do no good; give them "Phosto," which will build up the whole system, and enable them to stand the strain of moulting. Don't wait until your birds show signs of softness, start at once to build them up. "Phosto" is a great food, which has now become famous. Give a little with the colour food. A shilling may save you pounds. Don't forget, "Phosto" improves size, and don't forget the name. Sold in tins, 1/-, 2/6, 4/6.—Judge Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

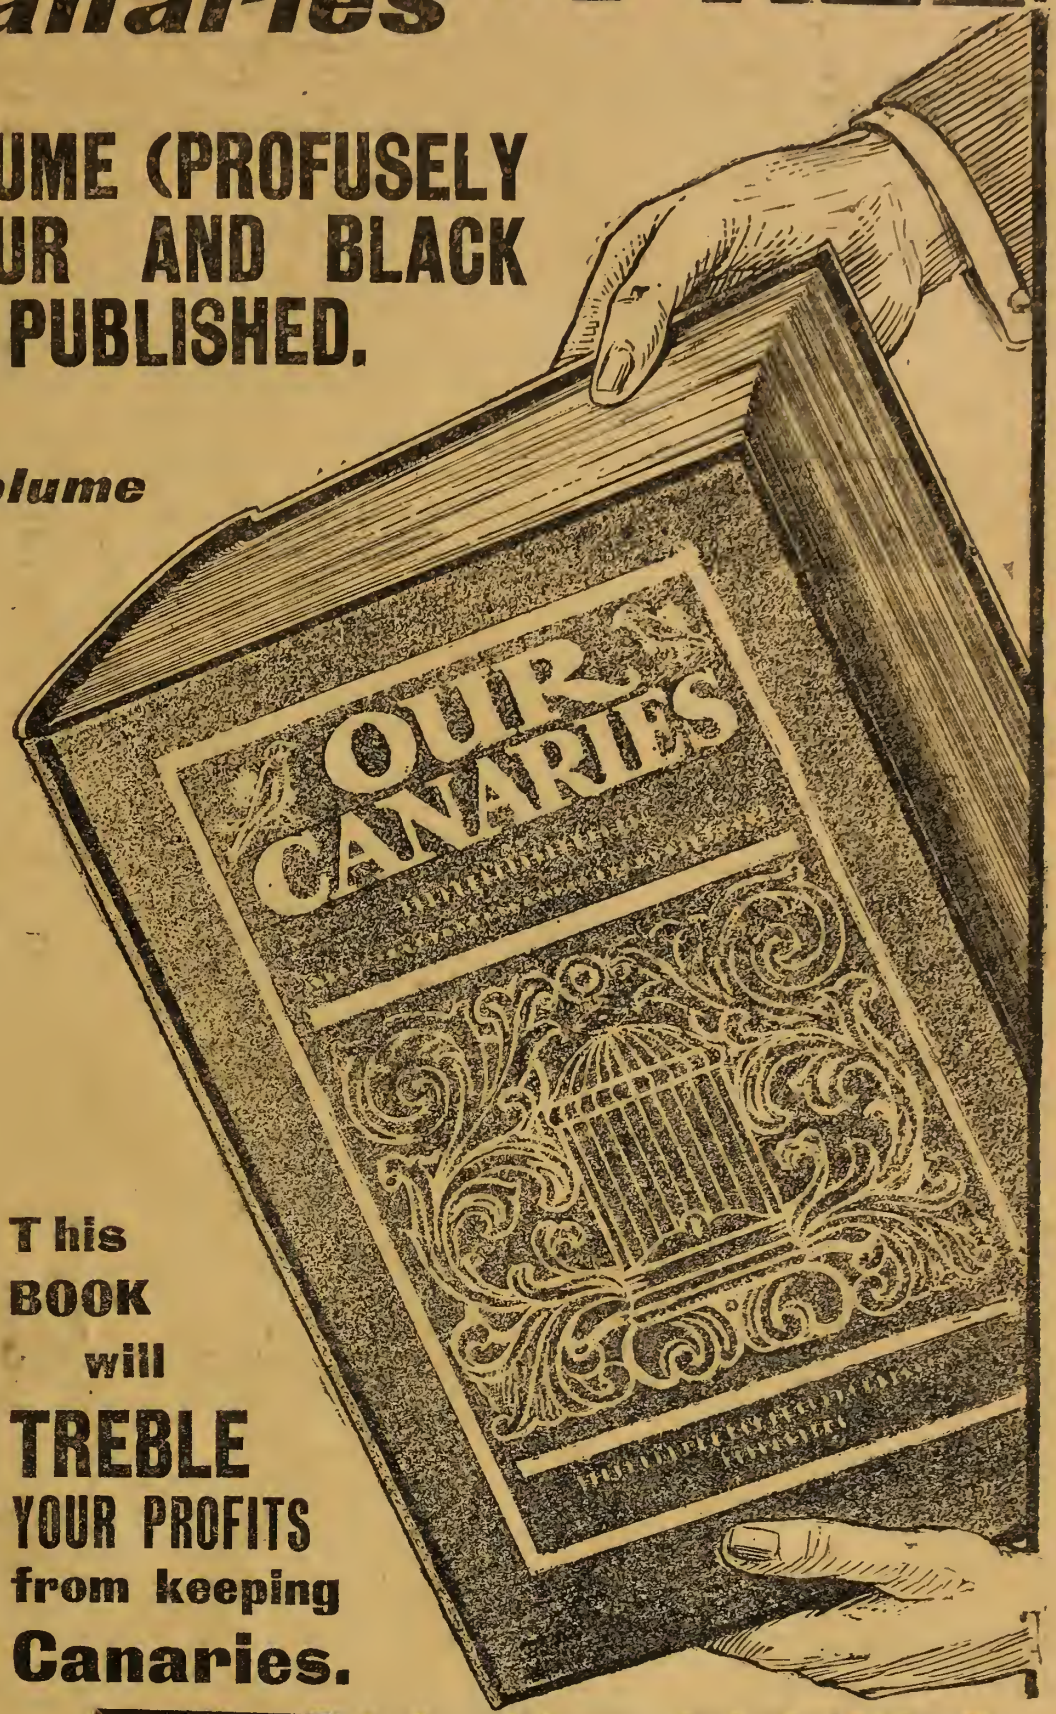
MOST MAGNIFICENT VOLUME (PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED IN COLOUR AND BLACK AND WHITE) EVER PUBLISHED.

How to obtain this Big Volume for 1/- only NOW.



IN the accompanying drawing (which is true to scale) notice the relative size of the hand and that of the book. From this you will be able to judge the size of this superb volume. Not only is it the largest volume ever published upon Canaries and the only exhaustive treatise upon these lovely creatures, but it is written by the ablest authorities—men who have devoted a lifetime to the study of their habits, and who have been exhibitors, first prize winners, and judges at the principal shows for many years. The Editor of this volume and the principal contributor is Claude St. John, perhaps the best authority on Canaries in the world, and among the other contributors are those well-known judges, C. A. House and G. E. Weston.

Our Bird-keeper's Guide, by Allen Silver and T. R. Trower. How to keep and feed every bird. Given free with order. A valuable little book.

"The Red Feed"

The greatest colouring food in the world. This wonderful Pepper cannot be excelled, and with Hot Natal and another ingredient, which not only gives brilliant colour, but that beautiful sheen which is so delightful in one's birds, the Red Feed must become distinguished. A change from one Pepper to another in anticipation of finding "the ideal" is well worth making. A trial will convince you that the change is for the better. No "perhaps" about this feed; it is absolutely IT. Sold in tins, 2/6 and 4/9: Judge Silk, The Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

EGGERTINE

1/3 and 2/6, tin free, the Egg Food of all Egg Foods, also mixed ready as a colour food.

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING
And British Bird Champion

Please read what others say: "261, Ashton-rd., Newton, Hyde. Dear Sir,—The Lark you sent is singing daylight and gaslight, even up to 10.30 and 11 p.m. Very well satisfied.—H. Walsh to H. Allen." "44, Hopwood-st., Accrington. Dear Sir,—Linnet arrived safe and sound; a beautiful bird for the money. —J. A. Wood, to H. Allen." "8, Lower Hill-st., Blaenavon.—Dear Sir,—Bird arrived quite safe. I am very pleased with same. I consider it a splendid size and colour. Thanking you for same.—Yours truly, John Jones, to H. Allen. "Old Shop, Abercrave, Breconshire. Dear Sir,—I received the birds quite safe, and never have I received a better Linnet than the one that you sent me not for three times the money.—W. Thomas to H. Allen." Linnets from the same place as the champion Linnet of the world. They make the gamest Linnets ever carried to a contest. They can run like German Canaries for voice; they have no equal. Now, to give every working man a chance, they are 1/-, 1/6, and a few gems, with beautiful quality notes, 2/6; one of these birds won 1st prize in the all-England contest at Castleford on Whit-Monday, beating 74 of the best birds. Linnets, taught by the champion Linnet of the world, will sing anywhere, right for catching, with new cage, and my book of secrets, 3/6, 4/6; and a few toppers, 5/-; they are all champions; splendid young Seifert Rollers, singing grand, with beautiful quality notes, taught by my champion Canary, winner of 50 1st prizes, 4/6; a few real toppers, 5/6; a few hand-reared Larks, singing at full voice, indoors and out, 3/6 and 4/6; everybody welcome to hear my birds sing, and see what they are buying. Only honest dealing done with me. Postcard before birds. Plenty in stock, no waiting: Harry Allen, British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds. (780)

FRED ALLEN, ORIGINAL LINNET KING
ORIGINAL BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

and owner of the undefeated champion singing Linnet of the world (cup winner). My birds have won all before them. A Leeds gentleman offered £8 for my champion and a Leeds dealer offered £6 (letters for proof), but £100 would not purchase him. He is the best living, and I know a good bird (see Nutshell Series, No. 2). I have a grand lot from the same place; they make the proudest ever carried to a contest. They down their wings and sing at anything; this class of bird can only be got from me; 1s., 1/6, and 2/- each. They run like German Rollers; they have the exact tone of my champion. Contest cages, 1/- extra. I have a few good time singers, taught under my champion winner of the open to all England contest at Sheffield a few weeks ago. Now, these are real masters, and cannot be beaten for contest time singing and catching; they sing out as well as indoors; price 1/-, 1/6 each. New back cage, 6d. extra. Now, exhibitors, remember the winners I sent out last season (see last week's advt. for a few leading men). I know what is wanted, so if you want a real class bird, try me. I have the finest and largest Norwich type cock Linnets in England, they are showing grand rich colour, and are real giants, same class as last year's winners; price 1/6, 2/-, and a few extra gems, 2/6. Please note.—All my winners were sold for not more than 2/6, so why pay more elsewhere? I have a grand lot of foreigners. Budgerigars, 5/9; Spice Birds, 2/-; Javas, 2/-; Mannikins, 2/-; Cutthroats, 3/- per pair; Amazon Parrot, good, £2; Spanish, 30/- cwt.; German rape, 17/6; English, 17/-; hemp, 14/-; mixed canary, good, 18/6. Send stamp for prices of seeds and cages, etc. I claim to be the cheapest and leading man in Yorkshire. I am in no way connected with any other firm, so send direct to the only British Bird Champion and Seed Specialist: Fred Allen, Porter-st. Aviaries, Hull. (776)

HOUSE'S Canary Manual, 1/2, by C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

DO you know just what benefit you are deriving from your hobby? It is necessary to keep some account, and it may be kept in the most compact and handy form if you use, "The Stock Book, and Breeding-room Register," compiled by G. E. Weston; this makes bird-breeding easy. In addition to all that is required to enable the breeder to see at a glance how he stands, there are many hints for times of emergency. Price 7d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

HOW TO SEX YOUNG CANARIES.

A final selection from the host of interesting methods revealed by our recent competiton.

Put five or six birds in a cage together; now put a piece of green stuff between the wires and note the birds that are most quarrelsome—those are the cocks.—C. Rowsell (Chalfont St. Peter).

When the young are placed in the flight cages take notice which do the most fighting. We all know that males, whether humans, or birds, or beasts, do the most fighting. You will find that nine times out of ten the birds that fight most are cocks.—P. Shawcross (Hindley Green).

Having been a bird stuffer for many years, I have always found with male birds of all species that their feathers grow to the breast bone and cover the abdomen; the hens do not have any feathers on the breast bone nor abdomen.—Joseph Mallett (Cranleigh).

The Swagger of the Male.

A cock is always bolder and brighter in the eye; has more swagger and alertness, raising its head feathers occasionally. Buff cocks have more colour round the eye and head; in yellows the hens have a buffish sheen down the back of the head, continuing onwards for some distance down the back. Young cocks are generally stronger.—S. W. Beresford (Hornsey).

Put young birds in a cage, and with finger nails scratch bottom of cage. The cocks will answer by chirping; the hens won't.—J. McQuilken (Glasgow).

I have always found the following method most successful: The young cocks, as a rule, have bolder eyes, and a greater depth of colouring on the top of the head, the saddle, and on the butts of the wings, and a sort of "eyebrow," formed of rich coloured feathers, which distinguishes them from the hens. In the hens no such points are noticeable, they being paler in colour than the cocks. Another good tip is to take a young yellow bird in the hand, blow back the neck feathers, if a black tick presents itself I have always found it to prove a hen bird; no such tick appears in the cock bird.—Chas. Kelsey (Salford).

When not fully fledged the difference is very noticeable. The eyes of the cocks are larger and more oval, and their beaks more hooked. At 5 or 6 weeks old the throat of the cock is full, that of the hen slopes back from the beak. The cocks are more backward in feeding themselves.—Miss Ida Cheshyre (Cheltenham).

The cocks carry rather more colour than the hens, especially round the eyes and on the wing butts, also on the top of the tails, and, as a rule, are bolder looking and larger than the hens. Most young hens are very pale on the forehead.—R. Whitehead (Fartown, Huddersfield).

A Real Safe One.

Get in a position where you can see them and they cannot see you when they are making their attempts at singing, which they do when only a few weeks old. Take notice of the ones that are trying as though they mean business, swelling their throats out like old birds. You can be sure they are cocks. Then make a note of any distinguishing feature about them so as to be sure when removing them. I have sexed hundreds by this method and consider it a real safe one.—J. Hayter (Southampton).

There is only one sure way, and that is colour; especially is this so with the feathers on the rump. Take a nest of young six weeks old, and examine them; you will find that some are much brighter than others. Cage them up and you will find that in 99 cases out of 100 they are the cocks.—Geo. Street (Crouch End).

TO INTEREST THE CHILDREN.

Happy Idea of a League Member

Notes by the Secretary of "Cage Birds League."

The name of our member, Mr. G. H. Peck, of Bexley, will be familiar to all original members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE as the winner of our £5 prize for most recruits during our first year. This enthusiastic bird-lover is never happy unless he is doing something for the good of our hobby. Like all members of our League, he believes that the hobby of bird-keeping is a worthy one, and he is always exercising his mind as to the best means of spreading its interest, especially among those who are not too well blest with this world's goods.

He now writes me that he is a member of the Westgate House (Dartford) Workingmen's Club, a club which has attached to it a fur and feather society, and that he has conceived the idea of running a Decorated Cage Competition among the children of the members of his club. In furtherance of the idea, he wishes to get a hundred Redpolls for free distribution among the children who would be unable to buy a bird for themselves for the purpose of entering into the competition.

Mr. Peck himself has already given a number of these birds to the children of the members, is giving a cup as the chief prize, and has guaranteed that every competitor shall have a prize of some kind. He says in his letter: "I acquainted a gentleman last evening with what I intended doing, and he has given £1 towards a prize fund, and I have several other promises. There will be a cup, medal, and diploma as first prize, and so the prizes will run down, but every child shall have something, as I am determined to bring these young fanciers along. If there is any profit from the competition, it will be given back to the children at their annual party at the Working-men's Club."

In furtherance of such an admirable movement I have great pleasure in complying with Mr. Peck's request that I should appeal to brother fanciers to help him by sending along to him, at 5, Baldwyn's Road, Bexley, Kent, some Redpolls as gifts to these young fanciers.

Mr. Peck says: "I catch a few birds myself at the proper season, and later on I can make up in good British birds to any fancier that will help these children." I am sure that even without this promise there are many members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE who will take a pleasure in helping Mr. Peck to carry out his very laudable object. It will be understood, of course, that birds are to be sent to Mr. G. H. Peck at the address given, and not to me.

TERMS OF MEMBERSHIP.

ORDINARY MEMBERS shall pay an annual subscription of Two Shillings and Sixpence.

JUNIOR MEMBERS.—Members under the age of fourteen years at the date of joining shall pay an annual subscription of One Shilling.

VICE PRESIDENTS.—An annual subscription of not less than Half-a-Guinea shall constitute the subscriber a Vice President.

LIFE MEMBERS.—A donation of not less than Five Guineas in one amount shall constitute the donor a Life Member.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS.—The payment to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE of a legacy of £20 and upwards shall constitute the administrator or executor making the payment an Honorary Life Member. A form of bequest will be sent, post free, on application.

Leaflets setting forth the aims and objects of the LEAGUE will be forwarded, post free, to any reader upon application.

THE LEAGUE BADGES.

Neat and unobtrusive badges are supplied to members, without any charge beyond their subscriptions as above. The badges may be had either in button form, or mounted in rolled gold in two forms, one as a brooch for ladies or for cycling caps or coat lapel, and the other as a pendant for bracelet or watch-chain. The kind required should be specified clearly.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
Secretary CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held July 3, Mr. T. C. Crawhall chair. Following new members were elected: Messrs. R. Winter, Tyne Dock; S. Lindsay, Birtley; J. Cosser and A. Noble, Newcastle; T. Parker, South Shields; J. Nicholson, Haltwhistle. Correspondence read from Mr. J. G. Hutchison, Mr. S. Harrison, E. Short, Esq., M.P., and Northern Norwich P.H.C. Mr. W. Curry was appointed show manager in place of Mr. J. C. Atkinson resigned. The recommendation of the committee re show classification, etc., was carried; classes practically the same as last year. Mr. Curry (Norwich), Mr. R. Tindale (Yorkshire), and Mr. J. Johnson (Border Fancy) had a debate on their different varieties, which was listened to very attentively, and at the finish they were accorded a hearty vote of thanks. The following gentlemen said a few words after the debate: Messrs. C. Farrer, J. Mackenzie, C. G. Patterson, and the chairman. At next meeting, August 7, there will be a debate, "British versus Canary." Mr. J. Maddison will champion the British, and Mr. T. C. Crawhall the Canary. Will those members who have tickets for N.P. kindly let me know how many they have disposed of? Subs. now due; I shall be pleased to receive same.—J. W. Reed.

Twitterings.

Please notify my change of address from Evesham Road, Headless Cross, to 35, South Street, Redditch, writes Mr. T. Herbert.

We hear that Mr. J. E. Jones (Harlech) will judge the cage bird section at Festiniog Horticultural Association Show, held August 30th.

In report of Redruth Show, in the Yorkshire Clear Buff class, 2nd prize should read Andrew, not Peters, writes Mr. J. P. Andrew.

I have removed from St. Anne's Road, Southport, to 32, Church Road, St. Annes-on-Sea, writes Mr. Jos. Wright. Will show secretaries please take note?

South Shields C.B.S. will hold their young bird show on July 26, at the Cyprus Hotel, and Mr. Reid, of Sunderland, will judge, writes Mr. Smith, Hon. Sec.

The Metropolitan C.B.A. young bird show is held to-day (Saturday) at Kelvedon Hall (near Fire Station) Walham Green with, we hear, a record entry in all classes.

Our secretary, Mr. James McHolme, having resigned, I have been appointed secretary of the East Lothian C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Fairgrieve (10, Hope Park, Haddington).

I have been appointed secretary of the South Moor Social Club F.F. and C.B.S., and all business concerning the society should be sent to me, writes Mr. George Lane, 7, Moore Street, South Moor, Stanley, S.O.

The second ramble of the Sheffield C.B.S. will be held to-day, July 19th, to Wyming Brook; meet at 2.30, at the Malin Bridge car terminus, writes Mr. J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec. Tea at the "Grouse and Trout." All friends invited.

Will societies desiring patronage of the Cumberland and Westmorland Yorkshire C.C., apply at once, as we wish to have this matter settled at our next meeting, August 6th, writes Mr. J. Huntington (19, Nelson Street, Maryport).

To obtain the best results in colour feeding, fanciers should use Ramsden's pure peppers. These peppers are pure—are packed in tins only—and orders are executed same day as received. Ramsden's peppers are acknowledged by experts to be the finest, both in colour and quality, possible to procure.—Advt.

The Highgate and Hampstead C.B.S., we hear, are having a ramble through Epping Forest on Saturday, July 19th. Meet at Junction Road Station (Midland Railway) at 2 p.m. Train leaves at 2.10, fare 1s. return. Anyone wishing to join party can do so at the start or any station en route.

Owing to the bad breeding season, we have decided to abandon our Nest Feather Show for this season, writes Mr. H. Jameson, Sec., Bury C.B.S. We have secured the services of Mr. James Hopkins, of Bolton, until recently a very successful exhibitor of the Norwich and Yorkshire, to judge our autumn show, held November 29.

Owing to pressure of business, Mr. E. Richards has resigned the secretaryship of the Upper Rhondda C.B.S., and I have been appointed in his place, writes Mr. E. Thomas, 2, New Dumfries Street, Treherbert. All matters concerning the club should be addressed to me. Will members make a special effort to attend next meeting, July 26th, when important matters will be discussed.

The annual show of the Falmouth and Dis. C.B.A., confined to Cornwall, will be held on Wednesday, October 8th, writes Mr. W. J. Medlin, the hon. sec., when Mr. J. Davies will make the awards. The committee has secured the large Assembly Room for this year's show at the Unionist Club. This is a well lighted room, with every accommodation for such a show. It is hoped that all Cornish fanciers will give us good support, as we had to meet a loss on last year's show of £4 10s.

Arrangements are now well in hand for our First Feather Show on July 26, writes Mr. J. Cosgrove, Hon. Sec. Uddingston and Dis. C.B.S. I have visited most of the local bird fanciers, and find they have done extremely well, both in quantity and quality. Intending members are requested to send on their subscription, 2s. 6d., early. Mr. Morrison F. Hamilton judges. The judges have been selected for the open show on Nov. 22. Next meeting 23rd inst.

We learn that the Upper Rhondda C.B.S. hold their show on Oct. 29, with Mr. W. Mundell as judge.

The next show of the Llanelly C.B.S., writes Mr. D. John, the sec., is fixed for Tuesday, January 13, 1914. Judges: Canaries, Mr. H. W. Battye; British, Foreign and Mules, Mr. C. Houlton.

Societies wishing the patronage of the Southern Border Fancy Club should apply to F. Moore, 49, Kelmscott Road, Clapham Junction, London, not later than July 23rd. Classification required, four champion and two novice classes.

The Border Fancy Canary Club's list of members for 1913 will be sent to printers in a few days, so fanciers wishing to become members should forward their names to me at once, writes Mr. M. Jamieson, Hon. Sec. (3, Green Terrace, Hawick).

In connection with the Bradford West C.B.A., there is to be a ramble to Luddenden Foot, July 19th, conducted by Mr. W. Crabtree, our worthy president. Meet at Four Lane Ends, Girlington, to catch the 2.30 tram car for Thornton. Members and friends cordially invited.—A. Cooper, Sec.

OBITUARY.

It is with the deepest regret, writes Mr. J. Cook, Sec., Leicester C.B.S., that I have to announce the death of the wife of one of our most respected members, Mr. Brooks. I am sure his many friends and brother fanciers will join with us in expressing our deepest sympathy with him in his sad bereavement.

Mr. J. Greenhalgh, Manchester.

I am very sorry to have to announce the death of Mr. James Greenhalgh, aged 79 years, writes Mr. J. Davey, Hon. Sec., North Manchester C.B.S. He was one of the oldest fanciers in Manchester, having been a bird-lover from youth. He kept Yorks., Norwich, Borders, and had bred some Mules this season, having had a good breeding season. He was always at the local shows, and I understand that he was one of the first members of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. He always had a kind word for the novice, and would tell anything that he knew. I am sure that all fanciers will join with me in offering our sympathy with the relatives of the deceased gentleman.

No N.F. Show at Gateshead.

Gateshead and District C.B.S. nest feather has been cancelled, owing to unforseen circumstances, writes Mr. W. Curry, sec. The date of same was to have been July 26.

Hull's Hard Luck.

We are informed that owing to unfortunate circumstances over which the present officials have had no control, the members of the Hull C.B.S. have been compelled to reluctantly abandon the idea of holding an open show during the present year.

A Novel Item!

At the Hornsey and Wood Green Society's young bird show, during the evening one of the members showed a Yorkshire Canary that had been fed and reared entirely by hand with the use of the "Filup" Feeder. He gave a demonstration how the feeder was used, the bird still evidencing a strong regard for its "foster-mother." The bird was 23 days old, and created a deal of interest.

Cage Birds 1913 Annual: A Few Copies now for Sale.

Some time back we had to announce the fact that our very successful "Annual" for 1913 was out of print. We, however, succeeded in getting together about 50 copies from various agents, and have a few of these left, which can be obtained direct from our offices at the usual prize; viz., 8d. post free. Orders should be sent early, as there is no possibility of more of this splendid edition being on sale. Please note that these copies can only be obtained through the post, direct from 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

The Abharacanluarcrach.

[In a book published by Messrs. Witherby, mention is made of a bird called the Abharacanluarcrach.]

Should an abharacanluarcrach
Alight on your garden plot,
Pray don't be alarmed—no harm will be done.
I expect he ain't half a bad lot!

He really can't help it, poor chap.
Most likely he thinks it a shame
That science profound without asking his leave
Should give him this jaw-splitting name.

Our names are upon us all thrust,
For which, as the Welshman says, "Ach!"
So lot's sympathise right up to the eyes
With the poor abharacanluarcrach.

And when in your yard he alights,
No doubt, you can make him quite tame,
If you tickle his wings and give him nice things—
And take care not to mention his name!

"Idris." (In the "Western Mail.")

GUESSING THE "GHOST."

Hundreds of Readers Fail to Spot the Sparrow!

The problem set for our readers of identifying the "Ghost" of a bird published in our issue of July 5, proved, as we certainly anticipated, somewhat more difficult than the first one concerning the Nuthatch, for, whereas more than two hundred readers then succeeded, the readers who recognised the second "ghost" as being that of the ever-present House Sparrow number just under a hundred. The post cards conveying the correct solution were well mixed up, and the fortunate one to be drawn was that sent by Mrs. W. ARMSTRONG, Sandymount, Blackrock, Dundalk.

Will Mrs. Armstrong kindly let us know whether she wishes a cash prize, or books to the value of five shillings, and, if the latter, which books she would prefer.

The incorrect guesses came in enormous numbers, and it would seem that the very fact that the House Sparrow is a bird which must be known to absolutely everyone put most of the solvers off the scent, for a very great majority of our readers seem to have exercised their ingenuity in naming the rarest birds which could possibly meet the case, and, may we say, some of which could not by any chance be correct. It has often occurred to us that although every man, woman and child in our country must know a House Sparrow when he or she sees one, and that is every day throughout the year, yet many would be "floored" if they were asked to describe offhand the plumage and markings of our familiar and mischievous little friend. The result of the competition has proved this to be the case.

The shape of the bib of the male House Sparrow in breeding plumage is quite characteristic, and was exactly depicted in the drawing. Notwithstanding this, readers mentioned among them every British bird which has a bib of any kind, and some which have no bib at all! The favourite among the losers was the Grey Wagtail, whose bib is very different in shape to the one indicated in the drawing; the legs, too, should have been all-sufficient to show that the "ghost" could not be that of a Wagtail. Buntings were the chosen of many; even the Corn Bunting, which has no bib at all, was sent by some as a solution. Many guessed the "Ghost" to be that of the Great Tit, and some sent the Blue Tit. Among the "impossibles" may be mentioned the Robin, Greenfinch, Wheatear, Bramblefinch, Ring Ouzel, Bullfinch, Hawfinch, Linnet, Pipit, Magpie, Skylark, Chaffinch, Swallow, Blue-throated Warbler, Shrike, Blackcap, etc. Even the Jenny Wren was sent in by one or two!

We noticed that a certain keen Sheffield "blade" got over the rule restricting each competitor to one attempt at the solution, by inducing his family and relations to tackle the problem. Curiously enough (?) they one and all thought it a different bird. Their eight attempts read—Hawfinch, Waxwing, Tree Sparrow, Cirl Bunting, Reed Bunting, Grey Wagtail, Great Tit and House Sparrow!

Robin Finds Scarecrow Useful.

Mr. J. Miles, of Llanishen, is amazed at the cool nerve of a Robin. Having erected a fearsome revolving scarecrow on his strawberry beds, Mr. Miles found that a Robin had got into the opening where the winds and rain had blown away the rags from the scarecrow's manly bosom, and had made a nest on a batten across the back of the body. Not only that, but the bird showed its contempt by laying and hatching five eggs there.

Country Rambles.

The following rambles have been arranged: Larkhall C.B.A., July 19, to Bonnington, Falls of Clyde; Queensbury C.B.S., July 20, to Eldwick, etc., leave Granby Hotel 12.30; Sheffield C.B.S., July 19, to Wyming Brook, meet Malin Bridge car terminus 2.30; Highgate, Hampstead C.B.S., July 19, to Epping Forest, train 2.10 p.m. from Junction Rd. (M.R.) station; Bradford West C.B.A., July 19, meet Four Lane Ends, Girlington, to catch 2.30 car for Thornton.

THE PATRONAGE OF SPECIALIST CLUBS.

Societies desiring the patronage of the specialist clubs at their 1913 shows should apply as follows, stating classification given, and judges appointed: National Green Marked Y.C.S., Mr. J. Chambers, 22, St. Anne's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds; National British Bird and Mule Club, Mr. J. P. Carr, 45, Overdale Road, S. Ealing, W.; latest date, 26th July. Southern Norwich P.C., Mr. F. S. Matthes, 34, Rotherhithe New Road, S.E.; Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., Mr. R. Garnett, 8, Leeds Road, Windhill, Shipley; Yorks. and Lancs. Brit. B. and M.C., T. H. Inman, 43, Derby Road, Thornbury, Bradford; Cinnamon C.C., Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, 68, Brunswick Road, Liverpool; Northern Border and S.F.C.C., Mr. M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Midland Counties Y.C.C., Mr. J. Sheppard, 129, Floyer Road, Small Heath, Birmingham; Fife and Kinross N.P.C., A. Dickson, 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty; Southern Border F.C., F. Moore, 49, Kelmscott Road, Clapham Junction, S.W.; closing date July 23rd. Will secretaries please notify us to the latest date on which applications can be received?

REMARKABLE HYBRIDS REPORTED BRED.

We have this week to record the breeding of two remarkable Hybrids, although it must be understood that we do so with all reserve, as no opportunity of seeing them has, of course, come our way.

Orange Bishop-Canary!

One is a hybrid between the Orange Bishop and Canary. The former is a handsome (when in nuptial plumage) and popular member of the Weaver family, and we think we are correct in saying that no hybrid between any member of this family and a Canary has hitherto been produced. An account of this interesting happening will be found in a letter on Page 28, from Mr. F. J. Weaire (of Snodland, Kent), in whose aviaries these new hybrids are being reared.

The other hybrid is one between a cock Yellowhammer and a Canary, and the manner in which the news of this reached us will be found detailed in the appended paragraph. Rumours of Yellowhammer-Canary Hybrids have been afloat before, but we believe that a specimen accepted as authentic has never yet been exhibited. We hope that in neither case may there prove some "flaw" in the "diamond."

Yellowhammer-Canary!

At the first feather show of the Kirkintilloch C.B.C. held July 12, Mr. W. Stewart exhibited two hybrids said to be between cock Yellowhammer and a hen Canary. These naturally created a sensation. One of them (reports the secretary) showed the V-mark on the head very distinctly. From the report these birds appear to have been placed 2nd and 3rd by the judge, Mr. W. Hutchison, of Glasgow.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULES.

IMPORTANT!

Fill up and post at once the form found on page 19. The result will delight you.

Over £200 in Cash Specials Waiting: Are You Participating?

"Cage Birds" Great Championship Scheme Continues to Gain Favour and Sails Steadily Towards the Harbour of Success.

OUR endeavours to meet the wishes of our readers in every possible and reasonable way in regard to competing for the £200 cash and other prizes offered in our great Championship Competition are, we are glad to say, evidently appreciated, as the flow of congratulatory letters increases in volume, societies continue to notify their acceptance of the provisions of the scheme and orders for coupons from exhibitors grow larger daily. The engraving of the coupons is being proceeded with; the process is a somewhat slow one, however, and we hardly anticipate that we shall secure delivery from the printers until next week end, but immediately they come to hand all orders will be dispatched in rotation.

The Specials at the Palace.

We had thought to have been in a position to make an announcement in this issue concerning a modification in the method of distributing the special prize money amongst the coupon birds at the Palace Show, in the final competition of the season, but owing to a matter outside our control we find ourselves compelled to defer publishing our proposals in this direction until next week. When made public we think they will meet with widespread approval, and serve to still further enhance the merit and value of our great scheme.

We may mention that societies joining in our scheme during the last few days include:—

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.
DONCASTER C.B.S.
LLANELLY C.B.S.
LONGTON C.B.S.
NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS O.S.
SOUTH CO. DUBLIN C.B.S.

and the preliminary orders for coupons range from 4, 5 and 6 dozen up to 100, which is the number booked by the Longton Society.

The Matter of Unused Coupons.

We have been asked this week whether, in the event of an exhibitor winning a cash special and diploma at his first show, he will be able to return any coupons he may have by him unused. We cannot see our way to accept coupons back under these circumstances, but there would be no objection raised to the said exhibitor disposing of any coupons he is in a position to dispense with to a fellow-fancier desirous of using them in the competition. Diploma winners must, of course, take care to keep by them sufficient coupons to cover their needs at the Palace Show (vide rule 8). Every coupon will bear a distinctive number, and a record of them will be kept at CAGE BIRDS offices.

The Equal Chance of the Novice.

We have from the very first stated that it is our intention to cater equally for the novice exhibitor as for the champion. And we mean it, too, up to the hilt. Evidently, however, up to the present we have not made our intentions sufficiently clear—or stated them sufficiently definitely—with regard to at least one aspect of the competition. We are moved to this remark by the following letter, which reached us the other day from a valued supporter:—

Sir,—As an exhibitor who is very interested in your Championship Scheme, it seems to me, if I read your rules aright, that it is next to impossible for an exhibitor in the open novice classes to win a diploma. Presuming there are sufficient competitors, after the 10s. cash special has been awarded in each section, novice and champion, the birds will be judged for the diplomas. My point therefore is this: If one diploma only is awarded to each variety, the novice exhibitor has got to compete against the champion every time, and in my opinion his chance of beating the champion is somewhat slender. You may possibly say there are as good birds in the open novice classes as in the champion. I have often heard this said myself, and quite admit that in a good many instances it is true, but generally speaking I do not think the novice could hope or expect to compete with the champion with any chance of success. This being the case, from my point of view the novice will go to the wall, and the final at the Crystal Palace will practically be composed of champions.

Leyton. A. W. FARMER.

If Mr. Farmer's views were correct, it would naturally upset the "equal chance for the novice" plank in our platform, and as we realise that others may very likely see matters in the same light as the able assistant secretary of the Leyton C.B.A., we thank him for the opportunity given us of pointing out that we intend novices to compete for their diplomas strictly amongst themselves—i.e., there will be diplomas for the best novice coupon birds in the various sections and diplomas for the best champion coupon birds. This, of course, was our intention from the outset, and we have altered the wording concerning the allotting of the diplomas so that there shall be no misconception on the point in future.

We may say, too, that the position of the novices at the Palace Show is having our consideration; we wish to be as equitable and liberal towards them as is possible in the course of our great competition, and to merit their hearty support.

THE LARGER STREAKED SPIDER HUNTER.

This curious species (Arachnothera magna) is one of the gems of the recent consignment of Indian birds brought to England by Major Berreau,, a first appearance here. Colour, greenish, with black stripes. The bird took readily to captivity, and exhibits many quaint mannerisms. Its present owner is Lady Kathleen Pilkington.

We, Too, Hope So.

With regard to your excellent competition, I hope that it will be the means of uplifting the Lancashire variety, as I see no one can win more than one diploma up to the Palace. If the breeders of Lancashires will only come out of their shell I think and feel certain that we could muster some good classes. The birds are there in the bird-rooms, and good ones at that, but their owners lack "staying power" after the first time or two out. I hope, however, that your scheme will give the Lancashire its proper place again in many shows, and wish it success.—Wm. Adams, sec., Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before the end of July 1913.

TWO PRIZES OF 10s. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird, and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS
(4) BORDER FANCIES
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3; SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1; FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

For details of rules tentatively adopted see page 9 last week.

ELEGANT PARRAKEETS

This article on the rare and beautiful Elegant Grass Parrakeet, is No. 38 of the new series of personal birdy experiences related by that eminent aviculturist, the Rev. C. D. FARRAR.

I SOMETIMES think that there is no rest for the wicked. I only got back from Paris recently, and lo! I found awaiting me a post card from the Editor. "We shall be glad to receive, whenever convenient to you, a further article." Now, Editor's letters, as most of my readers will know, are of the nature of a Royal command. They have to be obeyed; so, though I hate writing, I obediently sat down to pen an article on some favourites I owned in the "days of long ago."

Embodiments of Grace.

Elegant Parrakeets! I wonder which of my readers has ever seen one. I have not, I can truthfully say, for more years than I like to recount. Perhaps, as they are so rare, I may go outside my usual custom and give a rather full description of them. They are very graceful birds, and quite hardy. In the most ordinarily well-constructed aviary there will be no fear of losing them. This is a great consideration in a world of losses. The Elegant has a particularly flattened head and a big, soft, black eye. The upper part of the body is a dark olive-green, merging into yellow on the breast and underparts to between the thighs and vent. Above the beak is a band of dark Oxford blue, and the flight feathers are of the same colour; beneath the legs is a patch of pink, The hen differs from the male in having no pink between the legs; the blue over her beak is lighter, and her head is not quite so flat.

Personally, I believe that the Elegants are first cousins to the Turquoisine, if not a variety thereof; but at any rate I have found that they will breed quite readily together. At one time I had quite a flock of Turquoisines, and when I ran short of a male I tried an Elegant, with quite satisfactory results. Indeed, it was hard to say whether the resultant young were Turquoisines or Elegants.

Wisdom Through Experience.

How I got hold of my first Elegants I can scarcely remember, as I have not notes by me; but I rather think they came from Edinburgh. The person who had them for sale did not know what they were. He merely described them as Grass Parrakeets from Australia. He has learnt a little bit since then, and no longer offers Elegants in this simple and child-like way. If I were the happy owner of a pair of Elegants now shouldn't I boom them; and what a host of telegrams I should get, sent by rich aviculturists all fighting for the chance of the same prize.

Love at Second Sight.

When they arrived, I must confess I was a bit disappointed, as they seemed rather phlegmatic sort of birds. They did nothing but sit on the perch and doze through the hours of daylight, though they woke up and became a bit more lively towards evening. I found afterwards that that was the fault of cage life. I put them into a small aviary and all was changed, and they became the most lively and inquisitive of birds, running swiftly about and examining every log and possible nesting site. I was glad I had transferred them to be birdroom, as they were always nibbling the logs, and the consequence was they made a bit of a litter. Now nothing is so fatal to domestic peace as a mess. Seed trodden into the stair carpet seems a little thing, but doesn't Solomon say somewhere that a fly causeth the apothecaries' ointment to stink! Solomon was right. In keeping birds you can't be too careful to clear up all litter. The place therefore for nesting Parrakeets is not a cage but a birdroom.

One great comfort about Elegants is that they are the most gentle creatures in the world, and could not or would not hurt a healty blue-bottle fly. Any sort of bird will bully them, or give them notice to quit. They can't retaliate, for they have little or no power of biting; unlike, say, for instance, their cousins, the Blue Bonnets.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN EXHIBITING?

If so, have you grasped all that our World's Championship Scheme means to you, and ordered your Coupons?

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who receive letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—A. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamous, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

PECKING TOES OFF (Cloyn).—There is no accounting for these vicious tendencies, and, unfortunately, no reliable remedy save by transferring the young to a more natural parent as soon as the old birds begin to maltreat them. See reply to "J.S." in last issue.

SEX AND VALUE (Weaver).—You will have seen the great collection of opinions on the sexual question in last issue and the present one. This consensus of opinion about touches the bed-rock of the question and leaves me nothing to add, beyond saying that a novice is best advised to be guided by the song, which is more connected, sustained, and powerful, with a pronounced inflation and throbbing of the throat. Young cocks, when reeling quietly on the perch, almost as soon as they leave the nest, may be noticed inflating the throat a little, and quietly "muttering" over a few notes. The value of the birds naturally depends upon the quality, and the singing ability of the cocks. Being crossbreds, your youngsters will only be worth the price of songsters 4s. to 7s. 6d. for cocks, and about 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. for hens.

FAT ROLLERS (Constant Reader).—Put the overfat hens together in a good-sized flight, keep the floor reasonably free from husk and waste seed, and strew with clean, gritty sand. For staple diet allow a small teaspoonful of summer rape per bird each day. Twice a week reduce this allowance by one-half and make up the bulk with good, sound canary seed. Once a week give half a teaspoonful of soft food, and allow a liberal supply of green food, watercress, lettuce, or flower-heads of groundsel, daily. Add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the water every second day for a week, and in the next week substitute six drops of tincture of gentian and four of dilute sulphuric acid. Continue this treatment for a month, if necessary. Be careful not to forget the daily dole of seed, as there will be no waste for them to fall back upon.

WHAT IS WRONG? (Bad Luck).—Your management certainly errs considerably in that it is, or should be, purely of an experimental nature. Your birds may perhaps have been faulty feeders or not in good breeding condition, but in any case they have not had a fair chance, and nothing short of a stroke of phenomenal luck could have brought you success. It is too late now to hope for any further success in breeding this season, and your best course is to separate the birds and turn your attention to getting them in good condition for next season. You say nothing about the age or general health of the birds, so I can only say that if the hen is not a reasonably young one, you had better discard her, and get a strong, healthy young hen for next season. As regards your management, it would be impossible to go into details here, so I cannot do better than advise you to invest in a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our manager, and be guided solely by the advice therein.

DOES NOT SING (B. T.).—Possibly the cock Yorkshire is in an overfed, sluggish condition, which would account for him appearing to breathe quickly. This symptom, however, is also very frequently significant of bronchial trouble, so you must see that the bird is being kept quite free from cold draughts, extreme fluctuations, and heated fumes from artificial lights, which are all likely to give rise to this trouble. Having attended to these points, treat the bird as follows for a month, and if not quite well, apart from the moult, which, in the natural course of things, will be in progress by that time, write again and refer to this reply. Give a staple diet of plain canary only, and for the first fortnight limit the quantity to a small teaspoonful per day. Twice each week decrease this quantity by one-half, and add a half teaspoonful of summer rape. Once a week give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake. Give a liberal supply of watercress, lettuce, or the flowering tips of groundsel daily. Keep cage fairly free from husk or waste seeds, and strewn with clean gritty sand. After the first fortnight you may give a free supply of canary in the box, and add the other items as mentioned above. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week. In the following week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the above two weeks in the same order.

SEED SAMPLES (Enquirer).—The hemp is on the whole an excellent all-round seed, but it contains a small proportion of grains with rancid and decayed kernels. As this proportion is quite small if supplied whole, the birds would probably reject the bad grains, and I think you might risk feeding it to any ordinary stock in this condition. But do not crush it for the birds, as this would make the whole bulk more or less injurious. The canary and the teazle are both first-rate seeds of very good quality.

EGGS ONLY (W. E. B.).—You seem to have had a very fair average number of eggs if your result so far is of a first round of nests, with one or two second clutches. The fact that none have hatched may be due to the cocks being out of condition, but you give me practically no data on which to found an opinion worth anything. Are the birds apparently in good health, and the cocks in song; or have they really been in song? I suppose you are satisfied they are the right sex? How old are the birds? These points, and fuller details regarding your management, would help me to be of more assistance to you. The breeding season now is practically at the close, and unless the birds have actually made some progress with another round of nests I advise you to separate them and turn your attention to getting them through a good moult, and in good, hard condition for next season—that is, of course, if they are worth keeping. As it is impossible to go into details here on such a large subject, get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our manager will send you, post free, for 7d., and digest its contents between now and spring. If you follow the directions therein, and treat the birds during the interval as advised, you will not find these troubles crop up next season if your birds are really healthy.

ABNORMAL LAYING (H. B. S.).—The performances of the hens in question are due to an abnormal condition of the ovaries, which remain in a dormant or undeveloped condition for a longer or shorter period. A hen may be so affected all through one season, and breed well the next, or in the case of young birds the ovaries may remain dormant during the first season, and yet develop to maturity in the second and subsequent seasons. Unfortunately one cannot discover the cases that will resume their proper functions except by keeping them and putting them to the actual test. Considering the lateness of the season you would be best advised to separate these hens, turn them into a large flight, and feed sparingly until the moult. If you do not want them for exhibition during the coming season, moult them in the flight, and let them remain there until next spring, and if in good, plump condition, feed rather sparingly all through the interval between now and spring, except whilst moulting, when you may be a little more generous. At the approach of the breeding season cage them separately, feed more liberally, and keep in close association with vigorous, high-conditioned young cocks until ready for mating.

A LONG MOULT (E. E. M., Wimbledon).—The bird's age is rather against it, but still I consider it most probable that the following treatment will pull it together nicely. Should it commence to cast feathers more profusely in a week or two, keep it fairly warm, throw a light cover over the cage, and, generally, aim at encouraging a quick and complete change of plumage. Give a staple diet of plain canary only for a month. Every second day for a fortnight give a morsel of bread and milk, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, rape and broken groats. After the first fortnight give each of these items every third day only. Give a fair supply of green food or wild seed heads in variety daily. Add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece to the drinking water for three days, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second for a fortnight.

MITES AND MOULTING (Would-be-Breeder).—(1) The appearance of mites on the cage cover after two dressings with methylated spirit which seemed to quite clear them out, is probably due to the fact that you treated the cage locally, and not all over, and the mites, or, rather, those that escaped the applications, simply migrated to another portion of the cage, and founded a new colony. Otherwise, they have some other harbour in close proximity to the cage, perhaps on the wall, or whatever cage hangs against or stands on, which you omitted. Continue applying insecticide and giving quassia baths twice a week for a time, and you will certainly win. Of course, look out for any fresh harbours. I suppose you add a little camphor to the spirits? If not, you should do so. The combination is much more effective and lasting. It is not necessary nor advisable when birds are kept in warm room and free from draughts to cover over the cages at night. Such covering, however, will not actually cause mites, though it might provide harbour for them, and help to shield them from observation until a secure foothold was established, especially if covers are of a dark colour. (2) The loss of feather is undoubtedly due to the moult. Quite a number of adult birds are now falling in moult. Put them on the ordinary treatment for moulting birds as given in No. 5 Nutshell booklet on "The Canary."

BEST FOR BEGINNER (W. Rowland).—Common Rollers, Border Fancies, Norwich, Yorkshires, are all very hardy, free breeders, and easy to manage, and are about the best for beginners to start with. There is little to choose between them, but if any advantage exists it is probably in the order named. Personal taste is the best criterion of "the best kind," so make your own choice. Again, it is almost a "toss-up" whether double or single breeding cages are the best. If you are making a stack of cages I would certainly advise "singles," all of the same size and type. But if your space is limited, and you can only accommodate a few cages, then you would do well to go in for double breeders fitted with movable partitions, so that you could remove the partitions at the end of the moulting season, and convert them into flight cages for the winter. You would find all the pros and cons of each method discussed in Part I. of "Our Canaries." In making your own cages you would also find the handbook, "Aviaries, Bird-rooms and Cages," 2s. 3d. post free from our Manager, very useful. From the end of October, when the birds should be well over the moult, until January, is about the best time to buy. Birds hatched this year will breed themselves next year.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN, in the absence of Mr. Fulljames on holiday.

HURRYING THE MOULT (Cuthbert).—The moult is a natural occurrence and, as you know, takes place every autumn, and occurs when the bird is in a proper condition to cast its old plumage. To "force" the moult is a mistake, and often detrimental to the health of the subject. It is frequently brought about by a sudden change of temperature, and in captivity even the moving of a bird from one part of a room to another will sometimes cause it to commence. I would advise you to give the bird a change of position, say, into another room, or even an unheated conservatory, and partly cover the cage with a rather thin cloth; also steep just a sprig of meadow saffron in the drinking water daily. As it is now almost the natural time for birds to moult, this treatment will probably have the desired effect. As you will probably be moving before the bird has finished, I would advise keeping him covered with the thin cloth until he is nearly finished, when gradually uncover a trifle each day. By following this method he will practically be moulting under the same conditions all through, wherever he is, and will not be so liable to catch cold, to which birds are very susceptible during moult, which checks the process and causes the death of great numbers.

BLACKBIRD WITH BARE HEAD (Blackbird).—(1) You say nothing about the treatment of your bird, and this I suspect is the cause of your trouble. Your food is probably too coarse, and the bird fails to digest it properly, therefore does not get sufficient nourishment from it. Get a good brand of insectile food, one advertised for Warblers or some of the more delicate species, and feed him with it right through the moult, which will now soon commence. He will then be in far better health, cast his feathers quickly, and grow fresh ones on the bare places on his head. He may do this soon after he has commenced to moult, although in the natural course of events the head is the last part of a bird to acquire new feathers. You will find full particulars as to the correct treatment of a Blackbird (and he pays to be treated well) in one of the "Nutshell" or other books published at this office. (2) As a rule birds kept in captivity for any length of time do not keep up the original rich colour of the legs, each succeeding year they get paler, and the scales on them get thicker.

TROUBLED WITH BALDNESS (Henry James).—In spite of your assertion that you have hunted for grey lice, I am still inclined to think that this is the cause of your trouble. Have another look; turn up the feathers under the wings and abdomen. If you find any you will have to treat the whole of your stock for them. To do so get two or three strips of calico, smother them with fresh insect powder, and roll the birds in them, one in each cloth, but be sure to leave the head quite free, then get a small brush and brush in some powder round the back of the head and neck. Leave each bird in its cloth for about ten minutes; this should clear them, examine them again in a week's time, and treat again if necessary. Sulphur ointment is practically a harmless preparation, and I cannot understand your losing birds through using it. Are you sure this was the cause? If you have reason to use it again make it yourself by mixing flower of sulphur with fresh lard. If you find, after examining your birds that you have no insects, perhaps you will kindly write again. Do you give any wild food to the Finch? You do not mention it in your note respecting diet.

YOUNG COUGHS (Nemo).—The large cage you propose to keep your bird in will do admirably, but as you want him for exhibition purpose you must occasionally run him into a show cage; see that this is well made, and in the best possible condition to show the bird off when you exhibit him. A Chough will live upon "melox" which makes a very good staple food, this you should vary with soaked puppy biscuits, biscuit meal, and a spoonful of crissel, or meat meal; scraps from the table, a little minced meat, and when getting into show condition, minced hard-boiled egg and a few mealworm daily. Yes, the colour of his beak and legs can be intensified by adding a little tasteless pepper to his soft food, but you must rely more upon the general healthy condition of the bird, and your manner of staging him than anything else to take the coveted prizes. The perches in his living cage should be large and strong, not too smoothly finished off. Young birds cannot be kept too clean, and the conditions you describe would no doubt cause the loss of the nails and sore feet, they should be cleaned and bathed in warm water. If the socket or root is not destroyed the nails will grow again.

UNCERTAINTY OF PARENTAGE (Twite-Finch).—Yours is a very interesting letter, and I must congratulate you upon getting young ones under the circumstances. I think the father is more likely to be the Twite than the Chaffinch, although one never knows what may happen in a "mixed" aviary, and anyway you are to be envied for breeding either cross. You say the two cocks and the hen are all feeding the young ones, and if they continue to do so, you should get some bouny birds. I would advise you to watch the cock birds closely (particularly the Chaffinch) and if you see any signs of quiteFulness in either, take him out at once. I do not think you can very much improve upon your present feedings, excepting to add a little hard-boiled egg to the biscuit, which should be given fresh twice during the day. As soon as the young ones leave the nest, and are able to feed on soft food, (which will be when they are three weeks to a month old) I would advise you to cage them up out of harm's way.

LINNETS UNFERTILE EGGS (Revel, W.).—Sorry you have been so unsuccessful with your breeding operations. Your non-success I put down to the cock birds not fulfilling their duties. It is strange that from three pairs you did not get any fertile eggs. Did you examine them after the hens had sat the regulation time? This might possibly have assisted you in your future operations. I gather from your letter that you only took one clutch from each pair. Why not have let them have another? The second nest might have been a more successful one. The month of July is not too late for Hybrid breeding, in fact there are more bred during this month than any other. The reason is that many wild birds in captivity breed late, and take no notice of the hens in the spring and early summer. One should never despair because the first batch of eggs prove unfertile. The fact of your leaving the Linnets in with the hens during incubation would not affect the fertility of the eggs. You say the hens sat all right, therefore if the eggs were good they should have hatched out at the usual time. If you decide to use the same birds next season you had better let them fly together during the winter, and put them up for breeding in April, when I hope you will be successful. The Hybrids you are trying to get are not as a rule difficult to obtain.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

WHAT IS IT? (H. B. T.).—It is, I think, a Hooded Siskin (sometimes called Red Siskin), though the description might also fit that of a hybrid between the Hooded Siskin and Canary, but I am of the opinion that your bird is the first-named. It is a beautiful and interesting species with a passable little song.

INDIAN PARROTS (H. Stibbs).—Table scraps are not wholesome for Parrots. Age may have something to do with the loss of plumage, but not entirely I think. I should give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia every fourth day in the drinking water, and on the intervening days put half a teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates in the drinking water. Diet: Canary, millet, hemp, oats, wheat, and sunflower seeds. Well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, greenfood, plain biscuit, nuts and stale crusts. Grit, cuttlebone, and water must be regularly supplied. If the mouth is at all slimy, put a little honey and borax therein daily for a few weeks. Persevere with above treatment and report progress in a month or six weeks.

HEAT FOR AVIARY (H. G. K.).—It should be sufficient if you can keep the atmosphere fairly dry, and it should be ample if you exclude frost, say a minimum night temperature of 40 deg. F. Undoubtedly hot water is the most satisfactory, either heated by coal or gas; in each case the boiler should be outside the shelter shed, but if gas be the heating medium, then the boiler can be inside the shelter, against one of the walls surrounded by a casing, the gas being lighted and the boiler chamber properly ventilated from the outside. I believe the working cost of an electric radiator works out rather high, but it is effective and also diffuses light.

AILING GOULDIAN FINCH (M.B.).—I should keep the bowels of this bird moving quite freely by occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia—half a teaspoonful twice weekly in the drinking water so long as there is no appearance of diarrhœa. I should also offer milk sop (rather sloppy), and if it will take this it will be beneficial. Giving it a larger cage to induce more exercise will also be a decided help. On the days you are not giving the magnesia put half a teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates in the drinking water. Gouldian Finches are a lethargic species, and unless they have roomy quarters, do not take sufficient exercise, and liver troubles supervene. I do not think the trouble is pneumonia. After about a month of above treatment please report progress.

FOR SMALL OUTDOOR AVIARY (Amateur).—The birds you name will do well together, and except the Green Singing Finch, are all very probable breeders. The White Java Sparrows sometimes prove troublesome and spiteful in confined quarters, and perhaps you had better leave them out, as your aviary is rather small. The following should all do well, and all are probable breeders: Silverbills, Bronze Mannikins, Bib and Zebra Finches, Grey Singing Finches, and Avadavats. Green Singing Finches are green and yellow; the Grey is a plain unpretending bird clad in sober grey with a very sweet song. As the aviary is small, a wood and glass shutter or canvas screen will be a wise protection for winter nights.

POSITION OF HUSKS (F. Bubb).—I have indicated the best means to use to get over the difficulty, viz., to drop a piece of board, sufficiently broad and deep, from the top of the cage to separate the entrances to the two husks; the birds will then be able to enter either husk independently and without encroaching upon the other one. Your husks are evidently a little larger than they need be, but this is a good "fault." The husk nests need no perches, and I should revise the position of the perches so that they do not run in too close proximity to husk entrance. I should fix a twiggy branch at each end of the cage as shown on diagram. It is merely a matter of time and settling down. The birds will ultimately breed. If you planted grass in a couple of small pots, and put one of these in the cage occasionally, immediately after watering it from small rose, the Budgerigars would roll about in the wet grass, and so take it in their usual natural way, which is by rolling about amid wet foliage and herbage. They do not bathe in the ordinary way.

WHAT ARE THEY? (M. V. P.).—The Red-breaks are Common Waxbills, also known as Pink-cheeks, and Grey Waxbills. I do not think they are likely to breed in a cage; in fact, it is only seldom they attempt to breed even in the aviary, and I know of no authentic record of them being successfully reared in this country. Still, it should not be impossible in a cage, and luck might come your way with a single pair in a roomy cage with a couple of rush nests fixed in most retired corners. Diet: Canary and Indian millet seed, also millet spray, green food, grit and water for drinking and bathing.

GREY PARROT (J. G. D.).—There is evidently, I am pleased to say, a great improvement in the bird. For the present I should continue the magnesia sufficiently often to keep the bowels moving quite freely, and also give the Byno-phosphates several times weekly for the next two months. An occasional dose of honey and borax cannot do harm, and it will help to keep the bird's mouth clean. The bird ought now to soon begin to pick up a word or two, but do not expect there will be much progress in this direction until the bird has become thoroughly tame. With the precautions you name I should take the bird with you to Montreux. It will be far better than leaving it with strangers. Besides, the latter course would unsettle the bird again and possibly hinder its commencing to talk. I do not think you need anticipate any ill-results from the journey.

COCKATOO (Revel. W.).—The temperature of any living room will suit these hardy and robust birds well once they are acclimatised, and they should be kept in some position where they will get all the light and air possible without draught. A seed mixture of canary, millet, dari, hemp, oats, wheat, maize sunflower seeds, the whole to be well mixed. Also ripe fruit, plain biscuit, stale cruets, nuts, and green-food. Do not give any sops, slops or messes. Water, grit and cuttle bone must also be regularly supplied.

A l thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

WILL THEY BREED? (Nimrod).—You have a true pair and they should have begun breeding operations ere this. Your diet as regards seed is correct, but I should give a few oats occasionally, also green food (flowering seeding grass, while it lasts), and lettuce, etc., grit, cuttlebone, and water to be regularly supplied. The cere of the female will be almost ruddy-brown when she is fully in breeding condition, which will be shortly. A liberal supply of seeding grass will be the thing most likely to hasten matters. They should be kept where they will get all the light and air possible without draught, and also where there is not too much going on in their immediate vicinity. This is to give the quietude necessary to encourage breeding.

GOULDIAN FINCH (A.S.).—Add three drops of tasteless castor oil daily to the milk till the bowels have been fully relieved; follow this with three drops of brandy in the milk, which should be continued for a month at least. Also, twice daily, put a small quantity of honey and borax into the mouth from the end of a quill or stick, but you must only put in a small quantity at a time, as a bird's swallowing capacity is not great. As soon as the bird begins to take seed and water again, put it on a course of Byno-phosphates—half a teaspoonful in the daily supply of water. As soon as the bird can eat it, put a little crumbled sponge cake with the milk. While I will not say the case is hopeless, the bird's recovery is certainly doubtful, but if still alive there ought to be a chance for it, and I shall be interested to hear how it progresses.

GREEN SINGING FINCHES (E. G. Brown).—(1) They are shy nesters in captivity, though they bred in my aviary last year—the first time for very many years. I much doubt their nesting with you this year. (2) A Hartz travelling cage with the fittings removed, and a couple of bars pulled out for entrance, is as good as any. Supply hay, moss, and a little hair. (3) Canary, white and spray millet, also keep a little summer rape in separate tin for them. Give green food; they appreciate an occasional insect, and also take soft food when nesting. (4) Keeping Budgerigars and Finches together mostly ends in numerous losses from the playful Budgerigar beak! It would make a good Budgerigars' aviary, and with them could be associated a pair of Cockatiels and Rosella Parrakeets. Such as Budgies, Cockatiels, Rosellas, Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Java Sparrows, Cut-throats, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins and Avadavats should winter out-of-doors in your aviary, but the responsibility of mixing Budgerigars and Finches must be your own. (5) About 40 the size of a Canary, but that is the full number for breeding results.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

W.J.C.—Pneumonia.

M.P., Liverpool.—Necrosis of the lungs, with enlargement of the liver and spleen of specific origin, and contagious in character.

G. H. Parker.—Inflammation of the bowels due to ptomaine poisoning. Use scrupulous cleanliness, and prepare egg perfectly fresh. There is evidently some fault with the feeding.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

W. E. Tyrrell.—Your letter has been duly forwarded.

J. W. Holmes.—Your club notice card arrived Thursday morning, too late for insertion in our last issue. See notice at foot of column, page 8.

J. M. Brisband.—The stoppage of the crop (this was the nature of the trouble) may be brought about by any one of quite a number of things that might be swallowed, but only an examination carried out at the time of death can determine the precise cause.

F. J. Elliott.—The secs. of the New Cross C.B.S. are Messrs. Burton Bros., 126, Lee Road, Lee Green, S.E. Pleased to hear of your good luck with your Yorkshires.

Loco.—There is only one Linnet. Such terms as Brown, Red, Grey, Marble-breasted, etc., merely refer to phases of the plumage. The "Green Linnet" is the Greenfinch; this bird is not a Linnet at all.

A. J. Rea.—We are pleased to hear you now say that you have found judges "most straightforward and fair." Your other opinions, of course, you're quite entitled to hold; and equally, of course, are we entitled to venture to think that they are not well founded.

A. Hinson.—The only book we know of dealing with the subject you mention is "The Pet Book," by Frank Finn, price 5s. 4d. post free from our office.

C. Kitchens.—With the exception of Nn. 1, Ragwort, we do not recognise any of the plants sent as being commonly in use amongst bird-keepers. The others are unknown to us, except No. 5, which is obviously one of the campanulas (bell-flowers).

H. J. Simmons.—Thanks for your letter. We'll get the information respecting the bill in due course.

W. Burbidge.—We hope to publish the account of the ramble this week. It is in type and only severe pressure on space has kept it out.

W. Blair, A. Wright, T. Hay, and Others. — We are much obliged to you for the newspaper cuttings sent us.

GLASGOW & WEST COUNTIES.

The second ramble of the season took place June 28 to Waterbank, when quite a goodly number travelled by "The True Line" at the rate of a well conducted funeral, and arrived at Thorntonhall a good bit over the scheduled time. The journey on foot from Thorntonhall station to Waterbank was accomplished by the fast pack in about twenty-five minutes, the time of the slow pack has not been recorded. The company was composed of fanciers and their better halves, and a few bairns to boot; also a few strange faces we were glad to meet. The first nest was spotted by the eagle eyed Davie Lindsay, and proved to be a Robin's with two eggs. Close by was Mr. Robin, decked in his very best, he was of good size, rare colour, and not a few present could have done with him for showing purposes. On arrival at the farm nesting began in reality. That well-known fancier and respected judge, in fact the father of the Norwich fancy in Glasgow, if not Scotland, Mr. Peter Pettigrew, headed a party of keen birdy men, and ere long we were in the thick of it. The first nest we came upon was that of a Song Thrush with two eggs on the point of hatching. Next was that of a Greenfinch on four eggs. At this point a pair of Magpies were spotted by Mr. Jas. Marshall; their nest was easily seen but could not be approached. While plodding along, quite a number of hares were risen, and "P.P." was lamenting that he had not got the loan of Peter Halbert's whippet. Overhead, Larks were pouring out their song very lustily. Mr. William Jamieson spotted the next nest, a Blackbird's, with four eggs. At this stage a very painful incident came under our notice—a weasel had seized a young Plover and had practically sucked it to death. Our next nest was a Blackbird's with four young just beginning to pen, and in close proximity we found another "Blackie" on four eggs. We noticed that the clutches of eggs are considerably less in this district than in former years. Various clutches that came under our notice had been sucked by weasels. A Yellowhammer's with four young was found by that pair of veterans, C. McLeerie and Wm. Jamieson, and shortly after a Chaffinch's with four eggs. Swallows are plentiful, and quite a number of nests were seen in the byre and hay-shed. A hole in a beech tree provided the apartments of a family of young Starlings. It was now approaching the tea hour, and the guid wives had been busy in the interval. Kettles were plentiful, in fact, we have seen many a travelling tinker with a smaller stock. Tea, pies, and sandwiches were soon served out. Tea being over a programme of sports was gone through, for which some good prizes were given. Mr. A. Macfarlane, a well-known ped. of three decades ago, acted as handicapper and starter, whilst Mr. Peter Pettigrew was judge. Results were as follow:—100 yards, men, 1, Marshall; 2, Macfarlane; 3, McGowan. 75 yards, boys, 1, Wm. Macfarlane; 2, J. Macfarlane. Ladies' race, 1, Minnie Gibson; 2, Annie Gibson; 3, Chrissie Gibson. A dead-heat occurred in this race, but in the run-off, Minnie Gibson won by ½ yard. Boys' race, 1, Wm. Macfarlane; 2, Jackie Macfarlane; 3, Wm. Gibson. Walking race, 1, Gibson; 2, Macfarlane; 3, Marshall. Football and dancing concluded the sports. Piper Archibald McNeill was in one of his happiest veins, and played some rollicking music to the trippers of the light fantastic. A special word of praise is due to Messrs. A. Macfarlane and Peter Pettigrew. The latter, we hear, was presented with a gold scarf-pin of a birdy pattern by a group of strangers present; long may he be spared to wear it.

LEICESTER (King's Head) BRITISH BIRD AND MULE CLUB.

The fourth annual ramble took place June 1, the district chosen being Six Hills. A start was made at 9.30 a.m. from headquarters, 25 members congratulating each other on their happy choice of a date, the conditions being perfect. Soon getting into the country, we heard the Whitethroat singing his jerky little song, the sweet notes of the Robin, the longer and bolder song of the Hedge Accentor. Near a G.C.R. cutting we observed the Magpie feeding, also the Yellow Wagtail, while in a neighbouring cornfield we saw probably a unique sight, a little owl resting on the ground in the full glare of the sun. A halt was called at the old-fashioned "Gate Hangs Well," and refreshments supplied. Here were Swifts, Swallows, Martins, in abundance circling overhead, around the old shedding, and along the watercourse, now and then entering the barns, probably feeding their young. The Willow Warbler's plaintive song was heard, Blue Tits were seen hanging from the leaves, insect hunting, while the Great Tit called to them with his "Ring, Ting, Ting," from the tops of the tallest trees. The Chaffinch, Blackbird, the Thrush, and the perky little Jenny Wren, all helped to swell the music in this typical country spot. The Rooks flapped lazily across the fields in the heat of the sun, while from shady copse came the call of the Cuckoo. On arriving at "Six Hills" Hostelry, we were met by Host Sadler, and treated with every courtesy. The party now did justice to a substantial spread, after which a ramble round was taken under the guidance of Messrs. Cole, Deacon, Smith, and Pinsent. This is a splendid breeding spot, the gorse-covered ground affording protection for scores of Linnets. It should be a musical colony in a few months. More than a dozen nests were found by our party, each one containing five or six young birds. At the foot of the hedgerow a Willow Warbler had built, and five pretty little eggs were seen. Thrushes and Blackbirds were numerous, with young nearly on the wing. Other finds were a Chaffinch and eggs, Yellowhammer sitting close, Greenfinch and Bullfinch both with young, a Whitethroat and eggs, but the prettiest sight was to come. A pair of Redstarts were seen busily flitting to and fro, carrying food. The party approached quietly, and were rewarded by a peep at six tiny little birds, their golden-tipped tails having just struck through. One of our party climbed several tall trees, and reported four young Magpies, in one nest, and three in another. The Cliff Chaff was seen, but the nest could not be found amongst the undergrowth. Upon our last visit here, we listened with pleasure to the song of the Nightingale, but this time Philomel was a noticeable absentee. Time was now getting on, and we returned to the hostel, where we indulged in a chat on bird life generally. The weather was delightful all through, and at the end of the return journey each expressed himself perfectly satisfied with the trip. In the clubroom, a vote of thanks was passed to the committee, and the host and patron of the club, Mr. J. Pinsent, for their services. This was suitably replied to, and the company dispersed. Wishing success to CAGE BIRDS.—Wm. Burbridge, Sec.

Club Reports.

FELLING AND DISTRICT F. & F.S.

At meeting held July 5 Mr. W. R. Clark, in chair, it was decided to hold all future meetings on the first Wednesday in each month, instead of Saturday. Will all members please note.—G. Garbutt, Sec.

BRIGHTON AND HOVE C.B.A.

Points gained at the July Show in the Monthly Show Competition, were as follows:—F. Dandridge, 17; H. T. Gibb, 15; H. S. Morrish, 9; W. Wall, 9; R. Williams, 7; Rev. T. W. Miller, 5; D. S. Dean, 4; G. Beck, 4; G. Absolon, 4; E. Olle, 3; J. Brown, 1.—W. H. Gibb, Hon. Sec.

DARLINGTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

First Nest Feather Show on Wednesday, July 23, at the George Hotel. Following classes provided: Yorks, Norwich, A.O.V., Can., Mule or Hybrid, Linnet, Siskin, Twite, or Redpoll, Gold. or Bullfinch, Green., Bramble., or Chaffinch. Birds to be staged by 8 o'clock.—A. Walker and H. Todd, Hon. Secretaries.

REDCAR C.B.S.

Meeting held at Crown and Anchor, July 5. Mr. Dawson chair. A poor attendance of members; I should like to see more turn up and take an interest in the society. Decided to hold our 2nd F.F. show, July 19, at 4, Crown and Anchor. Classes: Yorks., Yell., Buff; Novice, Any Col.; Rung Any Col.; Nor., Yell., Buff; Novice, Any Col.; Rung Any Col., Canary A.O.V., Mule or Hybrid; Linnet; A.O.V. Brit. Members please bring birds in good time.—C. L. Mallory, Hon. Sec.

CHOPWELL C.B.S.

Meeting held Club Hall, July 5, when eight members turned up. Messrs. W. Carr and Son were prevented from attending owing to Mrs. W. Carr being ill, and she has since unfortunately passed away. Mr. Carr has all the members' sympathy in his sad bereavement. Decided to add Border classes to schedule to apply for the N.B. and S.F.C.'s patronage; rest of schedule to remain as it was last show. Members classes left over to next meeting, which is Aug. 2.—W. Tomlinson, Sec.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Fortnightly meeting held Y.M. Halls, July 12th; president in the chair. Final arrangements were made for young bird show, in Camera Club Rooms, Saturday, 2nd August; judging to start at six. Mr. J. Braidwood (Burnbank) to judge. Even with the bad season we expect very keen competition at this show, especially amongst the Border men. Mr. Marley's gold medal was on view; medal to be won outright by novice gaining most points at our annual show. The definition of a novice in our club caused a considerable amount of discussion; we decided to leave it over till next meeting, on July 26th, and hear other members' views.—A. Thomson, Sec.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS O.S.

Meeting, July 9, at Mechanics' Institute, R. Rhodes (chair). After some discussion it was decided to accept "Cage Birds" Championship Competition in connection with our open show, Nov. 14 and 15. The secretary was instructed to write for a supply of coupons, so that all members who wish to compete can obtain their supply through the society. Decided to write the Midland Yorkshire Club, and ask for their terms for patronage. Owing to the next meeting falling in the holidays, it was decided to postpone this until Sept. 9, when it is hoped that all members will turn up and enable us to commence the show work in real earnest.—J. G. Royce, Hon, Asst. Sec.

NORTHERN YORKSHIRE C.C.

Meeting and Table Show, July 2, Mr. Mather presided. The following shows were granted the club's patronage:—Newcastle, Blaydon, Chester-le-Street, Hartlepool, Gateshead, and Sunderland. Decided that competitions for challenge cup and Ramsden's special be granted to Gateshead Show. Next table show July 23. Members please note that we are about to print handbook, and as only paid-up members names appear therein, it will save the club expense if unpaid members will forward their subscriptions at an early date. The table show was fairly well supported in the champion section, the novice classes were again much below what we have seen in previous years, and it was found necessary to amalgamate the two classes in this section. Mr. R. Tindale judged. CHAMP., CL.: 1, hc, Cattell; 2, 3, 4, vhc, Crawhall. TICK. or MKD.: 1, vhc, Mather; 2, hc, Crawhall; 3, 4, Cattell; c, Dix. NOV. A.V.: 1, 4, Hedley; 2, 3, Mirley; vhc, hc, Witherley.—R. Tindale, Hon. Sec.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Meeting held Flying Dutchman, Leeds Road, July 12. A moderate number of members attending. Mr. W. Morement (chairman) informed the members that it was necessary for the society to change the meeting night to the alternative Saturday. This being done, he said he would be obliged to tender his resignation as chairman, as our meetings in future would clash with certain business he was engaged in elsewhere. After the resignation had been accepted with regret, a vote of thanks was proposed to him, and carried by all present for his services in the past, to which Mr. Morement replied, saying he was sorry to have to resign, but would still continue to be a worker in the society. (Applause.) Mr. T. Fortman (Deputy Chairman) was then called upon to take charge of the meeting for the remainder of the evening. Next came the nomination of a new chairman. Mr. G. Hunter, one of the deputies being elected to fill the vacancy. This bringing the meeting to a close.—P. N. Jenkinson, Asst. Sec.

LLANELLY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual general meeting, July 12, one of the best meetings we have had this year. The chair was taken by Councillor D. R. Jones. Election of officers for ensuing year:—Chairman, Mr. D. R. Jones, who thanked the members for the confidence reposed in him; vice-chairman, Mr. Jos. Owens, who also thanked the members; secretary, with no other name before the meeting, Mr. John once again accepted, and the acceptance was very popular among the members. Re guaranteeing for advertisements in CAGE BIRDS, it was proposed that the secretary do so at once, and that he order coupons to the extent of 10/-, to start with. The Society has gone back to the old date in January, and trust that we shall be able to have a more successful show. All the members were very sorry to hear of the continued illness of our worthy show manager, Mr. T. J. Gregory, and his wife, he being one of our foremost members and a good worker in the cause. A vote of sympathy is to be sent him. The secretary mentioned that he had written Mr. Holmes, the president, but upon going to see him, found that Mr Holmes was too ill to make an appearance, as he generally does upon our yearly meetings. It was proposed that we forward to him a vote of sympathy on behalf of the members. Mr. John gave the auditor's report and balance sheet for the last show, and said it was not so good as he should like it to be, but he had done his best. We had a balance in the bank to start with of £5 19s. 1d., and to-day at the bank had £6 6s. 8d. Every credit was given by the auditors for the way in which Mr. John works up the show; they say that his books are a credit to the society. Three new members were proposed and accepted: Mr. Dd. Saunders, Mr. Dd. Davies, and Mr. Wm. Williams.

PONTYPRIDD AND DIS. F. & F.S.

Meeting held Victoria Hotel, July 12. Several new members were made, which brought the number up to 52. This means the number of members has been more than doubled since last year. A good sign for the prosperity of this society. Mr. C. A. House judges the cage birds at our fixture on November 26 next.—A. A. G. McLucas.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Meeting held headquarters, "The Globe," Maple Street, Tottenham Court Rd. Mr. R. J. Pretty presided, and a fair number of members attended. Young bird show was fixed for July 26th, when we hope to have a record. Will all members and friends who have not yet seen our new hall kindly do their utmost to be present.—G. G. Stubbs, hon. sec.

STRATFORD AND E. LONDON.

Meeting held July 10, Workman's Hall. Specials and prizes presented, also Mr. Moxay's testimonial presented. New members: Miss Barrelet (Leyton), Mr. A. Low (Walthamstow); judges fixed for next evening show, Mr. Marley for cage birds. Special for each section given. Show July 24, Workman's Hall, all members must attend August 14, when all arrangements for Young Stock Show will be settled. —A. E. Baker, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting, July 9, at Sydenham Hotel, Small Heath. Chairman Willmott occupied his usual place before a good gathering of members. Mr. H. Bevins, Hall Green, was nominated a member, a very hearty vote of thanks to the stewards for their help at the last show was given, and the following elected for Saturday, the 19th (due at room not later than 3 p.m.) Messrs. Kidner, Hughes. Swindon, Adcock, and Burke. Specials and prize money were paid out.—J. Sheppard, Sec.

SOUTH MOOR (Social) F.F. & C.B.S

Meeting held July 13, Mr. Shelley in the chair, before a good attendance. Carried, to have our annual show Jan. 30, 1914, Mr. Emmerson to judge the Cage Birds, and Mr. B. Walker other sections. Decided to have rules drawn up. Secretary to bring them before next meeting, August 3. These Club Shows are getting a rage just now about North-West Durham, and drawing a lot of cage bird fanciers into them. We see the Victoria Club, Stanley (our neighbours) are having a char-a-banc trip and hope they get a fine day.—George Lane, Sec.

EAST STANLEY F. & F.S.

Meeting held, Empire Club Room, July 13. Vote of thanks was passed to committee for the way they have worked for the benefit of their members (fanciers) in presenting five cups for our show on November 22. It was also passed to ask committee to get some Fancy papers in club for benefit of the members, to try and encourage the Fancy in our district. We expect to have our next show as good as any open show within 20 miles of West Stanley, so as to give Mr. House a good time up here.—Wm. Robinson, Sec.

DONCASTER AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held July 12, at "Black Bull," Mr. Truman presiding over a good attendance. Decided to hold 2nd first feather show on July 26th, birds to be staged at 4 o'clock; judge, Mr. J. Green. Classes: (1) Yell. Yorks., (2) Buff, (3) Yell. Nor., (4) Buff, (5) A.O.V. Can., (6) Mule or Hyb., (7) Goldf. or Bullf., (8) Linnet, etc., (9) A.O.V. Finch, or Bunting, (10) A.V. Brit. Hen, (11) A.V. Softbill, (12) A.V. Brit. not prev. mentioned. Five new members were enrolled in Messrs. Lean, Temperton, Banjard, Smith and Graham. Mr. Carter kindly promised 2s. 6d. for most points in Yorks.—G. Hunt, hon. sec.

LEYTON C.B.A.

Montbly meeting, July 7, at Grange Park Hall. Mr. Bartlett occupied the chair, and there were a good number present to hear our member, Mr. A. J. Marley, give a lecture on British Birds. The lecturer treated the subject in his usual masterly style, how to select birds, how to get on hard seed, also the best cages to use, then how to moult, and finally exhibiting. The lecturer afterwards gave some good advice on the more popular varieties of Softbills, and having spoken for over an hour resumed his seat amidst hearty applause from all. He then answered a number of questions, and a vote of thanks, to which Mr. Marley suitably responded, brought a pleasant and instructive evening to a close at 10.15 p.m.—A. W. Farmer, Hon. Asst. Sec.

LONDON C.B.A.

General meeting held "El Vino," Piccadilly Place, July 8th, the President, Mr. R. L. Crisp, in the chair. There was a good attendance of members. Correspondence to date was read, including letters from CAGE BIRDS re World's Championship Competition, and the London Federation, referring to the reconstruction of same, with a proposal from Woolwich and Plumstead C.B.S. suggesting an inter club competition for a trophy, also particulars and sample of material of a "Cosy Carrier" for show cages were passed round, this being manufactured by Messrs. Barron and Co. Mr. E. C. Offord was elected a delegate to the London Federation. Balance sheet of young bird show was read and favourably received. It being the first show of our hon. secretary, Mr. Jas. Bray, junr., he was congratulated, also upon the prompt manner in which the balance sheet was placed before the members; it showed no loss to the association. Votes of thanks were accorded to Mr. Jas. Bray, junr., and Mr. J. Robson for their services in connection with the young bird show. Messrs. J. Taylor and H. W. Hewitt were nominated for membership. The schedule of the 25th annual Great International Cage Bird Show was submitted to the members and was unanimously passed. The names of the gentlemen elected to judge will shortly appear in the Fancy Press. The remainder of the evening was passed with some very interesting questions being answered and freely discussed by the members. It was agreed that our meeting, which should take place on August 12th, be abandoned. A committee meeting was held afterwards, and Messrs. J. Taylor and H. W. Hewitt were elected members.—F. Knight, Press Correspondent.

Twin Eggs This Time.

SIR,—I have this morning (July 9) taken from a Canary's nest an egg which has another perfect egg inside. The outer shell is soft, and the colour of the Hedge Sparrow's eggs, containing only the white, and no yolk. The inner one is an ordinary Canary egg with a hard shell. Last night the hen looked very mopy, and I thought I should have lost her, but she is all right now. Have you known anything like this before? If you would care to see it I would send it along for your inspection. Have bred Yorkshires and Norwich for this last 10 years, but I have not seen two distinct eggs in one. This hen is not young, but 3 year old, and brought up three nests last year and two this. She has not laid anything like this before. Does this not help to prove that two eggs can be laid in one day? I wish CAGE BIRDS success; I have read it for years, and cannot do without it.

[We have had other cases of "twin" eggs recorded in our columns, and some years ago reproduced a photograph of one, showing a smallish egg inside a larger one.—EDITOR.]

The Breeding of Goldfinch-Twite Hybrids.

Sir,—I would like to say with regard to the correspondence over the Goldie-Twite cross, that it is by no means new, as Messrs. Muir and Hennan (well-known British bird exhibitors) have bred various crosses through the Twite. The Goldie-Twite was the most common, and they, to my knowledge, showed it on the bench last year. I may state that they have still in their bird-room a few more of the same cross. I expected to see in your last issue of CAGE BIRDS a letter from either of these gentlemen, making mention of the fact. Their modesty, I expect, has kept them from rushing into print, hence the reason I write. I wish CAGE BIRDS continued success.

WELL-WISHER.

[The claim made was, we fancy, that Mr. Alexander's birds were the first bred in Ireland.—Editor.]

SIR,—I beg to inform your numerous readers that last season I was fortunate enough to get eggs and youngsters. The Goldfinch was a Scotch Goldie and the hen Twite was caught in this vicinity. In all she had over a dozen eggs. I may say that the Twite built her own nest in a tree in one of my aviaries, and hatched four youngsters, but let them die after four days. I tried the other eggs under different hens, but with the same result—after four days old they seem to die. My hen died at the beginning of the season or else I would have had another try. I may say that I have eggs of the Greenfinch cock and Bullie hen, also of the Bramblefinch cock and Chaffinch hen. I have also with eggs a pair of Greenfinches breeding in a cage. I am waiting on results—looking for the cloud with the silver lining. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

Whose Youngsters Are They?

Curious Happening in an Aviary.

Sir,—I should like your opinion on the following: I have a cock Chaffinch, cock Twite and hen Greenfinch, flying in an aviary, 10ft. square, with Budgerigars and other foreign birds. One day I noticed an egg on the floor, and saw the Greenfinch looking a bit seedy, and afterwards she started carrying moss, etc., for a nest. I formed a rough nest with hay, and placed it in a Cockatiel nest-box, close to roof. She built her nest on top, and has now four youngsters. The peculiar part about it is all three birds are feeding the youngsters. Is this an uncommon cross? It is very doubtful whose the youngsters are, as I noticed both the Chaffinch and Twite "driving" the hen. I have had the Chaffinch 5 years, the hen Greenfinch 5 years, and the Twite 3 years. They are fed on a good mixed seed, plenty of different seedling grasses and greenfood, soaked Osborne biscuits, beetles, caterpillars, etc.

The History of a Cage-Bred Bullfinch.

(See photograph on front page this week).

SIR,—I herewith enclose photo of my favourite Bullfinch having his morning bath. He is a fine bird, and the history of him is, his parents were caught, the cock at Bishop Stortford and his mother at Dunmow (both in Essex). They were caught last November twelve months. He was bred in a cage 4ft. wide, 5ft. high by 20 inches. The old birds had two nests, but did not rear the young. I placed one egg under a Yorkshire hen Canary, which she hatched, and brought this young bird up. This season I have put him with a Yorkshire hen Canary, and am pleased to say they are building a nest, so I hope to have some luck by them. Having heard from other bird breeders that it is a very rare thing for a pair of wild birds to breed in captivity, I thought it would be of interest to your readers. The small inset photo shows this young cock Bullfinch with the above-mentioned Yorkshire hen, in the breeding cage.

W. T. ABBOTT.

[Writing later, Mr. Abbott says that he regrets to have to report that the eggs of the first nest have proved unfertile, but that he hopes for better fortune with the next clutch.—EDITOR.]

Reported Hatching of Some Remarkable Hybrids.

A reader states that he has young in the nest from an Orange Bishop and a hen Canary.

Sir,—I have at last been successful in obtaining two young ones (now a week old) from an Orange Bishop cock and a Buff Green Norwich hen. Until this I have been exceedingly unfortunate in this aviary, having lost every nest of eggs. I had cock Greenfinch (Muler), hen Chaffinch, two hen Canaries, cock Goldfinch (Muler), cock Siskin (Muler). The Canaries laid and would sit, but from each nest I found the eggs gradually disappear. I watched and could not find which had them. I took three away—Goldfinch-Chaffinch and Greenfinch—thinking possibly it might be one of them who relished the eggs. I had seen the Orange Bishop pair several times with this Buff Green hen, and anxiously watched and waited for eggs. What I think the more extraordinary is the fact that the Orange Bishop is not in his "breeding plumage," as he moulted about the end of last December, or January, and is still in his winter garb. I had a Canary (prize-bred Plainhead Norwich) hen, one from a noted breeder, which cost 20s., sitting on three good eggs, and was expecting her to hatch in a day or two. I noticed this hen was off rather too much, but being such hot and close weather I thought that might be the reason. But the next day I noticed the same occurrence, so I went and took down the nest to see if eggs had hatched; it was empty, not a sign of an egg. The hen was flying about with the other birds. Having some eggs that had been sat on and were of no use, I put two of them in the nest (one was addled) and stood away under cover, and watched. After a time she went to the nest and saw the eggs and was there some time looking at them, and turning them over, as I thought. When she came away I took the nest down, and she had commenced to eat the addled one. Then I concluded what had become of all the others. I caught her up. The other hen went to nest and laid four eggs and hatched two young, but the cock Orange Bishop takes no interest in them whatever. It rests between the hen and myself, as we both feed the young. I had another Buff Green hen that had commenced to build in another cage, so I caught her up and put her in the same aviary and hung the cock Canary in a cage on the wires outside. This hen called, and the Orange Bishop paired immediately with her, and I am in hopes I may get a nest of the same cross from this one. My hens this season have turned out failures for feeding. Do you know of any previous record of such a cross? I am also trying to procure a cross from an Oryx Weaver. He is just coming into breeding plumage; moulted about same time as the Orange Bishop. It is the same Orange Bishop that I wrote about last season, that a hen Bullfinch took a fancy to, owing, as I supposed, to his bright colours, but shortly after he had a very quick moult and lost his bright plumage, being more like a light coloured Sparrow. The hen Bullfinch's affections then waned, and she took no notice of him. I unfortunately lost the hen in moult. I think there is a large and interesting field for experimenting in Hybrid and Mule breeding in the varied consignments of foreign birds, both seed-eating and softbills, imported into England, but anyone going in for such must be prepared for failure after failure; and after each failure to come up again smiling with the determination to succeed. The above have only been attained after trying every season for many, many years.

More Twin Canaries.

Sir,—It may interest you to know that I have twin birds (Canaries), both from one egg. They are now about eight weeks. I believe they are both cock birds, and they are in the best of health.

H. Skinner.

Another Hen Blackbird that Maims Nestlings.

Sir,—Referring to a letter in to-day's issue (12th) of Cage Birds, signed "Mancunian," I would like to say that, curiously enough, shortly after reading the letter referred to I had occasion to visit my garden aviary and found a hen Blackbird busily nibbling at a small object on the ground of the flight. It looked horribly like a nestling, and upon entering I found a young bird about a week old, presumably a Java Sparrow (of this I am not certain) with the beak nearly eaten off, no other part of the bird being in any way injured. This is not the first time I have found nestlings thus maimed, and now I have no doubt about my tame hen Blackbird being the offender. I had never had a like experience before her ladyship was placed in the aviary, and I have kept birds in this way for several years.

(Mrs.) A. Lester.

The "Only Way" to Sex Young Canaries.

Sir,—There is only one way to tell. The young Canaries are more difficult than the old birds. By the vent I can tell the sex when a bird is a week old, and I have sorted young Canaries for fanciers many times, also Goldfinch-Canary Mules. I have had nests of Blackbirds and other birds brought for me to tell which are the cock birds, and have often been asked to tell parties about a bird they have bought for a cock, and it has been a hen. I tell them it will lay another season, and it has proved true. A cock bird's vent is about a sixteenth of an inch from the body, and a hen's vent is perfectly flat. This is the only way you can tell. I have been in the Fancy about 50 years (have had Cage Birds nearly all the time it has been out). I think young fanciers should get to know how many feathers there are in the wing of a bird (the flights), also how many feathers there are in the tail, as feathers are removed sometimes to make a bigger price of a bird.

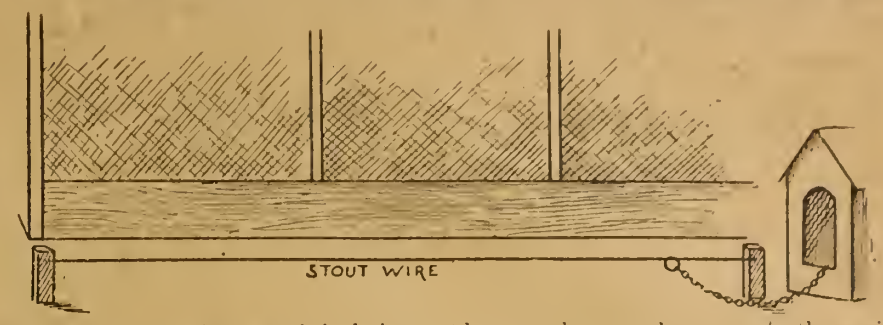
The Linnets' Human Foster Parent.



Sir,—Stanley Rennison, Seaton Delaval, is acting as foster parent to five little Linnets which were left parentless when three days old. He found the nest just before the youngsters were hatched, and on going back five days later, found in the nest five little Linnets in an exhausted state. He thought it strango that the birds did not make the usual display of gaping mouth and squeaking noise when he put his hand near the nest, and, being curious, looked about and saw that the two parent birds had been attacked and were lying dead at the foot of the tree. Stanley took the birds home in his handkerchief and at once commenced forcible feeding. Since then the youngsters have never looked behind and have given him quite a busy time attending to their insatiable appetites. The Linnets are now almost ready for flying.

Dogs as Aviary Guards.

Also Some Interesting Breeding Experiences.

Sir,—I was very sorry to hear of Mr. Weston's bad luck in having birds stolen, and to those fanciers who happen to have a good dog perhaps this idea may come in useful. Have the dog kennel at end of the aviary, with two stout posts driven into the ground at each end, and a strong wire line running from post to post, with a good-sized ring on the wire (put the wire about six inches from the ground). The dog can then run the full length of aviary, and is useful for keeping cats away (note the sketch). I got 5 eggs from my hen Bullie, although she would not sit. I have them now under a hen Canary. She laid 4 in the nest box and one on bottom of cage owing to my taking out the Goldie. I have also a Canary bringing up 4 Brown Linnets. She was sitting two or three days over her time, and the young Linnets were about 10 days old when given her, yet she fed them within 10 minutes of having them. They are now getting about the cage.

J. W. Wright.

Skylarks Bred in an Aviary.

Sir,—I have a hen Skylark sitting on three eggs in my aviary. Both Skylarks were wild birds, bought from a bird shop. The hen I have had five years and the cock two years. The aviary is 5ft. square, with a grass floor, and is only 6ft. from a passage leading to four houses, where people are constantly passing. I would like to know if this is uncommon, and if they have been bred in an aviary before. I shall try to get a photo of nest and eggs, and will send you one if you think it would be of any use. I wish Cage Birds every success.

F. Griffin.

SOMETHING ABOUT MY NIGHTINGALES.

By W. E. TESCHEMAKER, B.A. (Teignmouth).

We certainly also ought not to be satisfied with a bird which only sings for three weeks in the year. I find that slightly heating a bird-room will generally induce a Nightingale to break into song soon after Christmas. This year mine commenced in the middle of January and continned until June 7, but the monlt seems to be exceptionally early this season. I expected to get three weeks more song. Some birds will sing a little in the autumn, but the song is seldom of good quality. I think I have sufficiently pointed out the great value of a Sprosser in bringing a Nightingale into song; but do not forget that a Sprosser will almost always succeed in silencing a Nightingale after a time by its more powerful voice. Two Nightingales, however, will keep a Sprosser in check and make a good combination. There is snch a thing as a Nightingale singing itself to death in a song competition, especially a fresh-caught bird, bnt it is rare; generally the vanqnished bird will sulk for a time and so get a rest.

The Value of Exercise.

Before all things, let ns remember that we cannot possibly expect song from a bird which is over fat, and this condition is really one of ill-health. We shall probably not be troubled with this condition if we feed our song birds on a very simple diet, avoiding mealworms as mnch as possible, and see that they get sufficient exercise. I like to see a Nightingale in a cage three feet long, with open ends, and with just two twig perches set as far apart as possible, so that the bird has to nse his wings to cross from one to the other.

To compel the bird to take exercise, I tap the cage at one end with one hand, thns forcing him to the other perch, then I drive him back again with the other hand, "speeding him up" (as they say in America) faster and faster. With a very lazy bird it is sometimes necessary at first to put one's hand into the cage and actually pnsh him from perch to perch! Having once made the bird understand what is required of him, it will generally only be necessary to clap the hands, give a word of command, and off he will go. As yon may very likely think this a first-class way to make a bird wild, perhaps I may mention that I recently had the pleasnre of showing my Nightingales to that well-known expert, Mr. P. F. M. Galloway, and was able to prove to him that a bird trained in this way would stand as steady as a rock and allow itself to be stroked.

A Lover of Beautiful Song.

I have always regarded the keeping of Nightingales, whether rightly or wrongly, as one of the higher branches of avicnltnre. Anyone who will take so much trouble in order to bring into his own house the most beautifnl of all bird-songs is probably a man of some taste, and not in quest of dollars or notoriety. The trapping of a moderate number of males is an actual benefit to the Nightingale community, because more males retnrn in the spring than females, and the unmated males greatly interfere with the mated birds; but it can be overdone, and it is overdoue in parts of Germany to-day. Also there are a certain number of Nightingales which will not submit to captivity, and, nnless these wilder birds are released at once, they are doomed. Doomed also are those that fall into careless or inexpert hands. But let ns bear in mind that (in the words of a well-known play) "this is a hard world, a blackgnard hard world." In this world there cannot be hope without fear, joy without sorrow, or virtue if there be no vice. We can only try to make our particular birds as happy as possible.

Let us never forget that when we cage a Nightingale we take from Nature one of her rarest gifts, and, shonld we neglect it, she will snatch that gift away from our nnworthy hands. So let us treat our Nightingale as a companion and a valued friend; let us talk to him and amuse him and show him that we estimate him at his real value, and we shall be repaid a thousandfold.

An Aviculturist of the Olden Time.

I recently came across a link with the past for all lovers of the Nightingale, which seems to me to be very interesting, not only in itself, bnt because it shows in what great esteem the Nightingale-lovers of long ago held their favonrite bird. This charming old Latin epitaph was originally inscribed on a marble vase, which, in the year 1622, was preserved in an old honse near the Porto del Popolo at Rome. The inscription has been preserved for ns by Olina, an Italian anthor who wrote a work on Natural History, pnblished in that year. My best thanks are tendered to Mr. J. E. Harting, the well-known ornithologist, who very kindly copied the inscription for me.

I have translated it into English verse, but I am afraid there are some points in it which are never likely to be fully explained. These old inscriptions are not always easy to translate; this one has evidently been incorrectly copied (by Olina) in two places, and one can only guess what the original text may have been. I restored it as I thought best, and then sent it, with the translation, to my former Headmaster, Bishop Welldon, who most kindly sent it to Mr. Sandys, the Public Orator of Cambridge University, for a second opinion. Its age seems to be donbtful; from internal evidence I thought it old, but Mr. Sandys, whose opinion is of the highest value, considers that it was probably written early in the sixteenth century. I have since heard from him, however, that some authorities think it much older and that Belloni includes it in his "Relics of Ancient Rome." All that we definitely know is that in the year 1622 it was considered old. Not even the united wisdom of Mr. Sandys and Bishop Welldon has been able to throw any light on the statement that the Nightingale which came to such an nntimely end was "selected from the aviary of the Domitii," so I have translated this and some other lines in a general sense.

How Licinius Treated his Nightingale.

There are several points which have special interest for us avicnltnrists. Let us note that this Nightingale was kept in a highly decorated cage in its master's bedroom. There was no "penny tin drinker" in that cage, but a valuable goblet (in a private letter, Mr. Harting writes—"What were the pocula myrrhina, which the old Romans prized so much, made of? Painted glass or china? Probably Oriental porcelain), and this was the cause of its sad death.

We are told that the bird was fed on "pastilla." I am sorry to observe that Licinius was not a believer in live insect food, but we must recollect that in a warm climate a Nightingale would do much better on a farinaceous diet than in this conntry. If the epitaph is not earlier than the 16th century, "pastilla" would probably be the soft-food mentioned in my former article (horse-beans grownd fine, sweet almonds, butter, yolk of egg, saffron, and honey), which we are told "is the only meat nsed in Italy for the preserving of Nightingails and is made by the Apothecaries and sold ont by the Penny-worth as frequently as Mithridate or Diascordium is here: this is ready at all times and will continue seven or eight months."

Let Us Honour His Name.

Let us also note that, when his favourite bird died, its master did not tell the "slavey" to throw it into the ash-pit; with his own hands this Roman buried it, and, whilst he did so, he shed tears. Please also observe that Licinius did not keep birds by the dozen or the hundred. No; he kept one bird and that bird he treated as a companion and friend. The resnlt was that his Nightingale would sing when perched upon his finger! Now, if there is any reader who claims to have equalled this feat, let him no longer hide his light under a bushel but come forward and tell ns about it. If there are no claimants, then let us take off our hats to Licinius, gentlemen, and give him three times three, for I think yon will admit that he has beaten ns! The reference in the words "the lone and deadly Lake" is to Avernus, the entrance to Hades, described by some ancient writers as a lake from the surface of which such poisonous vaponrs rose that birds flying across it fell in and were destroyed.

The Nightingale's Epitaph.

To Gods and Birds this stone I dedicate:
To Philomel, a Nightingale destroyed by Fate.

No songster owned by the Domitii
In voice or glossy plnmes with thee could vie.
How oft, dear minstrel, hast thon snng thy lay,
Perched on my finger in thy winning way?
Alas! whilst dipping in thy goblet bright,
Thon didst fall in—and drown, nnlucky wight!
But yesterday wast flitting to and fro
Singing so blithely: now thou liest low
In the chill water's sombre shroud reposed.
Thy feathers draggled and thy bright eyes closed.
Thon wast Licinius' darling and his care:
Licinius fed thee with the daintiest fare;
Didst nestle in his bosom and wast kept
In his own inner chamber where he slept.
With tears, beloved, I lay thee now to rest!
Farewell to that I prized and loved the best!
That flew to greet me as I came and went
And lavished on me song and blandishment.
Farewell! Swift flight to far Elysinm take,
But shun, dear bird, the lone and deadly Lake.

In dainty cage who sang and danced so gay
In Death's dark prison now is voiceless clay.

The "Eternal City" still stands upon its seven hills, but its imperial glories have gone for ever; Licinius lies in some forgotten grave, unhonoured and nnsung; bnt this little Nightingale has achieved immortality. Even to-day the graven stone tells us how it lived and how it died, and we can almost hear its throbbing notes ringing still through the long centuries! What better epitaph conld anyone desire than this? In his life to have soothed, if only for a passing hour, the sorrow of the world, and in his death not to be forgotten. This is the crown all singers seek to win; but how few shall wear it!

ROUND THE YOUNG BIRD SHOWS.

REDHILL C.B.S.

Y.B. show held July 2 at Lindsey's Hotel. The quantity exceeded last year, and quality was very good. We should have liked to have seen more visitors at the show, but several other things were on that day.—A. W. Hacon, hon. sec.

[From catalogue received we gather that the principal winners were: NOR.: Miss Edwards, Wade. YORKS.: Miss Cameron, Martin, Britton, Roser, Bacon. BORD.: Bacon, Hewett, Martin, Smith. HARROGATE C.B.S.

Annual F.F. show held Lowther Arcade Band Room, July 5. Fifty birds were staged, some very promising birds being on view. Mr. W. H. Hamlyn won spl for best bird with a buff of good length, typical, and in the pink of condition. Mr. W. Mundell, judged, his awards giving every satisfaction.

ROTHERHAM C.B.S.

Members' F.F. show held at Mail Coach Inn, June 28. Entries were about usual, and the quality average. Mr. G. Stringer won spl for best young Yorks. with a nice cl. buff, and Mr. G. Stafford spl for best young Nor. with a good cl. yell. Mr. W. J. Turner running him very close with a variey. buff, a little too young as yet, but will be heard of again. Mr. J. PARTICK C.B.C.

F.F. show held Foresters' Hall, Dumbarton Road. Entries were down a little from last year owing to the bad breeding season some members have had. Quality throughout was very good, some grand birds being staged. Mr. Maxwell won spl. for best bird with a grand buff variey. Plainhead, Mr. Crammond following closely with a nice Border. Mr. F. WATFORD C.B.S.

Ninth annual Y.B. show held July 2, in Conservative Hall. Some 90 birds were staged, among which were some very promising youngsters in both Nor. and Yorks, the former being some of the best seen this season near or in London. Mr. Fox's clear buff and variegated were of nice shape, size, and quality, Mr. Sears running very close with some good birds. Yorks also were good, Mr. Clark's clear buff taking the cup for best young bird, a very fine upstanding bird of nice feather and quality. Mr. Buckingham running up with some good ones, but seemed hardly up to his usual standard. Crests were cancelled. Dame Fortune has not been very kind to most of the breeders, several disasters having been reported, which no doubt accounted for the paucity of entries, this being the smallest show the society has had for some time. Hybrids were few, but good, Mr. Higham's Canary-Bullie looking well and shown in good form, being greatly improved since the autumn fixture. Foreigners were excellent. Mr. Watts's exquisite team turned out in faultless condition and were greatly admired by the visitors. Mr. Buckingham's team contained some good birds. Mr. Rackley, the sec., carried out his duties in his usual painstaking manner. Mr. J. Goodall judged and appeared to have given every satisfaction. The show was fairly patronised by visitors, but the attendance was not up to the usual numbers, no doubt owing to the fixture being held in mid-week instead of on a Saturday as usual.

SPEN VALLEY C.B.S.

Second of a series of six shows, held at Commercial Hotel, Cleckheaton, July 5th. The Society is now in a very flourishing condition, having some valuable specials to compete for, including two silver cups, also two silver rose bowls. The four classes for Yorks. averaged 12 per class. Mr. Fred Armstrong, Halifax, judged, and congratulated the members on their having bred such most promising youngsters. Several with a good moult will no doubt be heard of again. The class for Green-Mkd. Yorks. was acknowledged to be one of the finest ever seen at a young bird show. Competition is proving very keen, very few points separating several exhibitors.

NEW CROSS C.B.S.

Second Y.B. show of season held at People's Hall, Tanner's Hill, Deptford, July 3; 58 exhibits being staged. The members did badly at the beginning of the breeding season, which accounts for the small entry. Borders were the strongest section, as usual here; champion entries were few, but novices turned up strong, there being three nice classes. Novice Norwich again easily beat the champions, both in numbers and quality, special for best in show going to this section, Mr. Fuller winning with a nice tkd. yell., runners-up, Messrs. Burton Bros., marked Bord. Mr. E. Meades judged and his awards met with general satisfaction.

NORTH-WEST GLASGOW C.B.S.

First Feather show, held in Blythwood Halls, Great Western Road, July 5th. Over 50 birds were staged, to be judged by Messrs. A. Sloan and C. Martin. The decisions were extremely satisfactory. Mr. P. Houston's cl. yellow Norwich cleared the pool, receiving spl. for best bird in hall, medal for best bird shown by champion, and spl. for best rung bird. Mr. John Houston's Yorkie received medal for best bird shown by a novice. It is interesting to note that John is following his father's footsteps in the way of medals. Mr. P. Thom received the medal for best second prize bird.

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.C.

Annual F.F. show, held in lesser Public Hall, Alexandria, July 5. The dropping of British and Foreign classes gave the show a less spirited appearance, but quality was a great improvement on previous years, Yorks. making a sensation. The arrangements were well carried out by President Donaldson and Messrs. Campbell and J. McEwan, stewards. Mr. R. Jeffrey, Glasgow, judged and gave great satisfaction.

F.F. show held in Mr. Blackley's Hall. Judges were Mr. W. S. Wilson, Hamilton; Mr. T. Morrison, Burnbank; and their awards gave every satisfaction. Entries were very good considering some of the members had no birds to show. Specials for best bird in each section were won by Messrs. Hannah, Wilson, Marshall. A smoker followed the show, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

F.F. show held July 5 in Nelson's Temp. Hotel, Ingram Street, Glasgow. Unfortunately, owing to a number of the members failing to get any youngsters in the early part of the season, entries were not up to the usual. However, close on 40 birds were staged, some of them of great promise. Mr. E. Barron judged, and his awards were received with satisfaction.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE O.S.

Show of young birds held at headquarters, July 1. Norwich and Yorkshires were staged, and judging was in the hands of the well-known expert, Mr. W. A. Bladon, of the M. and N.C.O.S. A great favourite with the members, he again added to his popularity, and our many debts of gratitude. If numbers staged are anything to go by, the Yorks fanciers must have had better luck than the Norwich members, but entries, as a whole, proved what a poor season it has been. The judge criticised the exhibits, and his remarks must have been very gratifying to the owners of the prize winners, especially so to the four first prize-takers. In his opinion, given fair luck and a good moult, they should be heard of during the coming show season.

GLOSSOP, HADFIELD, C.B.S.

F.F. show held in Lecture Room, Victoria Hall, Glossop, June 28th. A nice attendance of fanciers was again the feature of another successful venture. The whole of the members look forward and work hard for the successes attained in their two annual shows, and are to be complimented for the high-class specimens staged, chief amongst these being the splendid Yorkshire staged by Mr. E. Thompson, which won the handsome gold-centre medal, presented by Mr. H. Garside for best bird in show. The old bird class was again very strong. Mr. John Garner, Stockport, again judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

WEST FIFE C.B. LEAGUE.

F.F. show held in Masonic Hall, Cowdenbeath, July 5; over 100 entries faced the following judges: Scotch and Yorks, Mr. Cowen (Kelty); Plainheads, Mr. G. Rae (Dunfermline); Crests and C.-B., Mr. H. Kemp (Dunfermline); Border and A.O.V., Mr. J. W. Holmes (Cowdenbeath); British, Mules, and Common, Mr. Raith (Lochgelly). The show was well patronised, and the innovation proved a success, most of the Fife fanciers making the event a rallying place to discuss their various joys and griefs. We fear the latter predominated, as the majority have experienced a very poor season up to the present. We expected to see a good turn-out from the Grewar and Harris's stables, but they apparently would not risk their babies. The sensation of the show was a clear buff Siskin-Canary Mule, bred and exhibited by a novice to the art, Mr. J. Thompson (Dunfermline), who, we understand, has also a few variegated from the same pair, and has also been successful in getting some exceptionally good Darks of the same cross. We hear that a jonque self-Cinnamon of the cross has been produced in the district, but it did not make its debut here. We noticed a few instances of prizes awarded to birds which should have been wrong classed, and Mr Raith evidently failed to find any merit in the clear Mule, as it only secured a commended. We were informed that he failed to identify the cross. Quite a few well-known breeders gave it the closest examination, and without exception pronounced it genuine, a decision in which we share, and heartily congratulate Mr. Thompson on his achievement.

MANSFIELD C.B.S.

F.F. show held June 28. The entry was good and quality was all that could be desired. Mr. Allsopp led the way in Yorks, and the team of birds that he put down was the envy of the Yorkie fanciers. Our host and hostess (Mr. and Mrs. Farrand) take a delight in decorating the show-room, and they deserve a word of praise in going one better this time. DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

Tenth annual Y.B. show held at headquarters, Reindeer Hotel, Peckham, July 1. Entries were well up to the average, Norwich were a grand show, some very fine youngsters were to be seen in both champion and novice, and a marked improvement was made in the Yorkshires exhibited, especially in novices. British birds were disappointing; a few very nice Crest and Crest Bred were exhibited. A large number of members and fanciers generally, attended the show during the evening; seven new members gave their names in for nomination. Mr. Frank Cole, with his usual promptness, had catalogues on sale a few minutes after the judging was over. Mr. Hudson, secretary, had everything well in hand, being ably assisted by Messrs. Tomsett, Fairman, Cant, and Keeks. Mr. F. Easterling judged.

ABERSYCHAN C.B.S.

Young bird show held July 5. About sixty birds were staged, including some very good youngsters. Yorks and Norwich were well up in numbers and quality very good, but British did not come up to scratch. In Yorks Mr. Ashman showed some very fine birds, also did Messrs. Clarke, Parry, Cooper, and Jones. In Norwich Mr. H. Workman showed a team of splendid birds, especially a marked yellow of very good quality and feather, which secured 1st and spl. in a class of 14. Mr. H. Workman won special for best bird bred by member. There was a record attendance, including some old fanciers, of whom we are hoping to make members in the near future. The officials worked well and the show was excellently staged by W. F. Couch, assisted by Vice-Chairman E. J. Parry. Messrs. Hillman and Broom judged and gave the utmost satisfaction. The committee wish to tender best thanks to the judges.

CRAGHEAD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

N.F. show, held Punch Bowl Inn, Craghead, in a nice room lent by Mr. L. Collcotts. There was a good turn-out for a novices' show. There were a few old fanciers among them to let them see what they want amongst their stocks. There was a lot of talk about the first and third Linnet; it was not up in tail, or it was the best in class. There was a lot of people to see the birds, and I think they could get a good show if they would stick together. Committee: Messrs. M. Beecroft, T. Horwood, J. Anderson, T. Robson, W. Soulsby, W. Cameron; hon. sec., A. Dowson; judge, James Stanger.

PORTSMOUTH AND SOUTHERN COUNTIES C.B.S.

Fourth annual Y.B. show held at Long's Memorial Hall July 2, was a decided success. Entry was a record for 166. The exhibits were well staged and arranged for, and the attendance was very large, the place being packed during the evening. Sees. Messrs. King and Joiner, with a willing committee, carried out the show in a manner that left nothing to be desired. Yorks. topped the sections in number, and contained many promising youngsters; Norwich, though not up to number were a decided improvement on last year, in size, shape, and quality, especially in Novices. One of the best birds in this section had to stand back through being damaged by the carriers, hard luck on Mr. Mark Fleming, they should be made to pay. Mr. H. Young judged, and appeared to give satisfaction.

MANCHESTER AND N.C.O.S.

24th annual first feather, July 5th, in the St. Paul's Schoolroom, Bennett-st. There were just over 100 entries, which, considering the poor season some of the members have had, was good. Yorks. and Nor. came up the best, and a finer lot of youngsters it would be hard to find. British did not come up so well, owing to some being in the moult and others being paired up for Mule breeding. Mr. R. Evans won gold medal for best team of four Canaries, all one variety, bred by exhibitor, with a grand lot of Yorks., which we wish him luck with. The room is a grand one for a bird show, well lighted and free from draughts. Mr. H. W. Battye judged.

POPLAR C.B.S.

Very successful young bird show held July 5 at headquarters. Entries numbered about 100, quality being particularly good. Some of the exhibits will no doubt be heard of later on if they are fortunate enough to get a good moult. Mr. Leech stoged a good Yell. Nor., short and thick set, with a capital head; this bird won the special for best in the section. In Yorks Mr. H. W. Cook did the same with a yell. of good type; he also had two charming birds in the buff class, standing first and second. Messrs. Hunt Bros. staged some very typical specimens. Novice birds were very little behind the champions; we particularly admired Mr. Mashoff's winners in Norwich and Yorks. These two secured spl for best in their respective sections. Mr. G. Woodcock won in the British and Foreign; all his birds were beautifully staged, and looked fit to show anywhere. Cup for best unflighted Hybrid was secured by Mr. J. Braithwaite with a bonny Linnet-Canary of rare size and substance that should do well in the winter. Mr. H. W. Cook managed the show in his usual able manner, assisted by Messrs. Barker and Lang. Mr. H. Norman judged.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND YORKSHIRE C.C.

Table Show of Young Birds held July 9, when considering the bad breeding season and our being a new society we had a very nice turn out. Mr. J. Nixon left no cause for comment upon his awards. Messrs. Tweedie and Stewart sent us some right good exhibits. CHAMP., CL. YELL.: 1, 2, Tweedie; 3, Stewart. BUFF: 1, Tweedie; 2, Lyall; 3, Stewart. MKD. YELL.: 1, 2, 3, Pearson. BUFF: 1, Stewart; 2, Huntington; 3, Pearson. G. Tweedie captured the medal for best champion exhibit. The novice section was not so well filled, and the premier prizes went to Messrs. R. P. Bostock and W. Burns. Novice medal was won by W. Burns. Fanciers please note subs. are now overdue, but any sent to me previous to August 6th, our next meeting, will be eligible to compete for season's specials.—J. Huntington, Hon. Sec.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS. O.S.

F.F. Show, July 12, Mr. J. Goode judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. Messrs. Bown and Boaler showed two strong teams of Norwich, which gave the judge some difficulty to separate. Mr. Boaler unfortunately got one of his birds wrong classed, which enabled Mr. Bown to take a useful lead in points, which count for specials offered at open shows. Crest classes were all cancelled. Mr. Hayter took the premier awards in British and Mule classes, while Mr. Saywell sent a splendid team of Softbills and Foreigners, the winner in the last-named class having gained 2nd at the Palace. HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING (Co. Durham).

Annual N.F. show, July 12. The venue was again the large room above the White Lion Hotel, a place nicely adapted for the purpose. The wretched luck in the breeding rooms experienced by many fanciers in the district precluded any possibility of a big show, yet there were about 50 or 60 birds staged, and the quality was all that could be desired. The popular secretary, Mr. R. H. Dixon, was unavoidably absent, being engaged in ambulance work in connecion with the Territorial manoeuvres, but his place was ably filled by the assistant sec., Mr. J. Turnbull, who had everything in applepie order, and got through his work without the slightest hitch. He was well supported by a fine body of fanciers, headed by the genial chairman, Mr. Matt Dixon, the others being Messrs. A. Leach (vice-chair), J. Turnbull (treasurer), and J. Hissett, J. Tarbett, C. Masters, J. Fenton, W. Finlay, and G. Lynn. Fine weather favoured the show, and we trust it will prove a financial success. Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) judged.

NOR. YELL. Second Young Stock Show July 12, in School Room at Charltons, a splendid place for a show. Many choice birds were staged. Mr. E. Woodhead (Hartlepool) placed the cards, and his awards met with general satisfaction. The members hold four shows each year at different places in the district. To fanciers in our district we give another invitation to join. Come and help to extend this most interesting hobby.

ORMSKIRK C.B.S.

Young bird show held in Church House, July 12. Entries were slightly under the previous year's total, the falling off being most noticeable in the Yorks., as they were conspicuous by their absence, not one of the classes containing an entry. Borders were the feature of the show, two strong classes containing some smart youngsters, and it is evident this Fancy has come to stay. Norwich were also of good quality, the principal winners being Messrs. J. W. Johnson, Goring, and Johnson, junr. The chief awards in Borders were secured by Messrs. Hesketh, Johnson, senr., Crompton and Tiffen. British and Hybrids contained some well-known winners, Mr. J. W. Johnson taking the lion's share, with Mr. Lewis runner-up. Beyond the winner in the Linnet class some very unsteady specimens were staged, one member suggesting the perches be bird-limed, the judge remarking that he wondered whether he was judging birds or mice. Mr. Wellings placed the cards with his customary skill.—T. H. Tiffen, hon. sec.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

Annual N.F. show held July 5 in Co-operative Hall. Entries were about the same as last year, there being a notably larger entry in the British classes. Judges were, Mr. W. Curry, Norwich; Mr. R. C. Tindale, Yorks.; Mr. A. Montgomery, Borders; and Mr. J. Maddison, British and Foreign. The thanks of the members are due to these gentlemen for the manner in which they did their work; also to Mr. Crawhall (chairman), and Stewards, Messrs. Irving, Pettersson, Greason, and Laidlaw; the hon. assistant sec. (Mr. J. Craig), also deserves a word of praise for the part he took to make the show a success. Mr. T. C. Crawhall won challenge cup for best Canary, with a clear buff Yorkshire. Mr. A. C. Young, challenge cup for best British or Foreign with a Sunbird.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen: all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ½-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

"PHOSTO"

Don't begin moulting without "Phosto." Don't give your birds tonics and medicines which do no good; give them "Phosto," which will build up the whole system, and enable them to stand the strain of moulting. Don't wait until your birds show signs of softness, start at once to build them up. "Phosto" is a great food, which has now become famous. Give a little with the colour food. A shilling may save you pounds. Don't forget, "Phosto" improves size, and don't forget the name. Sold in tins, 1/-, 2/6, 4/6.—Judge Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

"The Red Feed"

The greatest colouring food in the world. This wonderful Pepper cannot be excelled, and with Hot Natal and another ingredient, which not only gives brilliant colour, but that beautiful sheen which is so delightful in one's birds, the Red Feed must become distinguished. A change from one Pepper to another in anticipation of finding "the ideal" is well worth making. A trial will convince you that the change is for the better. No "perhaps" about this feed; it is absolutely IT. Sold in tins, 2/6 and 4/9: Judge Silk, The Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

MEDICINES.

MOULTINE.—The only certain cure for soft moult, asthma, wheezing, huskiness, etc.; in bottles, 6d. and 1/-, post paid: Parker, Chemist, Morecambe.

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle." This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

HIGHGATE & HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Sixth annual show of young Canaries and Hybrids, also Brit. and Foreign birds, at headquarters, July 12. The quality was good throughout, and some very fine youngsters were staged, 118 entries facing the judge, Mr. C. Battison, and his awards were received with satisfaction. An early start in judging and the valuable assistance of the stewards, Mr. F. Sparks and Mr. W. Shakespeare, enabled catalogue of awards to be on sale at opening of show. Mr. A. Lovegrove spl. best bird Champion Nor., and Mr. A. Wakefield spl. best amateur and novice sections. Other special winners were Messrs. J. Kent, T. H. Milsom, W. Cowie, Byrne, Brawbridge, Jones, Dann, Wills and Mound. All prize money and specials were paid out on day of show. There was a goodly number of visitors to the show, and, considering the disastrous season, several of our members have had, the show was a decided success. The Sec., Mr. J. Hyde, did his work well.

Club Reports.

CHELTENHAM C.B.S.

Through the kindness of the Principal (Canon Wakefield) the members were enabled to visit the magnificent museum at Cheltenham College. A good number availed themselves of the opportunity of viewing the wonderful specimens of birds—the best private collection of Foreign birds in the country, we believe. Mr. White, the curator, was in attendance, and pointed out the "extra specials," and explained several knotty points. One case, which attracted a lot of attention, contained a very large number of Birds of Paradise, all most beautifully mounted.

ATTERCLIFFE AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held Horse and Jockey, July 10, Mr. Havenhand presiding over good attendance. The first item of importance was the distribution of prize money and specials for N.F. show, and then, after the usual monthly business was dealt with, the rest of the evening was taken up with a discussion led by Mr. Perry on "Colour-feeding." The time at our disposal was all too short, a very enjoyable evening being brought to a close with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Perry.—W. Hailstone, Sec.

YORKS AND LANCS. B.B. & M.C.

Meeting held July 19, Market Green, Mr. W. A. Cowgill chair in absence of Dr. M. A. Wilson, who, we were sorry to hear, was laid up with a broken thigh. Vote of condolence from members present passed. Minutes of last meeting passed as read, on the proposition of Mr. Lane, seconded Mr. Ross. Letters then read re patronage. Following were passed en bloc:—Manchester and N.C.O.S., Oct. 21 and 25; Preston, Nov. 21 and 22; Doncaster, Jan. 10. Proposed Mr. Chittenden, seconded Mr. Lane. Also two new members made: Mr J. W Holmes, Bradford; Mr A. Hope, Manchester. New books were left in the hands of Mr Lane to arrange. Prize money to be same as last year both sections, Amateur and Professional. 1st, 25s., 2nd, 12s. 6d; 3rd, 5s.; also "Cage Birds" prizes, as last year, both sections: Amateur, 1st, 25s.; 2nd, 20s., 3rd, 17s. 6d.; Professional, 1st, 25s., 2nd, 20s.; 3rd, 15s.; also other specials to be given by the club, to be allotted later. Also trophy promised, which will be a good thing for this club. Auditors elected Mr R. Halliday, Mr. J. Lane. Will secretaries wanting patronage apply not later than second week in August, which is time for closing?—T. H. Inman, Hon. Sec.

SOUTHERN NORWICH P.C.

Will the club members, who have overlooked payment for subscription 1913, please send same before the 1st of Aug., as per Rule 3, so that they may partake of any benefits of membership, also any change in their address for rule book, which will be issued shortly? Will those of committee who have not sent in voting paper do so at once, so that I can allot patronage to be published in press? The club will be pleased to receive names of any fanciers who wish to join for the show season, with which enclose 1s. entrance fee.—F. S. Matthew, Hon. Sec.

NORTHERN BORDER & S.F.C.C.

Monthly meeting July 7, Mr. W. P. Smith (chair). Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted. Moved and seconded that Sec. write Alnwick Show asking them to put on extra classes to suit our patronage. Patronage given to Newcastle, Gateshead, and Haltwhistle, other three shows being required to fill up number required. Mr. W. Marshall, of Blythe, elected a member. The following are the awards at the table show: CLASS 1: 1, 2, Espie; 3, Craig. CLASS 2: 1, 2, Espie. CLASS 3: 1, 4, Allieck; 2, Farrer; 3, Montgomery. CLASS 4: 1, Farrer. NOV. SECTION—CLASS 5: 1, 2, he, Stubbs; 3, vhc, Smith; 4, Snaith. CLASS 6: 1, 4, he, Snaith; 2, vhc, Wilson; 3, Smith. CLASS 7: 1, Cosser; 2, Stubbs; 3, 4, Smith. CLASS 8: 1, 2, Smith. Hearty vote of thanks accorded the judge, Mr. W. Smith, who had a fairly stiff task, 34 birds being staged. This brought a splendid meeting to an end.—M. C. Potts, Sec.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
Secretary CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

Twitterings.

Mr. J. Walsh, Bird Specialist, Blackburn, has been engaged to judge Clitheroe show on Dec. 6, we hear.

Will Mr. A. Sourmely (?) who sent us some questions to be answered, kindly forward his address, so that we may reply?

I won 1st and spl, 2nd and vhc in Norwich at Middlesex show on July 10th and not Nields as per report, writes Mr. W. Nichols (Twickenham).

I have removed from Faxfleet Street, Bankfoot, to 414, Harewood Street, Bradford, writes Mr. W. A. Brown, secretary, Gt. Horton Good Intent O.S.

We have engaged Mr. J. Trengove to judge Norwich and Mr. A. Wellings the other classes at Preston Open Show Nov. 21 and 22, 1913, writes Mr. T. Barton, the sec.

At the Portsmouth and Southern Counties C.B.S. show, in the novice Mule section, writes Mr. W. Oakley (Fratton), I won special for best bred in 1913; your report has only got vhc.

Will you kindly inquire for me the address of Mr. Ernest G. S. Everard, who wrote a letter recently in your paper concerning freaks in Canary breeding? writes Mr. H. Teat, Ancaster, Grantham.

Mr. E. R. Griffith (Carnarvon) writes that he has been appointed to judge the cage bird sections at Brynsiencyn show, Anglesey, Aug. 30th; Ruthin Open show, Aug. 28th; and hopes to be well supported by members of the North Wales C.B.S. and others.

Can any reader give me the address of Mr. J. Needham, who some four years ago lived at Leicester, and who, I believe, has since emigrated to Canada or America? writes Mr. C. P. Smith, 40, Bearwood Hill Road, Burton-on-Trent. He was a well-known member of the Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S.

We hear from Mr. S. M'Collum, sec., that the annual open show of the Lurgan C.B.S. will be held on Nov. 21 and 22. Mr. P. Mason (Shipley) will judge Yorks., Nor., Brit., and For., and Mr. J. A. Stewart (Glasgow), Scotch Fancies and Belgians. We hope fanciers will send plenty of entries and their best exhibits.

Oxford F.S. next annual show will be held October 30th and confined to exhibitors residing in the counties of Oxon, Berks, and Bucks, and members of the society, writes Mr. A. H. Calcutt, the sec. Mr. G. H. Billett will judge. Any exhibitor wishing to guarantee a class or classes, such support would be appreciated.

A Pure White Jackdaw.

A Jackdaw, pure white all over, including the beak and legs, has been shot on Mr. Buckenham's farm, The Frith, Billericay.

Country Rambles.

The following rambles have been arranged: July 27, Bankfoot C.B.S.; July 26, Wibsey C.B.S. to Harden Beck, meet Newbys Corner, 2.0 p.m.

An All White Rook.

We have a pure white Rook in our garden, writes Mr. G. H. de Winton to "Country Life." I suppose his parents thought they had brought a monstrosity into the world, so kicked him out of the nest when his feathers came. We picked him up on the lawn on May 14th, and he is quite white, with blue eyes. We have fed him on worms and bread and cheese, and he has become perfectly tame, knows his name, Peter, and will come when called. He enjoys a bath, also a nice taste for strawberries. Give him a big strawberry, and he puts a foot on it while he pulls it to pieces. He has also a taste for blue lobelia blossoms, which I do not care so much for!

To Society Secretaries, Advertisers and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION, or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used.

Cockatoos at Large.

Two white Cockatoos are reported to be flying about in Richmond Park. They have evidently escaped from captivity, and do not appear to be at home in their new surroundings.

Cinnamon C.C. Patronage.

All applications for the club's patronage will be dealt with on July 31st. Societies please apply at once, writes Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, hon. sec., 18, Brunswick Road, Liverpool.

Epworth's Bid for Success.

At Epworth show, exhibitors from a distance need not fear sending exhibits on the Friday or Saturday before the show, as the secretary, Mr. Burrows, takes charge of all cage bird exhibits so sent, and keeps them in a place clear of draughts, and gives personal attention to them. See advt. in this issue.

The Thrush's Clarion Call.

Over a shop opposite All Saints' Church (says the "Manchester Guardian") in a window the bottom of which is filled with green and glowing plants and flowers, there is a fine Song Thrush in a cage. About seven in the evening, when the traffic at this busy spot is thickest, the pedestrian has to shout to make his remarks audible to a companion. It is proof of the power of the Thrush as a vocalist that you can hear the notes of this bird fifty yards away, loud and clear above the ear stunning roar and clangour of trams, motor-cars, etc., as he sings in the slanting beams of the declining sun.

OBITUARY.

It is with the deepest regret I have to announce the death of Mr. S. Armstrong, aged 78 years, the father of one of our most respected members, Mr. Jos. Armstrong, of Northgate, Anfield Plain. I am sure his fellow members and brother fanciers will join with us in expressing our deepest sympathy with him and his relatives in their sad bereavement.—R. Peart, sec. Anfield Plain C.B.S.

Currants for Blackbirds and Thrushes.

I have been in the habit of feeding Blackbirds and Thrushes in my garden with dried currants for many years, writes Mr. E. Simon, to a Manchester contemporary, with cocoanut for Tits, and breaderumbs for Robins. I always strew a handful of currants, which the Thrushes and Blackbirds take eagerly. I have watched a Thrush bring its young to my balcony and feed it with currants.

A Novelty in Nests.

A pair of Robins found a novel nesting place at Llandulas, on the North Wales coast. The birds built under a glass-covered artificial wreath on a grave near the churchyard. The wreath is slightly raised on one side, and in the vacant space the birds are rearing a brood of four. The nest is close to the church, and has been visited by many of the villagers, but the Robins appear to be quite at home with their family.

The Hours by Bird Song.

The clock of bird-song is constantly altering with the altering season, says that well-known ornithologist, Mr. Dewar, but it really does afford a sort of timepiece to those who care to follow it with nicety. Thus as the last Song Thrush notes on a rapt July evening early in the month tell me it is nine or five past—exceptionally ten past—so the first Lark notes on an early June morning tell me it is just about two o'clock.

Is the Cuckoo Reforming?

On the estate of Colonel A. M. Blake, at Welwyn, Herts, two young Cuckoos have been found with the parent birds in attendance. This, it is said, is the third successive year that Cuckoos have brought up their young at Welwyn.

When next I hear the Cuckoo call,
Sweet harbinger of summer days,
I shall not think of him at all
As one of mean, disgraceful ways.
Although the moral laws of birds
He formerly was used to flout
By teaching them those sinful words:
"Get on, or else get out!"

He once was fain—or, rather, she—
To seek some feathered comrade's nest,
And, of that dwelling making free,
To put the axiom to the test.
The scion of that selfish race
Pursued his pushful ways unchid.
The other nestlings gave him place.
In fact, he saw they did!

Now you may search and never find
More perfect parents than the pair
Who, more industriously inclined,
Decide their own sweet brood to rear.
But when these grow to birdhood—ah!
Then haply we shall hear them shout
In bell-like tones: "Now, pa and ma,

CAN YOU SPOT THE FAULT?

Five Shillings Cash (or Books) for the Correct Reply.

Our artist is of the opinion that this drawing depicts a Yorkshire Canary possessing one bad fault from the exhibition point of view, and he wonders whether readers can identify the particular show point in which the bird is lacking. We shall be pleased to give 5s. cash (or our bird books to value, as may be preferred) to the reader who correctly names this fault. Look the drawing over carefully then send us your opinion as to which is the bad point indicated by our artist. Your effort will cost you only a postcard, and your postcard may win you five shillings.

RULES.—Answer on the back of a postcard and write your name and address clearly underneath. Address your postcard to the Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., and post it to reach us not later than first post Thursday, July 31st. Only one effort is allowed each competitor. In the event of more than one accurate answer being received, the winner will be drawn for by an independent person.

RESULTS ALL YEAR ROUND!

CAGE BIRDS will sell your surplus stock at once. Advertise, and see for yourself.

"We are pleased with the sales of desiccated yolk of egg through CAGE BIRDS." LIVERINE, LTD. (Grimsby).

"I have had so many replies to my advert for a Roller Hen, that I cannot answer them all. I always find CAGE BIRDS a good paper for getting what I want."—B. WILLEY.

"Kindly make it known that the replies were so many I could not answer all correspondence respecting Raven advertised in CAGE BIRDS last week."—W. BROWN, JUN. (Long Buckley).

"I advertised a cycle for sale in CAGE BIRDS and I had so many replies that I could not possibly answer them all. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success."—THOMAS McGOVERN (Liverpool).

"Please thank, through CAGE BIRDS, the enquirers for my Waxwing. If I had replied to all it would have cost almost as much money as I had asked for the bird—another example of the wonderful results of advertising with CAGE BIRDS. —GEO. CAPEWELL (Haden Hill).

"In reply to my advt. in CAGE BIRDS I hold over a score of letters from all parts of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. It speaks volumes for your paper, and I should like you to thank those readers whom I have not answered. The goods were sold before their letters reached me."—L. WALKER (Golcar).

We hear that Mr. J. O. Williams (Bangor) will judge Holyhead Show, July 29.

The July number of "Bird Notes," the journal of the Foreign Bird Club, contains some extremely interesting and instructive articles, in addition to splendid illustrations and an exquisite coloured plate by Mr. Goodchild. Mr. W. A. Bainbridge contributes "My Aviaries and Bird-rooms," Mr. Herbert Bright "Early Episodes of 1913," and Mr. W. Shore-Baily an article dealing with the breeding of the Giant, Nigerian, Yellow, and Transvaal Weavers. There are also very entertaining instalments of Major G. A. Perreau and Mr. Westley T. Page's articles, and, too, a mass of correspondence and notes on bird life.

THE PATRONAGE OF SPECIALIST CLUBS.

HOW £200 CASH SPECIAL PRIZES MAY BE WON.

Splendid Progress of "Cage Birds" Great Scheme: Concessions as to Closing Dates: Further Questions and Answers.

SEVERAL secretaries have written us this week stating that owing to no meetings of their societies having been held recently, they have had no opportunity as yet of bringing our championship scheme officially before the notice of their members, therefore they ask to have the closing date for receiving applications extended. Some of the societies dispense with meetings during July and until the end of August, the members fore-gathering only at the Young Bird Shows.

To Meet the Wishes of Secretaries.

We are, needless to say, ready to take whatever course is best calculated to help societies and our scheme at the same time. We will, therefore, in deference to the views of our correspondents, put back the date, at which all applications from societies must reach us, until Saturday, September 20th. This should serve to give every society in our list of guaranteed shows the opportunity of enrolling its fixture in the list of Coupon Shows and participating in the benefits that will accrue from the working of our popular championship scheme, with its £200 worth of special prizes, practically entirely in hard cash.

We have been requested to add to our present list of Coupon Shows:—

BRECHIN C.B.S.
CARDIFF C.B.S.
LONDON C.B.A. (Horticultural Hall Show).
MATLOCK F.S.
THRUMS C.B.A.

The members of the Brechin C.B.S. send along a preliminary order for 120 coupons.

A Very Welcome Addition.

We are particularly pleased to welcome the Cardiff Society, as readers will doubtless remember that the first objection to any point in connection with the scheme was raised by its members. The Secretary, Mr. E. Thomas, assures us that our scheme has his best wishes for its success; we hope they may be realised and that Cardiff Show in its turn may be materially assisted towards success. It is—we may perhaps be pardoned for repeating—the main object of our scheme to provide exhibitors with something to stimulate them to support the shows freely, and to help maintain their interest in the exhibition side of the hobby.

The Horticultural Hall Show, held under the auspices of the London Cage Bird Association, also, it will be noted, figures in this week's list, and the magnificent classification provided at this popular fixture will afford exhibitors in all the sections covered by our scheme, splendid chances of annexing their diplomas.

Some of the Kindly Things Said.

Your Coupon Scheme I consider a good thing.—G. H. Barnwell (Harrogate).

I will do my best to sell coupons, and wish the scheme every success.—E. Thomas, Sec., Cardiff C.B.S.

Speaking from the exhibitor's point of view, I feel confident your championship scheme will be a success and a service to the Fancy.—F. Peace (Bradford).

I have ordered my coupons through the Longton C.B.S., writes Mr. E. Tams. I think your scheme will do well.

I think the Championship Scheme very good, and it ought to arouse great interest at the winter shows, as there is no doubt something is needed to compete for besides the ordinary prize-money. Kindly send me a pamphlet; I shall want some coupons.—E. Barker (Long Eaton).

From the Exhibitor's Point of View.

Returning to the financial side of the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view. Assuming that we reach a total of 100 Coupon Shows (we do not desire less, and shall welcome more) this means that CAGE BIRDS offers no less a sum than £100 in the form of 10s. special prizes alone, ignoring for the moment the diplomas and their value. And no individual exhibitor can take more than two of these 10s. specials, remember, and he has to win each with a different bird. Thus it is obvious that every exhibitor possesses a considerable number of opportunities of winning one of these cash specials, while the chances of securing a diploma with one, or more, of the varieties they keep and exhibit are very considerably higher, as no one can take more than one diploma in any one of the twelve sections we have provided. Further, exhibitors, of course, have still at all times their usual chances amongst the usual cash and special prizes offered at the shows.

At the Palace Show a further sum of £99 in cash and a ten guinea shield will be offered for competition amongst coupon birds. Here practically each variety has a substantial amount allotted solely to it. A fancier of Borders, for instance, competes only with other Border men, and has the opportunity of winning in his own section a sum of not less than 10s. and up to £5. He cannot spend more than two shillings to enable him to do so (for which he secures four chances); and he need not spend more than sixpence. This applies, of course, equally to fanciers of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Hybrids, British birds—the whole, in fact, of the 12 sections specified in our "Outline of the Scheme." It costs no fancier one penny extra in carriage or other expenses, and his birds have also their chances, to which the payment of the usual entry fee entitles them, for the ordinary prizes and specials offered by the Palace Show authorities in each class. Then one fortunate fancier will win a £10 10s. challenge shield and £13 10s. in cash, while another one will secure £13 10s. in cash; and of these two magnificent rewards, one must go to a novice fancier. Surely the prospect of being able to compete for and take a share in these splendid special prizes is sufficient to induce every exhibitor to invest two or three sixpences in coupons. Remember, it does not need a first prize bird; as only coupon birds can compete it is possible and probable that numbers of CAGE BIRDS special prizes will be won by exhibits which are low down in the ordinary prize list, and perhaps entirely out of it.

Some Questions and Answers.

Amongst our correspondence of the past week concerning the scheme, we find one or two questions that may perhaps profitably be dealt with here.

An exhibitor asks: If a fancier finds that he has more coupons than he requires, can he transfer them to another fancier who is short? Our answer given last week to a somewhat similar question also applies in this case—we have no objection to an exhibitor disposing of any coupons he is in a position to dispense with to some fellow-fancier desirous of using them in our competition. As we have said, each coupon will bear a number and we shall keep a record of all sold and used.

A secretary enquires: Am I right in surmising that any fancier who obtains coupons from me before the date specified for the sale of them to cease, will be able to make a repeat purchase from me, should he wish to do so, after the show season has commenced? If so will he be able to purchase as many as he chooses, or only as many as he bought in the first case? In reply, we would point out that our published rules (sec No. 2) state that previous purchasers of coupons have the right to buy up to the end of October additional coupons up to the number bought by them before the specified closing date. These can be ordered either from the same source as the earlier supplies or direct from our offices.

The Closing Date for Sale of Coupons.

The secretary of Cheltenham C.B.S. appeals also for an extension of the period over which coupons will be sold to exhibitors. He writes: "My members are strongly of opinion that your scheme will be even more successful if you do not limit the sale of coupons to August 31st. Hundreds more exhibitors would go in for it had they not to buy their coupons so long beforehand. We note your remarks about those who have already bought some and require more; but what about those who haven't bought?"

Well, we are willing to meet this view of the case as far as is possible, and will put back to September 30th the final date on which exhibitors are able to make their first purchase of coupons. This carries exhibitors practically to the opening days of the show season itself.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Will Mr. A. E. Richardson, of Rigby Street, kindly supply name of town, so that we may reply to his letter.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th, next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10s. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird, and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS
(4) BORDER FANCIES
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3; SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1; FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of September, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bona-fide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one diploma show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

The "Bulbul" of Poetry.

In an article headed "The Nightingale and its Sisters," the London Standard, after referring to our own Nightingale and the Sprosser, speaks of the Eastern Nightingale (Daulias golzi) as follows:—

"In some Continental countries Nightingale and Sprosser meet, but the two clans maintain their distinctness, showing that they are true species, not merely local forms of the same bird. The third Nightingale has a range and a reputation of its own; it ranges from the Caucasus to Turkestan and Persia, and is as much valued by bird-fanciers in India as the two European Nightingales are by those nearer home. This bird is the perfection of the Nightingale type; it is the most slender and elegant of the three, and has the longest tail, and it wears a peculiarly light and cool shade of the family brown, while it has the strongest voice of all though like the Sprosser's its music loses in sweetness what it gains in strength. This is the true Bulbul of Persian poetry, the bird that weeps when its beloved rose is gathered, and by its music causes the fair flower to unfold its petals. The legend is a lovely one, and it struck the present writer as rather an anti-climax when he was told of an instance in which a bird of this species, purchased in India, performed the more prosaic feat of causing an hotel to open in the small hours of the morning, his proud owner of a night being requested by the management to take that bird away at once or leave himself, as nobody could get any sleep on the premises!

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SEED SAMPLES (Water Glucke).—No. 1 rape is a very good all-round sample of summer rape, of fine quality; No. 2, also a first-rate sample of summer rape of good quality, but a little smaller and having a quite temporary strong flavour on the outer husk. It may be a little newer, and the latter feature disappears with a few months' longer storage. Of the two, No. 1 is the better. No 3 canary is another excellent seed of fine quality throughout. All three are eminently suitable for feeding high-class Rollers, the rape, of course, forming the principal item for contest singers, as you may find detailed in the dietary given in the Nutshell booklet No. 10, on The Roller, 2½d. post free from Manager, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet street, London, E.C.

NASTURTIUM AND SUNFLOWER (Thos. Smyth).—If you give a liberal supply of nasturtium blooms—the rich deep reds for preference—to Canaries all through the moult, they will, if the birds eat them freely, add depth of tone and brilliancy to the colour. Marigold blooms are also useful in the same way. But you must not expect birds moulted in this way to be able to compete for colour with those which are colour-fed in the orthodox modern way. The blooms may be given in conjunction with ordinary colour food. When supplied as the only aid to colour they are best adapted for those varieties where colour is of secondary account and the birds are intended to be shown as natural colour specimens. Sunflower seed, which needs chopping for the birds, is perfectly wholesome for and greatly relished by Canaries. Being a very rich oily seed, it should be used in quite small quantities. It is chiefly serviceable during the latter part of moult as a substitute for linseed, when birds reject the latter seed, and at other times as an occasional treat, or a substitute for hemp.

NOT SINGING (A. Frost).—It is quite the usual thing for birds to cease singing while moulting, and the length of time, eight weeks, your bird has been moulting is by no means excessive. Therefore, I think you only need a little patience, and will then find things work all right. Keep bird free from cold draughts, and in a cosy temperature. See cage is free from insects. Give a staple diet as advised to "Amateur" in this issue, and also a pinch of the seed mixture advised in that reply, every second day for a month. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and well sprinkled with maw seed. Give a little green food or wild seeds four times a week. Allow bird to bathe three or four times a week if it desires to do so. In the drinking water you may add twenty drops of Chemical Food three times a week for the same length of time.

AILING YORKSHIRES (Frascato).—I think it quite likely you are treating the moulting bird without first removing causes which tend to prolong the moult abnormally. You should look well into this and remove all predisposing causes before commencing treatment. See reply to "Amateur" in this issue and treat your bird on the same general lines. Give the same staple dict, and give the sponge cake with sulphur and maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and the seed mixture and the potash and saffron in water on the alternate days for same period. At the end of the fortnight substitute three drops of cod liver oil emulsion for the sulphur in soft food, and 20 drops of Chemical Food for the potash and saffron in the water. If not quite well by the end of the month please write again and repeat particulars. In regard to the bird which, as you say, gets cramp when it gets excited and hangs down on perch, examine its claws. I suspect they are much overgrown, and form a kind of hook, which gets fast round the perch and "trips up" the bird. If this surmise is correct, the remedy is obvious: trim the overgrown claws back to a proper length.

IS IT TOO LATE? (W.H.W.).—(1) Yes, decidedly, it is too late to continue breeding this season, particularly as the cock has already commenced to cast feathers. Even if you allowed him to put hen to nest again, the eggs would be practically certain to be "clear." Again, as you have already had five nests from the pair, which is far too many, it is altogether unreasonable to desire another. I am quite sure that "Cage Birds" has not taught you to go to this excess, neither is it the way to prepare for good results next season, as you say you mean to try for. You cannot do better than get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free, from our Manager, and be guided by its contents in future. (2) You can do absolutely nothing for the bird whose plumage is ruined by giving it too strong an alum bath. Nature will probably repair the damage when the bird moults, so you can only wait until that event takes place. I cannot imagine what induced you to give a bath of this kind. Certainly it has never been advised in this column. (3) The green bird you describe is a Greenfinch, so this is really a mule-breeding query. They breed Mules with the Canary very freely, but unless you are sure your specimen is of a trustworthy disposition it is best to remove the cock whilst the hen is sitting and rearing the young. Your broken eggs were doubtless due to his presence. If you have any further trouble with this pair, send a query on a separate sheet for Mr. Norman to attend to.

MOULTING SIX MONTHS (Amateur).—The bird will not resume song as long as it continues losing feathers. In all probability the cause of this prolonged moulting is exposure to cold draughts, or extreme fluctuations, or heated impure air, such as hanging near or over a burning light in the evenings, or high up near the ceiling. These predisposing causes must be wholly avoided in future. Keep the bird fairly warm for the next few weeks in order to encourage the normal moult to run its course quickly and uninterruptedly. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every third day for a month give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake (or its equivalent in bread and milk), dusted lightly with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed. On the intervening days give first a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, broken groats, and linseed, and next a half-ripe plantain stalk or some other wild seed-heads or seedy greenstuff. In the water add as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, and five drops of syrup of saffron every third day for a month. Offer a bath daily for a few minutes. Keep cage floor strewn with clean gritty sand; see that it is free from insect pests, and throw a light cover over it during this period. At the end of month stop all above drugs; add three drops of cod liver oil emulsion to the soft food, and 20 drops of chemical food to the water every second day for a fortnight.

CARBON SUSPECTED (Bad Luck).—Sorry, but I must plead ignorance of what you refer to as "carbon," and cannot therefore say whether it is likely to be the cause of your young birds dying. Is it one of these chemical products that you keep stored in the room? And, if so, in what quantity, and what is the size and arrangements for ventilation of your room? If you will send me full particulars and say what particular substance you refer to as "carbon," I will do my best to help you. By the bye, you do not mention anything about the old birds being affected in any way, and it seems to me they, too, must have suffered if the young birds' deaths were due to any substance being kept in the room. Possibly, the hens were non-feeders. It is too late now to make any further attempt at breeding this year.

WASTING AWAY (W. J. G.).—Your feeding does not seem to have been of a wholesome character for a bachelor bird. It has been far too stimulating, and in all probability has affected the liver. For one week give a diet of plain canary only, supplemented with a liberal daily supply of watercress, lettuce, plantain stalks, or seed spikes of shepherd's purse. Keep cage and perches scrupulously clean; cage floor strewn with clean gritty sand. In the drinking water during this time add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepennypiece every second day. After the first week, continue the same staple diet, but add, separately, a small teaspoonful of boiled summer rape every second day, and give a morsel of ripe banana. On the alternate days give a piece of bread and milk the size of a large hazel nut sprinkled liberally with maw seed, and a small spray of green food. Twice a week give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats. Continue this feeding for three weeks. In the water add four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid. Keep bird fairly warm and free from draughts, as it will most likely drop into moult.

TOO LATE (E. E. Taylor).—Decidedly it is quite too late now to do any more breeding this season either in or out doors. The moulting season will very soon be in full swing, when breeding is quite out of the question. It is quite the rule for cocks to cease singing just before they drop into moult, so, perhaps, yours have already stopped singing on this account. But if they were last year's birds they should not have ceased quite so soon. Cocks will almost, if not quite, invariably sing better when caged separately than when kept in groups, or mated together in pairs. Unless you are sure the birds have been bred and kept in a quite normal temperature, or accustomed to an outdoor aviary, you would do well to moult and winter them in an unheated room indoors. The one that has a difficulty of breathing should certainly be taken in at once, and kept in a cosy place free from cold draughts during the moult. Give it a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary, and add to the water 20 drops of whisky five each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight.

BETWEEN TWO STOOLS (Novice).—In your case you can only choose the lesser of two evils, and break up breeding pairs forthwith. The season is much too far advanced now to expect any further success in breeding, and the effect of checking the hens breeding will be far less risky than attempting to check the moult. The latter might easily ruin the birds for next season, whilst to check breeding at this season will be of very little consequence. As regards the moulting season, it is just beginning to get into good swing with adult birds, and quite a large number are already deep in moult. The proper moulting season may be said to last from about the middle of July to end of October, the end of August and September being the time when it is most general. Of course, individual birds are not moulting during all this time, but fresh birds will be continually starting their moult from July onwards. Cage the cocks up separately, and turn the hens into a good-sized flight together, and treat them all as you would moulting birds. See that all are quite free from cold draughts, and keep those that are recovering from colds in a fairly warm temperature whilst moulting. Substitute a small teaspoonful of boiled millet and boiled summer rape—first one and then the other—for the bread and milk you are giving these birds. Also add four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid to the water every second day for a week. This will help to bring them back on to a diet of dry seeds. Clear away all nesting receptacles and material to afford as little inducement as possible for the hens to desire to go to nest. The hen that falls off the perch would be best chloroformed. It would be most unwise to breed with her.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN, in the absence of Mr. Fulljames on holiday.

YOUNG CUCKOO (Cuckoo).—Your young Cuckoo that has just commenced to peck should be fed for a time upon the same food that you have reared him on, whatever that is. A good insectile food with a little hard boiled egg added occasionally, with mealworms and any insects you can procure, should keep him in good health. The Cuckoo is not a very desirable cage bird, and if you think you will tire of him, you had better give him his liberty next month; if not, keep him until the spring before doing so.

REARING BULLFINCHES (Mrs. Pearce Brown).—You have accomplished what many have failed to do—that is, to get Bullfinches to breed in captivity. As a rule, the cock bird refuses to mate. Having many other birds in the same aviary is rather against your chances of rearing young ones. Your feeding when the other brood was about was correct as far as the seed and wild food were concerned, but I would advise you to procure a good brand of insectile food, as used for Warblers, and give them some at once. If, as you say, you can procure fresh ants' eggs, you should mix these with it when they are rearing the young. If they are not disturbed by the other inmates of the aviary you may possibly succeed in rearing the next brood.

PIED THRUSH (Lux).—Odd white feathers in your Song Thrush are caused through lack of colouring pigment in the blood, over which you have no control. It frequently occurs in a wild state. Newly-grown feathers are naturally full of blood until the quill is properly formed and hardened. It is a mistake to extract them, causing an unnecessary strain upon the bird's constitution to reproduce them, and they will probably grow the same colour again. If you keep the bird another season and are anxious to have him in normal plumage, try a course of iron tonic just before the moult; it would enrich the blood, and might possibly have the desired effect. It is not difficult to colour-feed a Blackbird. This is done by mixing tasteless pepper with his soft food. About half the strength as given to Canaries would be sufficient. The idea is to simply intensify the colour of the beak and eye eores. It is the general excellence and high condition of the exhibit that catches the judge's eye.

HOARSE IN SONG (J. Rambottom).—The hoarseness you complain of is nothing to worry about. These birds frequently get a bit hoarse and croaky at this time of the year. They have been singing for several months, and the voice naturally begins to break a bit as the moult approaches. Mix a little honey and fresh lemon juice together in equal proportions, and give 30 drops in his drinking water; this may relieve him. His voice will no doubt be right again when he commences to sing after the moult.

SEXING YOUNG THRUSHES (E. C. Scarbon).—The only reliable way to sex young Thrushes is by the song. Watch your birds closely, and you will soon see one or more of them commencing to warble. In the cock birds this daily becomes louder. As you detect them, cage them off separately, when some will soon sing quite loudly. If you are interested in showing, you should keep the largest of the hens, as these usually make the best exhibition birds. You can give them water now both for drinking and bathing purposes. Give them the bath early in the day, so that the birds and cages are quite dry by the evening. When giving drinking water to young birds for the first time, it should be given with the chill off, and only be given at intervals, until it may be left in the cage without danger of their drinking to excess.

PAIRING GOLDIE MULE AND CANARY (W. B. H.W.).—You are too late this year for any experiment in the way of freak Hybrids. We have seen birds reputed to be this cross, but beyond their being something extraordinary in the way of crossing they have no real value. Why not get a good cock Goldfinch and try to breed some Hybrids with it and your Canary hen another season? It is not actually too late now, providing your hen does not fall into moult, but most probably she will in a week or so. If you decide to try another year, get your Goldie early in the winter, and let the couple fly together until the spring, or put them in cages within sight of each other.

BULLFINCH "SEEDY" (T.C.).—You give no particulars of the feeding of your Bullfinch, and as you have him up with a hen Canary I suspect he has had the same food that is given to Canaries generally, whereas Bullfinches require different treatment. Give two parts canary and one of rape as a staple food, a little linseed and hemp, twice a week, and half a dozen sunflower seeds every day. In addition he should have plenty of wild food, such as shepherd's purse, seeding groundsell, and chickweed, raspberries, of which you could still obtain a few if you have a garden with a few canes in it, and privet berries when in season. The drooping wings are probably caused through weakness, and your remedy is better treatment and a tonic. Get an ounce of crystals of citrate of iron and quinine, and give as much as will cover a threepenny piece in the drinking water, fresh daily for a week, when you should see an improvement. You should get the "Nutshell" booklet on the Bullfinch.

VARIOUS TROUBLES (Avis).—To mix honey with soft-food, it requires to be slightly heated, which thins it; it can then be well stirred in. The dripping is hardly necessary where the other ingredients are good. (2) In my humble opinion the Siskin is the only Finch that is improved by being colour-fed, and that only moderately, just enough to intensify the yellow in his plumage. If you so desire you can of course colour-feed any Hard-billed birds that will take soft-food, by mixing tasteless pepper with the latter. This should be done very sparingly at first, and be gradually increased until the desired quantity is taken. Any birds intended to be so treated should be commenced with at once, so as to get the blood well charged with colouring matter. If you leave it until your birds are in the moult they will probably come patchy in colour. (3) The Greater and Lesser Whitethroats have both at times taken premier honours on the show-bench. It is all a question of excellence. A good Whitethroat will beat a bad specimen of a species more rare. It was impossible to treat all birds fully, and the general treatment of the majority of the warblers in captivity is somewhat similar.

LOSING YOUNG GOLDFINCHES (W.J.M.).—I am sorry your friend was so unfortunate as to lose his brood of young Goldies. The mistake made was in expecting them to eat hard seed directly they were weaned. Although they could pick up a little it is doubtful if they were able to crack enough dry seed to sustain them; he should have given them some soft-food, such as egg and biscuit, soaked rape and teazel seeds, and crushed hemp. I have found from experience that where wild birds feed the young in cages, they generally discontinue to do so quite suddenly, when, if the owner is not very careful, he will lose them.

SKYLARK MOPY (R.A.).—Your Skylark is no doubt sickening for the moult. With good treatment you should manage to pull him through. A sprig of meadow saffron in the drinking water would assist him in making a start. Let him have a few extra insects, also fresh ants' eggs if procurable (see advt. cols., under "Foods").

LINNET WITH BROKEN LEG (W. Bragg).—A broken limb sounds dreadful, and yet in a bird it is not difficult to repair. You appear to have treated your bird skilfully. A bird's leg does not take long to join, but I would advise you not to interfere with it until you see he is using it in a natural manner. Then you might carefully remove the bandage, but do not give him any perches (or, if any, very low ones) until he is quite recovered. This should be in about three weeks, but it is all according to the nature of the fracture. I had one case where the bird was using its leg fairly well in a fortnight.

BULLFINCH BALD (Perplexed).—The moulting season is now approaching when your bird will no doubt grow fresh feathers on the bare spots. You should assist nature by smearing the places with a little sulphur ointment. I suppose you are feeding him correctly? At this season of the year wild food for Finches is so plentiful in the fields and by the roadside, that captive birds should be fed liberally with it. Have you examined him for grey lice? These bury themselves in the bird's feathers, and are not easily detected unless the bird is handled. They are frequently the cause of bare places round the neck. Regarding the wild hen Bullie that visits your garden, if you suspect that they have young in the neighbourhood, you should not have much difficulty in finding them, when you could probably hand-rear them and select a partner for your pet bird. This would be better than interfering with the wild pair, as Bullies pair for life.

EYE TROUBLE (Lincolnshire Lad).—Bathe the eye in a solution of boracic acid. Put a quarter of a teaspoonful in a cup, add a little water, and mix into a paste, then half fill with warm water. Bathe the eye with a piece of cotton wool dipped into it. Do not put bird outside directly afterward, into the cold air. If this does not cure it you will have to try a stronger remedy; in that case, look in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL; or write again.

TREATMENT OF OWL (Howler).—You do not say the species of Owl you possess, and as these vary considerably in size, it is impossible to advise you as to the size of cage for him. Anyway, let it be as large as you can conveniently afford room for. In making it, give it a gable roof, so that the bird can retire to a quiet shaded spot during the day; or if you make an ordinary oblong cage of good size, you could fix a box in one corner with a perch in it. This box should not have a bottom in it, or it would soon get fouled with droppings. The cage should be made so that it can easily be cleaned out, which should be done frequently. Sawdust is the best material to strew over the bottom. Owls are not easy birds to cater for. They require mice or sparrows, and failing these, butchers' scraps. Most of them are fond of bathing, and I think it as well to give them water, so that they can take it if required. You will find that if they are fed upon recently-killed mice and birds, some of which should be given to them warm, they will drink very seldom. If you tire of him as a pet, give him his liberty in a suitable district.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S

WHAT BIRD? (R.S.B.).—Regret I shall have to defer reply till next week, as I am away from home and all books of reference.

COCKATIELS NOT BREEDING (J.D.S.).—From your description, I should say that both your birds are of one sex. The crest of the cock is larger and more yellow than that of the hen; the sides of his face are lemon-yellow, with a bright red spot on the ear-coverts; the underside of his tail is blackish-grey. The female has the sides of the face grey, only slightly suffused with yellow, and the red spot is smaller and duller than that of the male; the underside of her tail is barred white, yellow, and black. The underside of the tail feathers alone is a distinction which even the tyro cannot miss, once he knows of it. In all adult birds (yours are adult) the male is plain blackish-gray, that of the female being barred as stated above.

CHINESE YELLOW BUNTING, ETC. (R.H.W.).—(1) The Chinese Yellow Bunting is a handsome species, and well worth its place in a mixed series in any garden aviary. (2) Tovi Parrakeets are fairly amiable, but like all Parrakeets are mischievous, and the only Parrakeet I know of that one can pronounce as safe among Finches is the common-place Cockatiel. True, there are others that agree for varying periods with Finches, but should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

sooner or later trouble usually occurs. I may say that I kept a pair of the charming varied Lorikeets in an outdoor aviary with Finches, etc., for five years, and they never did any harm, but I should not care to generalise from the behaviour of a single pair. I certainly mistrust the Tovi, as company for Finches, but as your aviary is roomy no harm may accrue.

IS IT A PARROT? (G. T. Garratt).—It is a Ring necked Parrakeet, but whether it is the Indian or African species, your description is not full enough for me to decide CORDON BLEUS (Laurence).—(1) Any kind of Finch or Waxbill that will take a little fruit will be benefited by it, but I have never noticed the Cordon Bleu to be any, but they are certainly fond of flowering (seeding) grass, and other weeds, and such should be supplied. My Cordons usually are very fond of sponge cake moistened with boiled milk. (2) It is an inhabitant of Tropical Africa.

WAXBILLS AND FINCHES (C.L.E.).—The seed you name must always be in the cage, also rattle seed, and greenfood, when flowering grass fail, a leaf of lettuce (fresh) may be given, but cut out the fleshy centre rib before giving to the birds. Re the dainty mixture you quote, this should work out satisfactorily, but it must be understood that this special dainty treatment is extra to and not in lieu of the usual dietary given above. If there should be any appearance of diarrhœa, then you must stop the Dinneford's Magnesia for a time. Re your mixture of hard boiled egg and Osborne biscuits, I would suggest in lieu of this, sponge cake, slightly moistened with boiled milk. Your new purchases deal, I expect, from the preparation, which to a greater or lesser degree follows importation. Unless a reply is required by post, there is no charge for replies in this column.

AMAZON PARROT (E.B.).—My experience is that the moult takes about two months; with some specimens it is just over, with others just commencing. If the bird continues well, I should let well alone, but if it gets out of tone, give a laxative (one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water daily till full relief has been given to the bowels), follow this by giving half a teaspoonful of byno-phosphates in the drinking water every other day for a few weeks to tone it up. If you give wholesome food and follow above directions, you should not have illness to deal with—never permit constipation. Laxative as above will soon regulate matters, and the byno-phosphates is a good tonic to be given whenever the bird is a little out of tone. There is no modern pamphlet on bird diseases, but simple remedies are given in "C.B." ANNUAL. I am not allowed to recommend either professional men or traders in this column.

GREY PARROT (Perplexed).—Stop giving the bread moistened in tea, but you can give it a piece of bread moistened in byno-phosphates and water (equal parts of each). Keep cuttlebone in cage, also Parrot grit. While the genial weather lasts, spray it every other day with quassia solution, and give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia, twice a week, in the drinking water. Do not place it in an exposed position, nor yet where the sun can shine directly upon it, but on all warm genial days it would be beneficial to the bird to stand the cage out of doors. Keep a tin of canary and white millet seed in the cage as well as the Parrot Mixture. Report progress a month hence.

GREY PARROT NOT TALKING (C. Reef).—It is not necessary to cut its tongue, such treatment would not help it talk; it might kill it. It is a barbarous and cruel practice, and quite unnecessary, and is never done now save in ignorance. Some Parrots take much more teaching than others. Keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, yet not near where there is likely to be a lot of bustling movements likely to scare it; also teach it by the constant repetition method, viz., repeating over and over again to it some word or short sentence you wish it to repeat, and keep at the same one word or sentence till it is thoroughly learned before taking up another. When it is in restful mood is the best time to train it. I presume the bird is quite tame now; it is not likely to commence talking till it is. If you have not got it, get our Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free from our Manager, it will help you.

COULDIAN FINCHES, ETC. (E.A.B.N.).—(1) A cock Gouldian Finch would live well enough in single blessedness either in a roomy cage by himself or with Cordon Bleus, and other Waxbills. Two cocks would agree well together and make a nice show in a roomy cage, but to prevent you running into any error I must inform you that Gouldians are of a lethargic demeanour, even in a roomy aviary. (2) No, follow the directions in the Nutshell and your birds should thrive. (3) Parrot grit is packed by most of the reputable bird providers. It is a flint grit; write to some large firm advertising in our columns for a packet of Parrot grit. (4) Paddy rice is rice in the husk. Most of the seed merchants advertising in our pages would supply you. (5) Your local chemist might help you; if not, write to one of the large bird food providers advertising in "Cage Birds."

AMAZON PARROT (Douglas, I.O.M.).—I should keep the bowels of this bird moving quite freely by giving one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in drinking water as often as may be required to keep the bowels moving quite freely, yet without any appearance of diarrhœa. Dissolve three grains of bromide of potassium in a little syrup on three consecutive days whenever there are indications of a fit coming on, or immediately after one has occurred. Your general treatment is correct, but I should omit the bone. A little fruit, few nuts, and pieces of plain biscuit should be regularly supplied as extras to the seed dietary. Cuttlebone should be continually in the cage. (1) If you put up Amazons for breeding, you must give them a roomy enclosure to themselves, and as soon as you have got your birds to agree together, simply leave them alone together, and breeding should follow in due course—there is no danger in attempting to breed them, and if you have the convenience I certainly advise it. (2) During the summer twice a week, once a week during the late autumn, winter and early spring will be sufficient. (3) Among the Amazons the Blue-front is usually the most fluent talker. (4) Greene's "Parrots in Captivity" is a good book, but it is out of print, but reputable second-hand booksellers frequently have copies for sale. You can get a popular pamphlet, "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit," from this office for 7d., post free—it contains some notes on the Amazons.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

E. L. H. S.—Broncho-pneumonia, originating in a cold.

J. S. Hughes.—Hen bird; cause of death, pneumonia.

O. I. Stone.—Enteritis, following on fatty degenerative changes in the liver. There must be some error in diet.

H. Eastwood.—Pulmonary apoplexy, following congestion of the lungs.

Dr. C. Peterson Weekes.—Death occurred from pulmonary apoplexy. The bird was a robust one and in high condition. There was also a tendency to fatty degeneration of the liver.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

F. Nutman.—It is pennycress, a near relation of shepherd's-purse, but far less common. Excellent for Finches.

Kay.—In the County of London, all species of birds are protected all the year round on Sundays, and practically all species of interest to bird-keepers are also protected at all times, the only notable exceptions being the Greenfinch, Jay, Marsh Tit, and House Sparrow. Open season, September 1st to January 31st.

G. M. Nelson.—You will be in time; see our notes this week.

R. Thompson.—We have heard nothing of such a change, and do not believe that the catching of "Goldfinches, Linnets, and birds of that class" is to be thrown open everywhere next season (if this is what you mean; your letter is not really clear on the point). By the way, although the catching of the Goldfinch and Siskin is prohibited all the year round in Glamorgan, the Linnet and all the other Finches are not protected between August 1st and March 2nd, except on Sundays, and Sunday catching is allowed in one or two districts. Why not get a copy of the Act? It only costs 2d., including postage.

ARDWICK & MANCHESTER C.B.A.

Fifth annual N.F. show, July 12, at St. Thomas Schools, Ardwick. This is the first fixture in our new headquarters, and we can congratulate ourselves on having such a grand room at our disposal. Entries came up to 100; this was thought very satisfactory, considering that many members have had a poor breeding season. We had not an entry in the amateur Yorks classes; the amateur Nor. came up grand—35 in four classes and 23 in the novice Nor. classes. Borders came up better than in previous years, and the quality of the exhibits was grand. Owners having good fortune during the moult will be heard of later. Mr. J. Vint put down a grand team and secured most points. Mr. A. G. Smith special 2nd most points; Mr. S. Greaves spl best novice Nor.; A. Blinston, spl best novice Yorks; A. E. Hope, spl best novice bird. Mr. T. Harrison (Altrincham) placed the cards, and left no room for comment.

WEST BROMWICH C.B.S.

Two N.F. shows held June 17th and July 15th respectively. Thirty-four birds at first show and forty-four at second. This completed the series of shows for the grand specials, and we must here take the opportunity of thanking the donors of same. We must congratulate the Britisb men on their keenness, they taking the highest awards over all sections. Mr. J. A. Tonks won valuable oil-painting for most points over the British section, and also medal for second most points with four highest birds over all sections. Mr. Palmer, another British enthusiast, took medal for most points four highest birds over all sections, Mr. Collier, the Norwich enthusiast, coming third. In nov. section Mr. Barnsley, another British and Norwich man, took special for most points. Although the entries were not up to average (through bad luck in breeding) in point of numbers, the quality in all sections has been grand, some exceedingly promising youngsters being put down. The society is now in a sound position financially, and with sound fanciers as managers. The judges gave entire satisfaction.

Country Rambles

BRADFORD WEST C.B.A.

A ramble was arranged to Luddenden Foot for July 19, 1913, conducted by our worthy president, Mr. W. Crabtree. There were a goodly number of members and friends present. Arriving at Thornton, we made our way through Cuneeway Foot, where we refreshed ourselves, to Withens. At this place and around the district, we were very much interested by a friend of Mr. Terry, who talked about and showed various specimens known only to a botanist. Leaving Withens we passed Caulk Edge Dams, on to Upper and Lower Jowler, and from there made our way to Booth Dean, through Luddenden to Luddenden Foot. Here the party partook of a very good tea, which every member enjoyed immensely. We made our way home by car to Halifax, and catching the train there, arrived in Bradford at the headquarters at 10.50 p.m. We were favoured by the weather; and there is no doubt whatever that none of the party would require rocking to sleep.—A. Cooper, Sec.

COLINTON & CURRIE PARISHES O.S. AMONGST THE WILD BIRDS

Members and friends of the Colinton and Currie Parishes O.S. held their first ramble on July 12 through the grounds of Riccarton (permission kindly granted by Lady Gibson-Craig). Thirty members and friends were shown through the grounds by Mr. Haining, the factor, and Mr. Scott, head gardener. We left the Drill Hall, Juniper Green, at 3.20, headed by the secretary and Mr. Steel, of Dalkeith, going up the main Lanark Road as far as Braeside, and then took the way going by the Marewood, where the experience of Mr. Steel was in great request about the various wild seeds on the wayside, and from the questions asked him by the members present all seemed anxious to learn all possible to keep their birds in good order. A good deal of bird life was seen in the grounds. The first was a Willow Warbler. We were all anxious to get a nest, but all the young birds were flown; it was too late for the first rounds and too early for the second. Among the various birds we saw in the grounds were Willow Warblers, Greater Whitethroats, Thrushes, Blackbirds, Greenfinches, Chaffinches, Redpolls, Coots, Lapwings, Gold Crests, Wood Warblers, and Buntings. We then left the woods and went through the gardens, Mr. Scott taking charge of the party here, and explaining the plants and flowers as we went along. We saw a large bed of marigolds and another of nasturtiums, on which some of the Border Fancy men cast longing eyes when Mr. Steel explained they were good for colour and quite eligible for use. After the garden we again took to the walks and avenues. The first thing we saw was a brood of young Chaffinches being fed on the side of the road by the old birds. In front of the stables, high up in a tree, were four young Redpolls sitting on the branches being fed by the old one. We then went into the flower garden, where one of our party thought he heard a Peacock crying, but our guide said there was not such a thing about; it turned out to be the sheep crying in a field beyond the woods, and we had a good laugh at our friend's expense. Not having got a nest yet, Mr. Haining said there was one of young Blackbirds in his garden, and we left the grounds and went along, but when we got there the young were flying among the bushes, but Mr. Steel very soon captured one and put a ring on its leg. A halt was called, and in a few well-chosen words our president, Mr. Beghie, thanked Mr. Haining and Mr. Scott for their kindness in showing us through the estate. Both these gentlemen said it had given them great pleasure, and hoped we would come back again next year a little earlier in the season. We then went back to the grounds. Mr. Dickson caught a young Thrush in a hedge (another for a ring). Master Haining, who had accompanied us all through with his father, was asked to put on the ring, which he did, and seemed quite pleased with himself. A little further along the path Mr. Robertson found our first and only nest with eggs in it—a Hedge Sparrow's, or, as it is called in our district, a Fieldy. Well pleased with what we had seen, and feeling both hungry and dry, we reached Mr. Mitchell's Railway Inn, where we arrived at 7.10, and satisfied our hunger and thirst. The rest of the evening we spent in song and story. Messrs. Dickson, Ferguson, M'Cram, the sec., and Secretary Charlton (of the Edinburgh and District), and Mr. Dick (also of the Edinburgh and District)—both these gentlemen having accompanied us on our ramble—contributed splendid songs. Mr. Steel was thanked for his information and for his kindness in accompanying us, and suitably replied.—Jas. Napier, Sec.

Correspondence.

To Prevent the Drinking of Too Much Water.

Sir,—Will any reader kindly tell me through Cage Birds what is the best thing to stop both young and old Canaries from drinking too much water, and what is the best cure for looseness or diarrhœa or inflammation in Canaries? Anxious.

The Keeping and Breeding of Blackbeetles.

Sir,—How can I keep and successfully breed the common Blackbeetle? I have had 200, and on receiving them put them in a big tin box with sugar, flour, oatmeal, and sliced potato, kept them in the dark, but in two or three days all were dead.

(Mrs.) E. Warren Vernon.

Appeal to Members of the Annfield Plain F. and F., C.B.S.

Sir,—Some time back I made an appeal (stating it to be my last) for a meeting to be held at Queen's Hotel, but without success. However, I have been approached by two fanciers (I only wish we had a few more of 'em) to try another appeal. A meeting will be held on Sat. July 26, Queen's Hotel, 7.30, to consider society's affairs and members' prize money; also secretary required, as I am declining through lack of time. Please all attend to settle this matter.

J. W. Christon.

A Testimonial to Mr. W. B. Cobb, of Leeds.

Sir,—At the earnest desire of a few friends, I have arranged to receive subscriptions for a testimonial to Mr. W. B. Cobb, of Leeds. Mr. Cobb's services to the Cage Bird Fancy (especially the Scotch and Belgian Fancies) are well known. The present time is a most suitable one for a presentation, as Mr. Cobb has been confined to his room with serious illness for the past nine months. I hope the response to my appeal will be a generous one, so that our old friend may know he is not forgotten. Subscriptions, however small, will be gratefully received and acknowledged by

J. W. Ramsden.

Novice Classes at the Open Shows.

Sir,—In Mr. Lumsden's letter re novice classes at open shows he says they pay the best; they might at times. Also he says that entries are about 40 per class; if he will look at the catalogue of Blaydon's last open show he will see it is the novice classes that don't pay—17 in two classes (not 8 or 9 per class, as he says the champions only average). The champions had an average at the same show of nearly 13 per class. If he and other novices would support the local shows, it would help to encourage societies to put on novice classes for them. He is inviting novices to support Blaydon and Chester-le-Street because they have not got the patronage of a Norwich club, so, being the secretary of the Northern Norwich Club, I wish to inform him we can't give our patronage to two shows on the same day, but it might make the competition a lot keener without our patronage. As regards the two societies he mentions, the classes of both are good, even more than we require for our patronage—we only want six for champions and one or more for novices. We have no novices scarcely in our society; they are soon champions; we don't like them to remain novices year after year. A member last year started as a novice and won our cup over all champions. But I wish Blaydon and Chester-le-Street success and record shows. If the so-called novices would join our club, or any of the specialist clubs, it would help us to demand classes for novices, as societies are not very keen about putting them on unless they have some guarantee of the classes filling. So I give an invitation to all good novices to join our specialist clubs. It will only cost 2s. 6d. per year. May I ask Mr. Lumsden how many local shows he supported last year with his novice entries, also where has the novice society gone to which he was forming last year?

F. W. Laidlow.

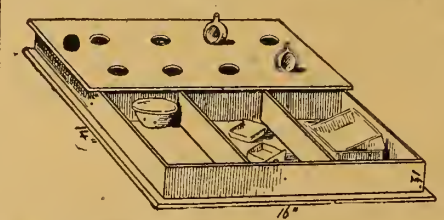
To Interest the Children.



Sir,—Kindly find me a little space in our valuable Cage Birds to thank the chairman, secretary, and committee of the Swanley Village (Kent) C.B.S. for the donation they kindly sent me for the Children's Redpoll and Decorated Cage Competition at the Westgate House Working Man's Club, Dartford, Kent. The date is not fixed definitely at present, but I expect it to be early in September. I also thank Mr. Bennett, of Dartford, for the handsome prize he sent me for these children. This gentleman's two sons are I believe the two youngest members of Cage Birds League.

G. H. Peck.

[Mr. Peck's letter refers to the appeal for Redpolls made on his behalf by the secretary of Cage Birds League in his notes of last week—Editor.]

A Handy Carrying Tray for Food and Water Vessels.

Sir,—Herewith is a sketch of tray which I made for my own use, and find very useful indeed. The use of it is explained fully in sketch. My bird-room is in the front of the house and the scullery, with water tap in it, is at the back. When I change the water or food I simply have to place the vessels in the holes provided, and the egg pans and baths in the spaces as shewn, take the whole out of the room together, and thoroughly wash at the tap. This tray is undoubtedly a very useful article in the bird-room, as it saves much time in changing water and food. I have gathered many hints from your valuable paper, and in return am willing to give others a hint. I have several other appliances I use which are easily made. The tray can be made any size, but I give you the size of my own, simply to show proportions. Trusting this will be of service to your readers. The tray should be made of wood from ¼ to ⅜-in. thick, and will not be heavy.

Novice Breeds Hybrid Between Mealy Redpoll and Hen Bullfinch

Sir,—It might interest your readers to learn that I have bred a hybrid from a Mealy Redpoll and my winning Bullfinch hen. It is now more than three weeks old and in good spirits, as I hear it "churling" over its notes. I am only a novice in the hobby yet, and I am greatly indebted to Mr. Wm. Clark, the well-known British bird judge, for his advice and also the help he gave in the rearing of this hybrid. R. Perrie.

A Splendid Way to Make Milk Sop.

Sir,—On page 55 issue January 25th, appeared Mr. T. Johnson's way of making milk sop. Many thanks to him for same. I have acted on the same to advantage this summer. I used milk (no water in), put a nut of butter in also, to make it richer, and boiled for a full hour, until quite stiff, frequently stirring during boiling. It has assisted the rearing of young very much, all the hens taking to it readily. Being rich and "stiff," it does not relax the bowels, though making them work freely. Kay.

The Recipe Reprinted.

Mr. Johnson's method was given in these words: "Feed entirely on milk sop, prepared as follows: Take a one pound jam jar, and a medium sized saucepan, one thick tea biscuit and a round of stale bread. Fill jar with bread and biscuit (broken up) to within an inch of top, and pour milk and water (in equal parts) to just cover the bread. Add one teaspoonful of sugar. Put jar in saucepan half-filled with water and boil over a slow fire for nearly an hour, when the sop becomes like a thick jelly. It may then be allowed to cool, and is ready for use. It will require stirring up three or four times while boiling. If it appears too thick, more milk may be added; but after once making it, one can generally judge whether or not it will be all right. This sop I find the birds eat readily, and it will last a week almost without going sour."

Which is the "Coming Fancy" in Exhibition Canaries?

Sir,—Would you, through the columns of your valuable paper, tell me which breed of Canary is the coming Fancy for the show bench, as I am an amateur just starting and want to breed the popular bird? I might say I started this year with six birds, two cocks and four hens, and have thirty young birds living. I find great help from Cage Birds.

X.Z.

[We should find ourselves in "hot water," we are afraid, if we attempted to say which was the "coming fancy" in Canaries. Norwich, Yorkshires, and Borders are all "popular birds," and no doubt fanciers of Rollers, Greens, etc., would put in a word for their own particular favourites.—Editor.]

Precocious Young Canaries.

Is this a Record?

Sir,—Seeing lately so many breeders writing about early youngsters on the "sticks," I should like to know, through Cage Birds, whether there is any standing record, as one of our members, Mr. T. G. Stubbs, of Victoria Park, bred a Yorkshire a little time ago that was out of the nest at 16 days and singing at 18 days. He now has two more from the same parents that were out of the nest yesterday and to-day (July 22) when he opened the cage door to give them their usual breakfast they darted out and flew five or six yards across the garden; they are 17 days old to-day. Light Mules Bred from a Hen Brown Linnet.

Sir,—A very interesting case has come to my notice from a friend, a fancier in London. He is a pigeon fancier and keeps only a few Canaries and British. He thought he would like to try his hand at Mule breeding and so bought a hen Linnet and then procured a large buff Norwich cock. He let them keep together all the year round. For two years the hen made no signs of nesting, although the cock Canary used to feed her. This year he began to see signs of building, so he put a small box in the bottom of the cage and gave the hen nesting material. She made a good nest and laid four eggs, and sat well. He then took the cock Canary away and left her to bring up the young, if she would. He supplied her with egg-food and the usual seed mixture, with a good quantity of watercress. She sat well and hatched out three Mules and brought them up as well as any Canary. Strange to say, all three of them are Light Mules, and are now able to do for themselves. The Linnet has now gone to nest again. What about this case and those who talk about Sib-breeding? Just two ordinary birds are put together in a haphazard way by a young trier. He had the qualification of patience or he would not have tried the same pair for three years. The Mules are to be shown at some of the London shows during the season. Hybrid.

The Orange Bishop-Canary Hybrids.

Breeder Says No Doubt as to Parentage.

Sir,—Respecting the hybrids between cock Orange Bishop and Buff Green hen Canary, they are both growing very quickly (fortnight old to-day); and large enough to bolt out of nest. The other hen I mentioned I have set this evening, having laid her third egg this morning, paired off with Orange Bishop. The hen with the two young I expect to soon lay again as she has paired with the Orange Bishop several times during the last three days. I do not know if he has paired off with the hen Chaffinch, as she has continually called, Saturday and Sunday, and has been in same aviary some months. The hen Chaffinch followed and chased a yellow hen Canary to get her to pair, but I had only had her in a day or two. I expect she mistook the yellow hen for the cock that I had hung on front wires to sing to them. I got the second egg this morning from Chaffinch and will try them. There is not the slightest doubt regarding the parentage of the two young ones. They can be seen any time. I have kept birds, Canaries, British, and Foreign, the last 25 to 30 years, and for several years past have tried for Hybrids and Mules, but with very indifferent results—nothing out of ordinary run. I hope I shall be more successful with this new Hybrid.

Good Results Follow Good Tuition.

Sir,—The writings of your Mr. Claude St. John have a charm akin to the music of the Pied Piper—they compel one to follow him into the magic kingdom he evidently loves so well. "Canary Breeding for Beginners" gave me a peep into this, at that time, unknown world, and led me to make a flutter in Yorkies, with the following results:—1st hen, 5 eggs, 4 chicks; 2nd, 5, 4; 1st hen (second round) 5, 5. All are strong, healthy chicks, thanks to the advice given in the above book, and to two good feeding hens.

One Who Followed.

A Treat that was Missed at Cumnock.

Sir,—July 12th was fixed for ramble to Sorn Castle Estate. Only four turned up for the day, owing, I believe, to so many other fixtures being on. Messrs. Wyper (Sec.), McDougall, Montgomery, and Nutt decided to wire off arrangements for tea. Our guide was to have been one of Mr. T. W. McIntyre's keepers, so Mr. Wyper and myself decided to go over ourselves, and let him know that it was off. It was just an ideal day for a ramble; the country looked lovely, and we saw bird life in plenty. We got a young phoasant, and the mother bird tried hard to decoy us from it; we had a good look at it, then let it have its liberty again. We saw young of many kinds, also Flycatchers working hard catching flies. We found our guide ready to receive us, also another worker on the estate had a house ready with a good fire in case we had needed refreshments. We thought it was very good and kind of the proprietor to grant these men for our comfort and pleasure, and regretted we could not take advantage of such hospitality. The keeper had his route thought out, the best to find most bird life. So he meant to give us a good day's outing. Talking of Bullfinches, he said they seemed to be very plentiful. He told us about one of the ladies up at the Castle having a Bullfinch, and having got tired of it she let it have its liberty, but it returned. Let away again, it only returned, and for the third time did the same. We took leave of the keeper, and he hoped he would have the pleasure another year of accompanying us as our guide, about June, when the nests are much more plentiful. I am sure the members and friends of the Cumnock and Dis. C.B.S. missed a great treat, and a good outing by not turning up. I am sorry to say that one of our last ramblers is taken serious ill. He meant to be at this one, and also his brother. I hope he may recover soon, and be well and strong again, and able to take up his duties, as I can say he was one of the jolliest and the best of company at our first ramble. He has our deepest sympathy, and hopes for speedy recovery.

Bullie's Little Escapade.

Quite Happy though Caged Once More.

Sir,—I had a little experience this morning which may interest some of your readers. While I was feeding my birds I took all of their dishes away to fill them at the same time, and being busy, I never noticed my cock Bullfinch had managed to squeeze through the wire, where his seed dish rests. Before I had time to close the house door he was out and away. I watched him on the house tops for about two hours, when suddenly he came flying across and alighted on the tree. He started to chirp, and seemed quite pleased. I gave up all hope of him coming into the house again. However, I put out my other two Bullfinches, and put his cage alongside. In about ten minutes he was down on the ground, and after a few minutes he flew up and into his cage. I immediately closed the door of his cage and had him safe once more, where he seems to be quite happy. What makes me think a lot of this, is, not long ago a cat happened to get on top of his cage and got him by the throat, and tore out a lot of his feathers, which are just beginning to come in again. I will prize him more than ever now.

The Nesting of the Swifts.

How a Starling Attacked Them.

Sir,—Knowing that you invite contributions from readers, I am sending an account of the Swift. I was under the impression that this bird usually chose some church tower or inaccessible site for nesting. Where I am living now they nest each year under the tiles of a cottage, in company with the domestic Sparrow. They arrive about the beginning of May. My notice was first attracted by a combat between them and a Starling, which had its nest in a corner of the roof. The Swifts kept wheeling round and attempting to get under the eaves. The Starling kept guard on an adjoining chimney, and when they came too near its nest it swooped like a Hawk. I saw it strike three of the Swifts to the ground in this manner. I caught two of them, as they do not rise readily from the ground. I need not describe them as they are doubtless well known, but I was struck by their short and powerful legs, feathered to the toe, with curved claws—they gripped my hand like bull-dogs. I should think they could hang by the feet for an indefinite period without fatigue. They were more persistent than the Starling, whom they finally drove away. My curiosity being aroused, I explored the roof a week or two later and discovered them nesting in slight depressions in disused Sparrows' nests, mere bundles of grass and feathers. They sat so close I took two of their nests. I have found several nests, but never more than two eggs in them. They are white, about ¾in. long, and in every case one egg is appreciably longer than the other. I have also found young in the nests. They are grey in colour whereas adults are a sooty black. I have them here again this year though in smaller numbers, and thought an account of their habits, which differs somewhat from the usual description, might be of interest to the readers of your favourite journal.

Through a Bird-room Window

MY ELEGANT PARRAKEETS.

The continuation from page 25 of article No. 38 of the new series of personal birdy experiences related by that eminent aviculturist, the Rev. C. D. FARRAR.

I PROVIDED every inducement to nest, in the shape of snug nesting boxes of my own invention, and they soon took the hint and went into occupation. After a time the hen disappeared and was only seen at rare intervals, feeding hungrily at the seed tray. The cock spent most of his time dozing on a neighbouring bough, and occasionally emitting a plaintive call note to his mate. I took the precaution to provide every day an abundant supply of flowering grass and ripe groundsel, for of both of these all Australian Parrakeets are inordinately fond, and they are a sine qua non when there are young about. Another thing which should never be neglected is a good supply of cuttle fish bone for them to gnaw at. Neglect to provide this will mean soft eggs and the probable death of the hen.

An Aroma that Soothed not.

Nothing seemed to happen for weeks; but one day I thought I heard a faint "cheeping" in the log, which I hoped betokened a brood. Every day the noise grew a little stronger, and then one day it suddenly ceased. It was hot June weather, and when I entered the aviary some four hours later I detected a horrid stink. The smell was so high that it reminded me of what John Leech once said of another odour: "I think this stench is strong enough to sketch." I at once took down the box to look into things, as I feared a visit from the Sanitary Inspector of Nuisances. As soon as I opened the lid I smelt death; and when I looked down, there on the bottom were three little corpses rapidly going bad.

I was so angry at my loss that I believe at the moment I should have found fault with an Archangel. I was ready to blame the parent birds, the climate, anything but myself—and yet it was myself that was alone to blame, for what do you think I had done? In the early morning I had gone to feed the birds. I had passed from one division of the aviary to another, and in opening the dividing door the cock Elegant must have slipped into the neighbouring compartment unobserved by me, and there he had remained imprisoned, and unable to get to his nest of young, and they had in consequence died. I mentally kicked myself as hard as I could for being so careless, but that didn't bring back my youngsters. They were dead beyond recall, and there was nothing to be done but to give them decent burial.

He Always Keeps Smiling.

But no true bird-lover is ever discouraged; the true bird-lover is always hopeful. Each time he fails he thinks next time he shall succeed. He fails again and again, but hopefulness carries him on, perhaps through a long life, without ever obtaining success. If he ever really became disillusioned, the game would be up. He is, after all, a man of happy yesterdays and confident to-morrows. He may never succeed, but yet he goes hopefully on ever seeing and imagining a goodly turn in the road. Days of depression come, many and sad, engrossing for a time his whole soul, but the rubber was not left out in the recipe of his mind, and he bounds up with all the elasticity of a ball and starts afresh more hopeful than ever. This exactly describes my feelings after each successive failure. For a few days I am exceedingly low and depressed, but then some fine morning there comes the inevitable rebound; and I start off as hopeful as ever.

Get a Grip on Number One.

There was no exception in the present case; and scarcely had the little corpses disappeared beneath the earth, when I was up and ready for fresh adventure—and disappointments! We all of us get one chance in life; a few get more, but very few, and the wise man is he who seizes the first and most likely only chance. The weak wait for the second. I had had my first chance and failed. It only remained for me to try the second, and to be thankful that I had got it. I am never discouraged for long. I remember my old Horace—rebus adversus fortis et animosus—so I go on till my next fall.

I cleaned out the nestbox thoroughly, and put up a new one near by, in case the old one should suggest too sad memories. Apparently it did not, for in a few days the hen was at work again, getting ready for a new brood. I felt exceedingly happy, and I said to myself: "Fortune favours the brave." The only question that troubled me was, did I individually come under the category of the brave? A few more days settled the question once for all, for a few mornings later the cock suddenly attained immortality by dropping dead from the perch. I sent his body to be dissected, and the verdict that came back was "apoplexy, very fat." I had now to search for a cock to replace my departed one. For some odd reason chances do not come readily to those who greatly desire them; therefore is it any wonder that when they do we behave as though singing the song of Hannah: "I have gotten a man from the Lord."

The Penalty of Fame.

I have been fairly successful in breeding rare birds, and therefore I felt that my honour was at stake. The higher up we get the more we are watched; the rooster on the top of the church steeple is of more importance, although he is tin, than the rooster in the barnyard. I therefore made the most frantic efforts to get another cock. I wrote, I advertised, I enquired everywhere, but in vain. Cock Elegants had disappeared for the time being, as completely as the Dodo.

A friend, pitying my evident distress, offered a solution of the difficulty. As I could not get an Elegant, why not try the next nearest thing, a Turquoisine; and he subtly suggested that the resultant young would be so like young Elegants that nobody would know t'other from which.

A Courtship that Failed.

I was so bothered that I felt quite a sympathy for the widow who had lost her husband, and who was told by her Minister that she had been very unfortunate in losing so many. "Aye," she replied, "did ye ever ken onybody that was sae bothered as I hae been wi puir deein' creturs o' men?" I introduced the disconsolate widow to a very nice and sprightly Turquoisine bachelor, and I hoped great things from the union; but alas! my hopes were doomed to failure. Perhaps the hen had laid her full complement of eggs, or perhaps she could not fancy another after the late lamented; or perhaps she did not believe in mixed marriages. At any rate, she would have nothing to do with the gay Lothario, who did his very best to make a good impression. In fact, again and again, she went for him most viciously, and sent him away with a bee in his bonnet.

Truthfully, I believe the reason of the failure was the weather. The atmosphere of Micklefield, winter and summer, is simply that of a roofed-in railway station—open at both ends. Occasionally a breeze blows in at one or the other end and stirs up the smoke a little. As for the air of Micklefield it is mild, and I like it, but its best friend could not call it dry. Now, of all things there is nothing that Parrakeets dislike so much as damp, foggy weather, and just at this time we got a sample. I believe it was this and this alone that proved fatal to my hopes. At any rate, the pair refused to take any further interest in nesting, anyhow, for that season. As I looked at these birds I felt as dull as Sterndale and Hopkins! Of course, I looked forward with hope to another season, for Hope builds as fast as knowledge can destroy; but alas; that other season never came.

He had done his Best.

It was a sweet memory to have come so near to success; but whatever the songs may tell us, we are sadder for our sweetest memories. The grass can never be as green again to eyes that are growing watery. The lambs that skipped when we did are long since served as mutton. Even could I now get some Elegants, would they be the Elegants I owned so long ago? All the same, I believe that if any Elegants came my way even now I should be a buyer, for I am as intent and eager for a rare bird still as a Scotch terrier at a rat-hole.

If Sisyphus was so persistent in rolling a stone uphill, why shouldn't I be equally patient in persevering in face of apparent failure? At any rate I did my best. I am like a certain Frenchman I once knew. As soon as he came aboard in Dover Harbour he selected a seat amidships, produced a serviceable napkin of the proportion of a mainsail, tied it round his neck, ordered the steward to bring him a basin, and sat expectant. He had done his best. The rest was in the hands of Providence!

BOLDON COLLIERY (Co. Durham).

Annual Y.B. show held July 19th, Workmen's Social Club, a really nice place for the purpose. Despite the moderate breeding season experienced by many of the members entries came up very well, totaling 70 in the eleven classes provided, and the quality was all that could be desired. The competition for the rose bowl for teams of three nominated birds bred by a novice was very keen, Mr. A. Hirons securing a very popular win with his team of Mules. The runners up were a nice team of Norwich, shown by Mr. A. Tucker. Mr. Hirons also secured the rose bowl for best young novice bird with a very nice Siskin mule, the same bird also taking the cash spl. for best bird in show, the runner up being Mr. Noble with a nice clear bull Norwich. The popular sec., Mr. A. Hirons, had everything in grand order, and although new to his position, got through his duties without the slightest hitch. He was well backed up by a grand body of fanciers, composed of Mr. J. Stephenson (Chairman), Mr. J. Tracery (Treasurer) and Messrs. J. Scott, W. Boldon, A. Tucker, T. Wilkinson, J. Priestley, E. Noble and A. Widdowfield. The attendance was very good, and we are assured that the show will prove a financial success. Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) judged.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Successful N.F. show held 19th July in the Kelvedon Hall, Walham Green. The entry totalled 100—a record for the society. Bordero headed the poll, some of the novice classes being particularly well filled, among them some of the gems of the show. Mr. Harrison staged a beauty, which secured the sp. in the section; the bird was much admired, and we heard changed hands twice during the show. Mr. W. E. Plank led in the champions with three charming specimens. Norwich and Yorkshires were well up in quality. Mr. Hall secured the sp. with a grand yellow. A feature of the show was the capital display of British and Hybrids. Messrs. Hall and Cross both staged some grand Finches, while Mr. Nicholls' team of young hybrids (mostly the Goldie-Bullie) attracted the attention of the numerous visitors. The society has added many new members since the change of headquarters, Mr. F. Moore, the sec., being keen on acquiring new blood. He had everything up to date. We are glad to report that the majority of the members have done fairly well this season in the breeding room. Mr. H. Norman placed the cards.

LONDON AND PROVINCIAL O.S.

Young bird show at The Raglan, Aldersgate Street, July 19th. Mr. Robson officiated as judge. Entries were good, some 90 birds being staged. Exhibits were exceptionally good, and the competition very keen in several classes. It has been suggested that in future we give a better classification for British birds at our small evening shows, also that a catalogue be issued. Both these matters will be put before the committee, who no doubt will meet the wishes of their members. Both the pair show and this show have been great successes. The committee fully appreciate the way in which members have come forward during the year, and trust that they will make the autumn show a great success, especially as the prize-money is not on the sliding scale, but guaranteed.

LANCASTER AND DIST. C.B.S.

Annual N.F. Show, held July 12, at Market Hall Coffee Tavern, when some most promising Mules and Hybrids were staged. T. P. Alexander's Linnet-Bully, with a decent moult, most certainly in the future will catch the "glad eye" of the judges; also T. Fisher's Greenie-Redpoll breed as described in last week's "Cage Birds." Mr. G. Winn judged and gave every satisfaction.

BEAMISH C.B.S.

Y.B. show held in the Club Room, Bird Inn, High Hold, July 5. Judge, Mr. W. Butler, West Stanley. There was much discussion about the colour of the birds in the Norwich classes. Some birds are very difficult to class in their nest feather. There was a very nice turn-out, nicely arranged. Another 100 birds could have been staged in the room.

NOR. YELL.: 1, J. Elliott, grand col., easy win; 2, Foster, we think a buff, if a yellow is a stormer; 3, S. Elliott, mkd., some thought lucky to beat 4, Coates; 5, Yates. BUFF: 1, 3, 5, S. BIRKENHEAD C.F.A.

Eleventh Annual Y.B.S., held Co-operative Hall, Catherine Street, when over 100 entries were secured. The Yorks. were a very creditable lot. Very noticeable was the first prize clear yellow of Mr. Darlington. Yorks. Greens., were also very good, and a few nice Nor. and Borders also were shown. British birds came out strong, and materially helped to make up a very good show. Cash points specials were keenly and closely contested for. Mr. G. Morton had everything in apple-pie order, and Mr. Chas. Boulton judged, and the results were very well received.

CL. YELL. YORKS. AYR AND DISTRICT C.B.C.

N.F. Show, held Good Templars Hall, July 12. Fifty-seven birds were staged. Yorks contained some extra fine birds. Mr A. Telfer won rose bowl for most points at the two young bird shows. Mr. T. Erskim spl. for second most points; Mr. A. Cook 3/1, best bird in the show with a fine Yellow Yorks., one that will take some stopping. The show was well patronised during the afternoon, and everything was in good order. Mr. A. Girvan judged Canaries, and his awards were well received. Mr. John Kelly judged the British.

KIRKINTILLOCH AND DIS. C.B.C.

Annual F.F. Show, in Upper Temperance Hall, July 12th. About eighty birds were entered. Mr. Wm. Hutchison, Glasgow, acted as judge, and gave every satisfaction. Mr. D. McClement secured the specials for best in Nor. section, and best in hall, with a yellow varieg. Nor. hen, while Mr. John McLay was runner-up with an even-marked dark Crest hen. Mr. J. B. Thom, the president of the club, staged a nice pair of Scotch Fancies, but owing to the bad season he had no competition. In the Nor. section Mr. D. Pirret secured most points, with Mr. R. Martin, a good second. In Bord. Section Aitken Bros. staged a good team, and carried everything before them. Mr. W. Stewart created some sensation by exhibiting two Hybrids, bred with a cock Yellowhammer, and hen Canary, one of them showing the V markings on head very distinctly.

HORNSEY, WOOD GREEN, C.B.S.

It would be difficult to imagine a more suitable rendezvous for a show than the splendid concert room at the "Three Jolly Butchers," Wood Green, and the society is to be congratulated upon its selection. The staging, too, was splendid. For these arrangements thanks are due to Mr. P. Brooks, the excellent hon. secretary, and his committee. Mr. F. Day, the chairman, has entered into the duties of his office with zest, and has signalised the same by presenting to the society a very handsome silver cup, which was on view at the show. Mrs. Day, too, gracefully dispensed tea to the helpers. The quality and the entry were on a par with the arrangements, there being some 80 exhibits staged, not a few of which will undoubtedly be heard of at future shows. The list of specials was a long one, and the competition for them was very keen. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards met with general satisfaction. The list of specials was as under:—Best Nor., Mr. J. Griffin; best Yorks., Mr. C. Tolfree; best and 2nd best Border, Mr. H. W. Warner; best Crest, Mr. J. Pettit; Brit., Mr. E. W. Waldock; 2nd best ditto, Mr. J. Griffin; 3rd best, Mr. E. H. Waldock; best Champ., Mr. P. Brooks; best Amat., Mr. C. Tolfree; best Novice, Mr. H. Warner; best Novice Nor., Mr. W. Gaine; Yorks., Mr. F. Day.

BARROW AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

N.F. Show held Dalton Road School's, July 12. Entry very good, a total of 100. Mr Jas Stewart (Whitehaven) was judge, and he did his duty very well. The winner of the challenge cup, Mr. S. Woodward put down a grand team, a credit to him. The winner of the Border cup, Mr. J. Armstrong, is a novice, this being his first time showing, and he must be congratulated. Mr. J Jones won the silver medal.

DERBY C.B.S.

First Y.B. show held at the Wheel Inn, Friar Gate, Derby. Some grand young Norwich and Yorkshires were on view, and experienced breeders were given a surprise by being beaten by some of the younger members. Mr. A. Morrell secured 1st with a grand clear yell. Nor., a bird that with careful management should do well in later shows. Mr. J. H. Drakeley secured two 1sts with a beautiful brace of buff Norwich. In Yorks Mr. G. Wheeldon secured a 1st with a clear yell. and 1st with a clear buff, two charming birds. Mr. W. H. Eley judged and his awards seemed to give entire satisfaction. Owing to so many counter attractions, the attendance was not what it might have been, but later shows will, perhaps, fare better in this respect. Mr. F. Harrison kindly lent the room for the show, which proved an admirable one for the purpose.

CL. OR TKD. YELL. NOR.: 1, Morrell; 2, hc, c, Baker; 3, Roberts; vhc, Tongue. BUFF: 1, Drakeley; 2, Twells; 3, vhc, Watts; hc, Tongue; c, Baker. LIGHTLY MKD. SOUTHPORT AND DIST. C.B.S.

First feather show held July 12, when a nice lot of youngsters faced the judge. The show had been postponed owing to the scarcity of youngsters about. A few of the fanciers seem to have had a decent season, but the majority have had only indifferent results. Nor. were a decent lot, the sec., Mr. E. Sutton, putting down fine birds, which accounted for most of the spoils. Yorks. were a very fine lot, and some class birds were put down. Mr. Linaker staged a young yellow that will make up even better than his winner of last year. In the buff marked class, Mr. Wright put down a beautiful young hen. Mr. Peter Waring (Preston) judged in his well-known painstaking and efficient manner.

YELL. NOR.: 1, hc, Cookson, rare good type, quality and head, will moult out a buff; 2, vhc, Sutton, varieg., grand body and qual.; 3, Milliburn, heavy mkd., best headed bird in class, stands high on legs and had broken tail; c, Johnson. BUFF: 1, 3, vhc, Sutton, two very promising youngsters, grand size, rare heads and qual.; 2, Millburn, cleaner cut, good col., beaten size; hc, Johnson; c, Whitehead. VARIEG. BUFF: 1, 2, 3, Sutton, all three good type and heads, 2nd our choice, very wide chest, rare size, but wild; vhc, hc, Cookson; c, Milliburn. YELL. YORKS.: 1, Linaker, mkd. wings and eyes, rare length, slim as a poker, exquisite qual., should make up A1; 2, vhc, Nixon, another good one, only beaten legs and qual.; 3, hc, Wright, big clear. BUFF: 1, hc, Linaker, nicely drawn, neat head; 2, vhc, Wright, good bit thicker in body; 3, c, Nixon, as good as either, but crosses wings. VAR. BUFF: 1, Wright, lovely youngster, neat head, stands well up, grand quality; 2, vhc, Linaker, longer bird, beaten little in position; 3, hc, Nixon. A.O.V.: 1, 2, Millburn; 3, vhc, Whitehead, all Cinnamons, 1st winning in size and col.

RAMSGATE AND DIST. C.B.S.

F.F. show, July 10, when 54 birds faced the judge, Mr. H. E. Taylor, of Canterbury, who gave every satisfaction. Mr. J. Burgess won special best Canary with a nice typical yell. Nor., Mr. F. Thomas' special best Mule with a splendid yell. Goldie Can.; Mr. T. H. Wellard, special best British with a really lovely Goldie. The society should have a great future with such an energetic sec. as Mr. F. Thomas, who had everything in apple-pie order, and was backed up by a sportsmanlike committee, among them being Mr. S. E. Brumhill (late of Maidstone), J. Burgess, A. G. Fasham, T. H. Wellard, Dr. R. Alliott, E. J. Kew, F. Shaxted.

NOR. CL. YELL. (6): 1, Brumhill, quite a baby, nice depth of chest, very typical, should make up into a good one; 2, Fasham, nice col. and type, fails in head, promising youngster; 3, Burgess, bigger than 1st and 2nd, but long in tail and flights; 4, Dr. Alliott; vhc, Brumhill; hc, Burgess. BUFF (10): 1, vhc, Brumhill, couple of the right stamp, winner very typical, beautiful qual; 2, 4, Kew, good size, nice soft, silky feather; 3, Thomas, very promising, beginning to show signs of moult or no doubt would have stood higher; hc, Fasham; c, Burgess. MKD., Etc. (10): 1, 3, Brumhill, winner wing and cap mkd. buff, very nice, short and chubby, 3rd another mkd. wing and head, bigger but longer in flights; 2, vhc, Burgess, nice substance, fails a little in head; hc, Dr. Alliott; 14c, 14d, Kew, too late to be judged, or would no doubt have altered the awards. CL. YELL. YORKIE (4): 1, 2, 4, Wellard, grand team, straight as pencils, beautiful col. and quality; 4, Shaxted, very typical, but smaller. BUFF (2): 1, 2, Wellard, couple of beauties. MKD. (2): 1, Wellard, wing and eye mkd. buff, beautiful long slim stylish bird, very taking; 2, Fasham, another nice youngster, fails length to winner. YELLOW, 1912 (7): 1, 3, Burgess, two hot coloured clears winner shorter and more compact; 2, Wellard, well-known yellow Yorkie, wonderful bird for his age. BUFF, 1912 (3): 1, 3, Thomas, good ones, nice and chubby, plenty of substance; 2, Fasham, beautiful quality of feather. GOLDF. OR BULLF. (6): 1, 2, vhc, Wellard, charming Goldie, splendid deep scarlet blaze, beautifully tanned, grand size and steady as a rock, 2nd another nice Goldie, smaller; 3, Brumhill, Goldie, good size, showing signs of moult; 4, Thomas, Bullie, grand size and col.; vhc, hc Fasham. LINNET (2): 1, Wellard, a good one, nice size and markings; 2, Thomas, plenty of size and colour. GREENF. (2): 1, Fasham, good big yell., very steady; 2, Thomas. A.O.V. BRIT.: 1, Fasham, fair Bramble.

"CAGE BIRDS" WATCH COUPON July 26th, 1913.

Manager, "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

ARBROATH C.B.S.

F.F. Show held July 12, there being about one hundred birds forward. Mr. W. Hampton judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction. Messrs. Muir and Heenan had forward their last year's winning Goldie-Twite Hybrid. The quality was up to the standard in all sections, the Borders being first in point of numbers, closely followed by Nor. and Brit., while Mules and Foreign contained some really class birds. Mr. J. Gray had everything in first-class order, and the society are lucky in having such a hardworking secretary at the head of affairs.

NOR. CK.: 1, 4, Jamieson, nice cobby bird, lightly marked, wins; 2, 5, Duncan, good, close up; 3, Muir and Heenan; 6, Stewart. HEN: 1, Muir and Heenan, sweet hen, fine wings and tail, thick body; 2, Stewart very promising, lightly var.; 3, 4, Jamieson; 5, 6, Duncan. EOR. We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ⅝-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

"PHOSTO"

Don't begin moulting without "Phosto." Don't give your birds toules and medicines which do no good; give them "Phosto," which will build up the whole system, and enable them to stand the strain of moulting. Don't wait until your birds show signs of softness, start at once to build them up. "Phosto" is a great food, which has now become famous. Give a little with the colour food. A shilling may save you pounds. Don't forget, "Phosto" improves size, and don't forget the name. Sold in tins, 1/-, 2/6, 4/6.—Judge Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

ILLUSTRATED INFORMATION ABOUT THE Most Valuable Canary Guide Book Ever Published.

How to obtain this Big Volume for 1/- only NOW

In the accompanying drawing (which is true to scale) notice the relative size of the hand and that of the book. From this you will be able to judge the size of this superb volume. Not only is it the largest volume ever published upon Canaries and the only exhaustive treatise upon these lovely creatures, but it is written by the ablest authorities—men who have devoted a lifetime to the study of their habits, and who have been exhibitors, first prize winners, and judges at the principal shows for many years. The Editor of this volume and the principal contributor is Claude St. John, perhaps the best authority on Canaries in the world, and among the other contributors are those well-known judges, C. A. House and G. E. Weston.

7-lbs. Weight Volume.

MEDICINES.

MOULTINE.—The only certain cure for soft moult, asthma, wheezing, huskiness, etc.; in bottles, 6d. and 1/-, post paid: Parker, Chemist, Morecambe.

OGDEN BROS. have found at last (after 20 years' experimenting) a certain cure for birds going light; 1/6 a bottle; if ever it fails to cure, money returned: Dudley-hill, Bradford.

EVERY birdkeeper has need of practical hints upon the prevention of diseases and their eradication from cage, aviary, and birdroom. These are to be found in "Nutshell No. 9," post free 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

"AILING Cage Birds and How to Cure Them," "Nutshell No. 6," an account of the troubles which beset captive birds, with the treatment and list of medicines to restore our pets to health. This will save you much discouragement and money, and costs only 2½d. post free.—From "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Or 2d. from agents (list frequently published).

"SOFT MOULT NOT SINGING."

Wanted a trial. We are confident our Medicines will give you satisfaction. Special offer to all Bird Fanciers. If you have any birds that are in the soft moult, or a cock bird that has gone off song, we guarantee you a perfect cure, or return full money. We have the grandest Medicine ever introduced for birds that are run down after breeding season, or gone off song. Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, not singing, going light, dulness, feather plucking, diarrhœa, and inflamation of the bowels. The finest pick-me-up ever offered for young birds just getting on hard seed. It prevents and cures going light, so common with young birds. Sold in 7d., 1/1, 2/-, and 5/- bottles, each size bottle being about treble the former size. For bronchitis, wheezing, and hoarseness, get Ditchfield's Special Lung Tonic, the grandest medicine ever introduced for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d. and 1/1 bottles. To advertise our medicines we will send a 7d. bottle of each medicine for 1/-, or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9. All medicines post paid per return at our risk. Two valuable seed recipes: How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for contest singing given free to all Purchasers of our Medicines.—Frank Ditchfield, Bird Specialist, Oldham. (768)

Collingbourne and Co.

Our Great Sale was a Huge Success—over 1,200 birds sold (sale register open for inspection); not jonions swank. We also beg to inform readers we have also acquired the business of the Thames Valley Aviaries, formerly run by Harry Abbott, Esq., who will still conduct that branch. Aviaries situated in open orchard, with a greatly increased stock. Our business has now grown to such a huge concern that to deal with it as a hobby as we did originally is impossible. The whole secret of our success is this: supplying only truly acclimatised birds from outdoor exposed aviaries (not brick lofts over heated premises). No artificial heat of any kind, guaranteed, and no absurd fancy prices. Send for Lists, and save yourselves shillings or pounds. Approval before payment.

ROTHERHAM C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, College Inn, July 26, Mr. W. Brotherton chair. We have increased schedule for our open show to 27 classes, and we have engaged the Central Hall, which is a new hall, and is only one minute from the Midland and 3 minutes from Great Central station, and is a very nice place for a show having large windows all round. I think there is not a better in Yorkshire.—B. Bailey, Sec.

EALING AND HANWELL F.S.

Evening Show, held July 19, at St. John's Hall, West Ealing, when 250 exhibits of various kinds faced the music for a two hours' show, what fanciers we have in West Middlesex, and there is room in the society for plenty more who live near. Specialist judges only engaged. Cage birds came along well. Mr. P. Rorke judged the cage bird section. YORKS.: 1, sp, Taylor and Wright; 2, br, Monger; 3, Crockett; res, vhc, Boffin. UNFLIG.: 1, vhc, Monger; 2, r, hc, Huxley; 3, c, Taylor and Wright. NOR.: 1, 2, Nicholls; 3, res, vhc, hc, Withers.—R. Bamber, Hon. Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting held July 20, at Mr. E. Fuller's, Glossop. Present: Messrs. Fuller, Rukin, J. Hamer, F. Hamer, Stansfield, Ridgard, Swalwell, J. Ollerenshaw, E. Ollerenshaw, Millington, Bradley, Lowsnap, Martin, with Mr. Barker Clegg in the chair. Patronage was granted to L.C.B.A. and Bradford National shows. Messrs. Garside and Hamilton (Glossop), Bradley (New Mills), and Beattie (New Hey), were proposed as members. The following gentlemen were put on our list of specialist judges: E. Fuller, J. Garner, J. Swalwell, Barker, Clegg, J. Hamer, J. Rukin, J. Ollerenshaw, S. R. Compston. After the meeting the Glossop members invited the rest of us to tea at their homes, then to a view of their young birds. Next meeting at Mr. T. White's, Wellington Hotel, Kingston Brow, Hyde, Aug. 16, at 6.—Alec Martin, Hon. Sec.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Meeting, held in Fountan Bar, July 16. Mr. J. C. Murray, chair. Estimates from Spratt's and Old Calabar were submitted and agreed we get Spratt's stationery. Estimates from Fraser Simpson for show bunting were also submitted, but owing to a little change in the work estimated for it was left to Mr. J. Reid and secretary to see Fraser Simpson and report at next meeting. A cup for the Yorkshires was then handed over to the society, for the most points gained by member, and to become the property of the member winning it three times, not necessarily in succession (open membership). Sec. was instructed to write the winners of our cups and ask if they would let us have them for a short time, as we intend getting them all photographed together. Usual vote of thanks to the chair brought the meeting to a close.—J. W. Holmes, Sec.

OPEN NORWICH P.C.C.

Committee meeting held July 26, Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford. Mr. W. A. Wilson, Leeds, chair. Mr. J. Wilford, Leeds, was elected a member. Letter was read from Mr. P. H. Wingworth, M.P., stating that he will again accept the presidency of the club. Also he has sent a substantial cheque to replace cup that was last year won outright. The committee expressed their best thanks for his kind support. Names were submitted for the printing of the club's handbooks. The various competitions, etc., were made for the coming season—Champion section: Prizes, £1 10s., £1, 10s.; amateur: £1, 15s., 7s. 6d. Money special at each patronage show for the birds. Junior novice competition for member of Yorks. Union, at their shows:—For first half of the season: prizes 12s. 6d., 7s. 6d.; second half of the season: prizes 12s. 6d., 7s. 6d. The "Percy Illingworth cup" conditions as before.—F. Rhodes, Sec.

LEINSTER O.S.

Meeting of committee held July 17, when a very large number of members put in an appearance. Our worthy chairman, Mr. J. J. Cloke, received the congratulations of the meeting on his recovery from his recent sickness. The Hon. Sec. read a letter from Mr. Hawkins in reference to his very generous gift to the society's forthcoming open show, an extract of which is as follows:—"I will give a solid silver cup or its value in cash to the amount of £3 to a member of the L.O.S. gaining most points in Canary classes, to be won outright." The committee were very pleased with such generous support, and hope that the good example set may soon be followed by other supporters of the society. The hon. treas. reported the funds in a very flourishing condition, over £20 being at the disposal of the committee after paying for their staging, etc. Other routine business and a hint of another cup brought the meeting to a close.—C. Holley, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at Maskell's Hotel, there being a good number present. After a long discussion it was decided to apply for CAGE BIRDS coupon scheme. Mr. E. J. Davies reported he had paid a deposit on Wyverne Road Hall for open show. I am pleased to have to report that we are making progress. Four new members were enrolled at last meeting, Messrs. Jephson, H. Gooding, Pedlar, Phillips, making eight in two meetings. Final arrangements were made for young bird show. Classification of open show was dealt with. Norwich, Yorks., and Border sections are closed, and we hope to deal with British, Mules, and Foreign, at next meeting. We are sorry to have to strike out the Crests, as we only had four entries in two classes last year. Scotch Fancies and Crests have not paid for a number of years, but we should be pleased to put them in if any fancier will guarantee them. Please all attend next meeting, as we want to finish classification.—E. Thomas, Sec.

SOUTHERN BORDER F.C.

Monthly meeting held Guildhall, Wandsworth Road, July 24. Mr. McGuffie presided. Following gentlemen were elected on the Provincial Committee: Messrs. Madagan (Cheltenham), Bacon (Redhill), Pratt (Exmouth), Jenkins (Swansea), Roberts (Penygroes), Pratt (Teignmouth), Gwilliam (Gloucester). Patronage was allotted to the L.C.B.A., Leyton and Dis., Portsmouth and Southern Counties C.B.A., Cheltenham C.B.A., and Clapham and Dis. C.B.A. Tenders for the printing of the rule books had been received, and it was decided to accept that of Messrs. Stoakley and Co., Wimbledon. A discussion took place as to the definition of a ticked bird. Decided that a ticked bird be one with not more than two marks, these to be no larger than a sixpence and a dark underline. It was decided to allot the diplomas presented by Mr. W. Plank, one for best bird shown by a novice, and one for runner-up to winner of spoon at each show. The following were elected members: Messrs. Williams, Cullum, Martin, Kay, Philpot, Mugford, Richards, Harry, and Hocking. A further donation was received for the cup fund, and rules for the cup competition were drawn up. Any fancier wishing to join and sending in at once, will have his name and address appear in rule books. Members wishing for a breeder's badge or spoon, also tradesmen wishing to advertise in rule books, can have full particulars of same by applying to Sec. at once. Meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman.—F. Moore, Hon. Sec., 39, Kelvinscott Road, Clapham Junction, S.W.

PLYMOUTH W.C.O.S.

Monthly meeting held at club-room, July 22. Mr. W. French presided over a fair attendance. It was unanimously decided to adopt CAGE BIRDS competition for annual show of Oct. 14 and 15 next, and to extend prize list to seven prizes per class, thereby doing away with codding cards. In introducing this new scheme of prize money, the Hon. Sec. (Mr. T. Pope) reminded the members that the society would be giving 25s. in money per class for an entry fee of 1s. 6d., thereby creating a record, and asked for extra help to make the show the success that this liberality merited. A discussion on "2Colour Feeding" wound up the proceedings.—Thos. Pope, Hon. Sec.

STANLEY (Victoria Club) F. & F.S.

Meeting held at club, July 27, Mr. T. H. Curry chair, with a good turn-out of members. Treas., Mr. J. Boyle, tendered his resignation as he has gone into business, and is afraid he cannot do his duty to the show as he would like. Our members did not like the idea of losing him, and they persuaded him to remain in office for this year. He is one of our most energetic members, and his place would be hard to fill. Several members spoke wishing Mr. Boyle every success, and it was the unanimous hope that Mr. Boyle be as successful in his business as he was in getting through tickets for our prize drawing and other business he has taken in hand for the benefit of the Cage Bird Fancy.—R. Peart, Sec.

NORTHERN CREST CLUB.

Meeting held in Lockhart's Cafe, 65, Grainger Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne July 23, Mr. Robson chair. Sec. read letters from various sources, including one from the Sec. of Newcastle Society, to the effect that that society (after requesting our patronage) could not see their way to put the required classes on unless we were prepared to stand half the loss, should there be any. As this is without precedent, the members decided not to agree to the condition. Letter was read from Sec. of Blaydon-on-Tyne Society that his club had decided to provide the necessary classes for our patronage at their annual show, so it is to be earnestly hoped that the members and others who keep the bird that is being boycotted in the North will endeavour to do their best to make a good entry, to show appreciation of a society that is still willing to cater for the Crested Canary. Letter was also read from the Sec. of Glasgow Society inviting the members of the N.C.C. to patronise their show on Oct. 17 and 18. They have five classes for Crests and are paying 36s. per class prize money (guaranteed). Following were elected members:—A. Jeffries, Richmond; W. Knowles, Chester-le-Street; I. Redpath, Pelton Fell. As there was a small balance from the 1912 social, it was decided that it be equally divided between the various specialist clubs who took part. Without going into detail, I may say that I did not accomplish my desire to relinquish the secretaryship, so that I hope to do my best when the time comes round to make the necessary arrangements for our annual show. A few members have neglected to pay their subscription, and I shall be pleased to receive the same at their earliest convenience.—J. G. Hutchinson.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE PICTURE.

Notes by the Secretary of "Cage Birds League."

Commenting upon the methods of Sparrow and Rat Clubs, the "Fruit, Flower and Vegetable Trades' Journal" says: "War against vermin may have much to commend it, but it will be a sorry day for the countryside when a campaign of extermination is allowed to be carried out against the feathered tribe . . . common decency must revolt against the youth of the villages being encouraged in such battues . . . greater trouble than any wrought by Bullfinches and Blackbirds awaits the industry of fruit growing if such excesses are not put a stop to, and these so called rat and Sparrow clubs brought under proper supervision."

While it is far from the wish of any lover of birds to encourage the wholesale slaughter of even such a pestiferous bird as the House Sparrow, yet it is surprising to find a horticultural journal saying a word in opposition to the thinning out of the multitudes of House Sparrows which in these days of motors are infesting fields, flower gardens, and fruit gardens in clouds, and which are increasing even in greater ratio than when they sought a precarious living in the streets of our towns and cities.

"Bird Notes and News," the organ of the Society for the Protection of Birds, has taken seriously an obviously "faked" picture recently published in a London daily. This picture pretended to portray the methods of Linnet fanciers, and represented a number of back cages wrapped in handkerchiefs and hung on the railings near an aviary in a public park. The men in the picture were supposed to be the owners of the birds which were supposed to be in the parcels, and these supposititious Linnets were supposed to be taking lessons from the birds in the aviary.

The correspondent who sent the picture to "Bird Notes and News," said in a covering letter: "I always failed to see before why these aviaries of little English birds were needed, as proper provision for nesting places and food in the parks would do much more to provide attractive bird-life. The working man's 'fondness' is for the money the birds win at the public-house, and I still fail to see why our parks should act as feeders for this business."

The Absurdity of the Thing.

The absurdity of supposing that the Linnets which take part in singing contests take music lessons from the birds in a mixed aviary, needs no pointing out, but when the person who believes such an absurdity goes on to say that the working man's fondness is for the money the birds win, then that person is making a totally unwarrantable statement.

Linnet singing is the sport of a limited number of working men, and is a perfectly harmless sport. The men who take a pride in the performances of their birds, and who find a sport in matching them one against another, have as perfect a right to indulge in their pastime as those who prefer sport of other kinds. The prizes are rarely in the shape of money prizes, and when they are in cash the principal portion of that cash is subscribed by those contesting for them, just as the principal portion of a ten thousand pound horse racing prize is found by subscriptions of racehorse owners. It is a very cheap form of abuse indeed to rail at these humble fanciers, the majority of whom are too uneducated to be able properly to defend their hobby, and it is as contemptible as it is cheap.

TERMS OF MEMBERSHIP.

ORDINARY MEMBERS shall pay an annual subscription of Two Shillings and Sixpence.

JUNIOR MEMBERS.—Members under the age of fourteen years at the date of joining shall pay an annual subscription of One Shilling.

VICE PRESIDENTS.—An annual subscription of not less than Half-a-Guinea shall constitute the subscriber a Vice President.

LIFE MEMBERS.—A donation of not less than Five Guineas in one amount shall constitute the donor a Life Member.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS.—The payment to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE of a legacy of £20 and upwards shall constitute the administrator or executor making the payment an Honorary Life Member. A form of bequest will be sent, post free, on application.

THE LEAGUE BADGES.

Neat and unobtrusive badges are supplied to members, without any charge beyond their subscriptions as above. The badges may be had either in button form, or mounted in rolled gold in two forms, one as a brooch for ladies or for cycling caps or coat lapel, and the other as a pendant for bracelet or watch-chain. The kind required should be specified clearly.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES,
Secretary CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE,
154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

Twitterings.

Mr. F. Cox, sec., writes that Northampton Good Intent O.S. will hold a one day show on Oct. 22. Mr. T. Gilbert, Coventry, will judge cage birds.

Owing to August holidays, the Wigan and District C.B.S. will meet on the second Saturday in the month instead of the first, writes Mr. Ed. Ball, hon. sec.

I was very pleased to see the photograph of my Hawfinch last week. Since he won the championship at the Palace I have had several offers, but as he is a household pet he is not for sale. G. Oliver (East Ham).

Will fanciers in the Stanley Victoria Club F. and F.S., please note that we are running our secretary, Mr. R. Peart, for a seat on the Board of Management of the club, writes Mr. John Boyle. Voting takes place 1st and 2nd August.

We have removed our headquarters from the Globe Restaurant to the Friendly Societies' Hall, where we shall be pleased to meet all members and any new ones at our next meeting, August 4th, writes Mr. E. Gill, sec., Skipton C.B.S.

We hear from Mr. J. Fairgrieve, sec. Haddington East Lothian C.B.S., that A. Livingston, Paisley, has been appointed judge of Scotch Fancies, British, and Foreign; and G. Dislop, Stirling, for Border Fancy, and Norwich, for the show held Oct. 18.

The annual ramble of the Openshaw, Gorton and Dist. C.B.S., writes Mr. F. Washbourne, hon. sec., will take place Aug. 10 to Woodhead. Train leaves Ashbury, 2.25 Gorton 2.30, G.C.R.; return fare, 9d. Fanciers and friends cordially welcomed; guide, Mr. J. W. Pie.

Mr. Nelson, of Redruth, secured the special for rarest bird at Redruth Show, with a lovely Aurora Finch, which also, we hear, had the reserve prize in its class. A fine pair of Firo Finches reported as "No Name" were also owned by Mr. Nelson; these were awarded a third prize.

I would be obliged, writes Mr. J. Peacock, sec., Sunderland C.B.A., if you would let the Fancy know that I have obtained the use of the Miners' Hall for our open show in January, 1914, which is the same hall as we had last year. The Patronage of the five specialist clubs granted to us ought to bring in a large entry and make quite a good show.

At the last meeting of the Birtley C.B.S., held at Station Hotel, writes Mr. S. Lindsay, hon. sec., it was arranged to hold our first open show on Oct. 4. Birtley being so very central it is hoped that fanciers will rally to our support and make this "the show of the North." At the next meeting, August 9, we hope to arrange classification and appoint judges.

Fanciers will be sorry to hear of the serious illness of Mr. Todd, the chairman of the late Darlington C.B.S., and well-known Hybrid breeder, writes Mr. J. Forster. Mr. Todd has been ill for some considerable time, and has just been discharged from the local hospital, but he is still in a serious condition. I am sure fanciers will join me in sympathising with him in his painful illness, and wish him a speedy recovery.

We have been fortunate in securing the following well-known judges for our Open Show on Nov. 22, writes Mr. J. Cosgrove, hon. sec., Uddingston C.B.S.:—Norwich and Crests, W. G. Muir, Kilmarnock; Scotch Fancy and Borders and Yorks., J. N. Bruce, Coldstream; British, Mules, etc., R. V. Raine, Glasgow, and Alex. McGillivray, Boness. Our classification will be on much the same lines as last year, but fuller particulars will be published later.

To Society Secretaries, Advertisers and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used.

Mr. R. Lile, sec., writes that the following judges will officiate at the show of the Edinburgh O.A., November 22. Messrs. McIlwain, Carlaw, Hardie, and Clark.

Mr. A. M. Baird, Sec. Scotch Fancy National Derby O.A., writes that the following well-known judges have been engaged for the annual show: Messrs. J. Carlaw, Falkirk; J. Muirhead, Bonnybridge; J. Watson, Glasgow, and A. Paterson, Edinburgh.

All prize-money won at Bugle Show has been paid out, write Messrs. Pearce and Gregor, hon. secs. Anyone overlooked, please apply at once. We should like to thank those who applied for schedule outside of the county, but being a county show, could not supply.

Through lack of time, writes Mr. J. W. Christon, I have been compelled to resign the secretaryship of the Annfield Plain F. and F.C.B.S. The post has been taken up by Mr. M. Archer, 25, William Street, Craghead, and all particulars should now be addressed to him. I thank one and all for kind courtesy shown to me during my term of office.

The patronage of the Southern Border F.C., writes Mr. F. Moore, hon. sec., 49, Kelmscott Road, Clapham Junction, has been granted to the L.C.B.A., Cheltenham C.B.A., Portsmouth and Southern Counties, Leyton and Dis. C.B.A., Clapham and Dis. C.B.A. There are still three dates open, and societies wishing for the patronage should apply as above.

OBITUARY.

It is with great sorrow, writes Mr. W. Burbidge, Leyton, I have to inform you of the death of my beloved wife from pneumonia, on July 5, after only six days' illness. My dear wife was well-known among the members of the Leyton and District Cage Bird Association, I being the assistant secretary during the first five years of the Association. Kindly record this sad event in your good old paper.

I should be pleased, writes Mr. T. H. Barnes (Gloucester) if you would allow me to thank, through CAGE BIRDS, those who contributed towards the loss of my Canaries when we had the fire; likewise Mr. J. H. Payne, who collected for the same.

It was a pleasant surprise for me when I opened my CAGE BIRDS on Friday morning to see my Self Cinnamon Border depicted on the front page, writes Mr. F. Moore. I thank you and your esteemed artist for the honour you have done me, and wish CAGE BIRDS all the success it deserves.

Hoopoe Captured Alive.

A Hoopoe, a bird with a "crown" of feathers rarely seen wild in Great Britain, flew in at the open window of the Manor House, Heston, Middlesex, and was captured by Mr. P. H. Browne, who set it free after examination.

A Deserved Testimonial.

A thoroughly well-deserved testimonial fund is being raised on behalf of Mr. W. B. Cobb, of Leeds, whose services have been ungrudgingly given the Fancy in many directions, especially as secretary to the Scotch Fancy and Belgian Specialist Clubs. Mr. Cobb, we regret to learn, through severe and prolonged illness, has fallen on very hard times. A letter concerning the matter, from Mr. J. W. Ramsden (the manager of the Crystal Palace Show), will be found in our correspondence columns this week.

Plymouth's Generous Prize-money.

We are extending our prize-money, writes Mr. T. Pope, the hon. sec. of Plymouth show, and at our next annual fixture it will be: 1st 10s., 2nd 5s., 3rd 3s., 4th 2s. 6d., vhc 2s., hc 1s. 6d., c 1s.; thus there will be no "coding cards," as every award of the judge will carry a cash prize with it. The entry fee will still remain at 1s. 6d. each bird, and the total of 25s. per class in prize-money for this fee, is, we think, a record one. (This very old-established society worthily keeps up its reputation as progressive and generous, and its annual show certainly merits the hearty support of all exhibitors.—Editor.)

Sexing Young Canaries.

Our recent postcard competition relating to the sexing of young Canaries has moved one of our lady readers (Mrs. Gahagan) to "poetry." She writes:

You gave us bird-keepers a rather tough job
In trying to capture that prize of five "Bob";
There's been lassies and laddies doing their best
To sort out the He's and the She's in the nest.
One of the laddies did write "Wait and See,"
A humorous remark that much tickled me;
In concluding my "verses" I'm sure I might say
They don't want much sorting at Valentine's Day!

A Nest of White Swallows.

A somewhat unusual freak of nature has been observed at Crossmary, Carrickfergus, where a pair of Swallows have brought out a family of four young birds, pure white in colour. The birds nested in the cart-house on the farm of Mr. John Hart, and successfully completed the rearing of their first family. Swallows of a pure white colour are rare, and the birds have been watched with much interest.

The Patronage of Specialist Clubs.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following specialist clubs at their 1913 shows should apply as follows, stating classification given, and judges appointed: National Green Marked Y.C.C., Mr. J. Chambers, 22, St. Anne's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds; Southern Norwich P.C., Mr. F. S. Matthes, 34, Rotherhithe New Road, S.E.; Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., Mr. R. Garnett, 8, Leeds Road, Windhill, Shipley; Yorks. and Lancs., Brit. B. and M.C., T. H. Inman, 43, Derby Road, Thornbury, Bradford; Northern Border and S.F.C.C., Mr. M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Midland Counties Y.C.C., Mr. J. Sheppard, 129, Floyer Road, Small Heath, Birmingham; Fife and Kinross N.P.C., A. Dickson, 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty.

Will secretaries please notify us of the latest date on which applications can be received?

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Owing to the August Bank Holiday the Editorial Offices of CAGE BIRDS will be closed from Saturday to Monday next inclusive.

Will advertisers and Correspondents generally kindly note that all matter intended for NEXT WEEK'S ISSUE should be posted early, to reach us on Tuesday, August 5th, or FIRST POST Wednesday at latest.

Wild-Bird Life.

Among the Young Birds.

Young birds innumerable have been added to the wild bird life of the country during the last three months. In any walk across fields and through woodlands one cannot fail to notice the huge hordes of wild birds in their first feathers, collected together in flocks and families for mutual companionship and safety. The Sparrows are, of course, the most numerous, and the quantities seen in a few hours ramble would astonish the town-dweller, they literally infest the fields, and when disturbed settle on the hedges in crowded masses weighing down the branches to almost breaking point. The Spring and early Summer months have been unusually favourable for the rearing of wild birds, and the Sparrows have benefited as much as any other species. Next to them the Starlings appear to have taken advantage of such favourable times, and have increased in number much more than usual. Private gardens and orchards are crowded with the young birds, and fruit of all kinds suffers in consequence, their never-ending screeching cries can be heard everywhere. No young birds are quite so noisy as young Starlings, and while watching them one wonders what the noise is all about, they simply cannot move without screeching.

The young Greenfinches are almost as persistent in their constant cries, but being less numerous, and their voices less strong, they do not become quite so much of a nuisance. Compared to Starlings, the crics of the young "Green birds" are quite peaceful, and have at times a musical note that reminds one of the love song of their parents in the early Spring. The old birds are still busy in the hedgerows incubating their third clutch.

In many cases young birds differ considerably from the parents in plumage, a homely example is that of the Robin, the young one is a yellowish-brown speckled creature, with no signs of the beautiful red breast of its parents, this not being acquired until the first moult. Many other young ones are more or less speckled, including the Greenlinch and Hedge Sparrow. As a rule where the parent birds are similar in plumage the young birds are unlike them until after the first moult.

In the Courts.

Boys Steal Five Birds.

Three Cambridge schoolboys, whose ages ranged from eight to ten years, were charged at a Children's Court, at the Guildhall, on July 19, with stealing five live birds, value £2, the property of Jabez Constable, of 6, Willow Walk, Cambridge.

Prosecutor said that he kept birds in cages in a back yard. He had recently missed a number of birds, ten altogether, and five during this week. On Sunday, 13th, he missed a Canary, on Monday a Mule and cage (produced). He had also missed a Goldfinch, a Canary, and a young Thrush and cage (produced).

Daisy Wilson stated that she resided with prosecutor. On Monday last, about mid-day, she saw some boys in the back yard, one being in the bird place. She went out of the house and caught one of the boys, but he got away.

By the Chairman: She saw the boy get his hand into one of the cages.

Det.-Sergt. Marsh remarked that he received a complaint about prosecutor losing birds, and also a description of the three boys, who had given a great deal of trouble. He had found the Thrush at the house of the mother of one of the boys. When asked about it, the mother said that the boy had taken it home. He found another one at the home of another of the boys. As witness was taking the birds and cages to the police station he heard a boy remark: "There's a man got our birds." When spoken to the boys accused each other of stealing them.

The Chairman said that the boys seemed to be three little ruffians, running about stealing things and doing mischief wherever they could. They all seemed to be bad, with the youngest the worst of the three. It was nonsense for the parents to say that they could not control their children. The case was dismissed, the boys being cautioned.

OUR COMPETITION FOR £200 IN CASH PRIZES

Join at once: "Cage Birds" scheme benefits both Exhibitors and Societies.

IN view of several letters which have reached us during the last few days, we think it well to repeat that we have, as announced last week, extended the closing date both for sale of coupons to exhibitors and for the receipt of applications from Societies to be enrolled amongst our coupon fixtures.

It has been represented to us that owing to lack of meetings during the summer months, many societies have had no chance of discussing our scheme; we have, therefore put back the final date up to which applications from societies can be considered, until Saturday, Sept. 20th.

We have had a number of letters respecting the limiting of the sale of coupons until Aug. 30, and to meet as far as possible the wishes expressed therein, we have extended the period during which exhibitors may make their first purchase until Sept. 30th—this, of course, being practically to the open day of the show season itself. We are in daily expectation now of the delivery of the coupons from the engravers, and all orders for the same which have been placed with us will be completed either this week-end or immediately after the holidays.

Further Accessions and Opinions.

Since our last list was published we have been requested by the officials of the following societies to include their annual exhibitions amongst our Coupon Shows:—

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.
HARTLEPOOLS C.B.S.
PLYMOUTH (W.C.O.S.).
MANCHESTER & N.C.O.S.
RAMSGATE C.B.S.

Mr. T. Pope, hon. sec. of the Western Counties (Plymouth) O.S., when ordering 5 doz. coupons, writes: We wish CAGE BIRDS' competition every success.

Your scheme should appeal to all exhibitors and be a great help to societies. All the fanciers I have spoken to think very favourably of it.—A. Ferguson (Glasgow).

I wish the Championship Scheme the greatest of success; to my mind it is just the thing to create more keenness amongst exhibitors.—A. Elms (Catford).

We have been able to put your scheme before our members and are pleased to say that they all think it is a good one.—Woodhead and Pyman, hon. secs. Hartlepools C.B.S.

CAGE BIRDS' Coupon Scheme is good and should provide fanciers with something to greatly interest them during the time the competition is going on.—E. Foulds (Manchester).

Two Points Cleared Up.

A lady bird-lover in the South of England writes: My husband is an exhibitor of Yorkshires, but for a number of years now I have myself, too, been exhibiting Yorkshires, and also Belgians. My last win was at Frome show, under Mr. Norman. Can we both try for your prizes with Yorkshires?

The answer is, yes. Anyone may compete with birds (vide rule 3) bona-fide their own property. The only other restriction bearing upon a case of this kind is that contained in the adopted definition of a novice, i.e., "All members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them have to compete."

The above means, of course, that if any fancier comes under the definition "champion," no member of his (or her) family, or anyone residing at the same house,

Skylark's nest built in the aviary of Mr. F. Griffin, of Aston (vide letter published in our issue of July 19). Three eggs were laid, one of which hatched, Mr. Griffin informs us, on the eleventh day of incubation the two left failed to hatch, although the hen sat for 14 days.

can compete except as a champion also. This is to obviate such cases as have created much ill-feeling and acrimonious discussion in the past, where birds have been shown in champion classes for part of the season and afterwards have made their appearance in novice classes, being then entered by the wife, or son or daughter, of the person who previously had been exhibiting them in the higher section.

The second point upon which our opinion is asked is this: "At Coupon Shows, can an even-marked Yorkshire, or a Belgian, compete in the Any Other Variety Canary class, when no special classes are provided for them?"

Here, again, the reply is yes. It is not to be expected that all coupon shows will be able to provide so extended a classification as to embrace all the twelve sections into which the final competition at the Palace show will be divided. We do not ask them to do so; in fact we have previously said (vide issue June 21st) that it is not intended that our scheme shall interfere in any way with the classification any Coupon show may desire to offer. The Diplomas will be in competition in whatever sections are represented in the schedule of classes. If there are no special classes for Belgians, or Lizards, or Lancashires, etc., then these varieties, with any others that come under the "A.O.V." heading, can compete in the any other variety class where such a class is provided in the schedule of a Coupon Show.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th, next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10s. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird, and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS
(4) BORDER FANCIES
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3; SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1; FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £5 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

For details of rules tentatively adopted see page 41 last week.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN EXHIBITING?

If so, have you grasped all that our Great Championship Scheme means to you, and ordered your Coupons?

THE ENEMY OF THE WASP.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Life History of the Spotted Flycatcher.

By JAS. STEEL (Dalkeith).

THAT a little knowledge is a dangerous thing has often been impressed on me in the past by the number of alleged "rare" birds brought to me for identification. While I always welcome such, in the hope that something really rare may turn up among the "funny birds," as they invariably term any species uncommon to this locality, the nearest approaches have been a very dead flying Fox, a nestling Kingfisher, and a Nightjar. These visitations are not without humour. The birds generally arrive in my absence, and as my better-half simply refuses to absorb the rudiments of Ornithology, the catering for their requirements is apt to be like that experienced by an English visitor to a Chinese restaurant, who, after absorbing part of what he thought was a duck, ventured an interrogative, "quack, quack?" The waiter's reply of "bow, wow," was a trifle disconcerting.

Birds That Puzzle the Unlearned.

Three species in particular, viz., Redwing, Bramblefinch, and Spotted-Flycatcher, seem to present difficulties to the unlearned, as during the winter I am safe to predict the capture to be one of the two first mentioned, and at present I am, to quote, Mark Twain, "dealing wisdom out in chunks" about the latter species. I know many who lack a knowledge of their requirements are prone to attempt keeping them, needless to say with fatal results. Spotted Flycatchers being summer migrants to our shores, intolerant of cold, and entirely insectivorous in diet, the desire to possess one can only be accounted for by its fine appearance when in first, or nest-feather, when it fully merits the prefix "spotted." But with the first moult it assumes a colour scheme compared with which the homely Sparrow, divested of the city's grime, looks almost gorgeous. Lacking also that rarity which counts for so much on the show bench, the Spotted Flycatcher is obviously at a disadvantage when competing against the species generally met with in the small insectivorous class. Nor has he, like the majority of plain-coloured birds, the gift of song.

Beauty is But Skin Deep.

Having condemned, I will now give my reason for placing him in the forefront of desirable birds. Desiring to study every instance of rare-feather, or albinism, even the lack of the qualities I have mentioned failed to mar my delight when I found, among a brood of normal coloured Flycatchers, one which was an entire departure, being of a light cinnamon, in contrast with which the spotting was beautiful indeed. I therefore caged the brood, and allowed the parent birds to feed them till they were able to fend for themselves. Before liberating the normal-coloured youngsters, in order to ascertain if a close examination revealed any departure in the parents, I caught them both, but failed to detect anything beyond the fact that the hen was minus a leg. I rung the cock.

Wasp Stings Have No Terrors.

When I got home it was dark, and the lamp revealed a glittering mass which examination showed to be the heads of wasps, of which the cage bottom and nest contained thousands; a later search under the tree where the cage had been kept revealed many more, the peculiar mandibles and antennæ making identification an easy matter. Now, when we consider that the Flycatcher reaches these shores at a time when the destruction of even one of these or other noxious insects means the prevention of a host being reproduced therefrom—to say nothing of the dead millions which go to the rearing of two broods later on—I feel certain that agriculturists and fruit-growers owe a debt of gratitude to this bird. Knowing from experience what the sting of a wasp is, I caged another brood to ascertain how they avoided the business end of that insect, and have no hesitation in saying they are quite impervious, as they swallowed live and particularly angry wasps with an avidity which made me tremble for the consequences.

The following year I was eager to know whether the marked birds would again occupy the same nesting site, or perchance produce another rarity, but though the cock I had rung continued to return for four years. I found that he had a different partner on each occasion, and no further freaks made their appearance. This I consider proof that the cock chooses the nesting place, and does not pair for life.

With a view to ascertaining the powers of flight of the species, I rung one with the Aberdeen University ring and dispatched it to that institution with instructions for liberation and timing. Unfortunately, in the absence of Mr. Landsborough Thomson, the sacristan had to liberate the bird at a bad time, 8 p.m., yet it was back here at 12.15 p.m. next day. I would be pleased to co-operate with someone and have a series of properly timed flights from an even more distant point, as I am confident their velocity is very high. That they return to the same place each year is proved again by the fact that I have this year re-caught two which I rung at the same place last year. It makes one marvel to get a bird back to hand which has been over thousands of miles of land and ocean.

Ringing the Wild Birds.

I have marked nine Flycatchers this year, and hope that any bird student who happens to obtain one of these (or of any other species; I myself have rung hundreds) will communicate with the University, enclosing ring and data. In conclusion I may state that the Flycatcher admits of easy capture by reason of always returning to the same rock, or branch, from which it darts forth on the passing insect, it only being necessary to place two grasses as described in my former article, to take him without the least injury.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:

(1) All questions must be clearly written in ink on typewritten on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2) The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3) Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4) Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5) The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6) If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7) Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who receive letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Post-cards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

TAIL NOT MOULTED (C.I.C.).—As you say the bird is two years old, by which you appear to mean this is its second moult, it was quite natural for it to moult last year without losing the large tail feathers, as neither these, nor the large wing feathers, are normally moulted by Canaries at the first moult. This year, however, they should have been shed under normal conditions at a very early stage of the moult. Has the tail been lost accidentally of late, or is it likely you have overlooked the tail feathers being cast off gradually at the same time as the flights? Anyway, if you are quite sure the tail has not been moulted you can do no harm by gently extracting it. Remove four feathers, one at a time, on one day each week for three weeks. They will come away very easily and practically painlessly whilst the bird is moulting, and a new tail will quickly appear.

SQUATS ON PERCH (R.G.L.). I suppose your remark that there appears nothing wrong with the feet includes the claws, or "toe-nails." If not, and they are overgrown, trimming them back to a proper length may suffice to restore the bird's activity. Your feeding is not correct, and this, coupled with the good things going during the breeding season, may be responsible for a little excess of fat. Give a diet of plain canary only with a liberal supply of watercress, lettuce, or crisp young chickweed or groundsel. In the drinking water add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week, and in the next week give instead six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. The approaching moult will tend to make the bird rather sluggish just now.

WHEEZY, BUT CHEERFUL (Novice).—You should have said how you feed and treat the bird generally, and where you keep it. It is not unlikely that since we have had some decent weather the bird has been having considerably more than the average of cold draughts from open windows, doors, etc—hence the incidence of the wheeziness. If this surmise is correct, you must entirely remove these exciting causes. Keep the bird in a bright, comfortable place, with plenty of fresh, pure air, but no direct draughts, or dusty, heated, impure air. Feed on the ordinary diet frequently given in these replies, and for a fortnight, in addition to the seed diet, give half a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw every second day. In the drinking water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece, daily for three days. After this add to the water 20 drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil well shaken together every second day for a fortnight. If bird is not well in this time, write again and I will advise you further.

LUMP ON LEG (W.W.).—Truly, a lump on a Canary's leg as big as a large marble must appear a monstrous size. I'm afraid I cannot help you much, as you leave me in total ignorance about the general appearance of the substance, or its position. A rough sketch would have made the latter point clear. It may be an abnormal feather growth, which can be frequently recognised as closely resembling undeveloped feather material. In this case, if there is a "neck," so to speak, tie tightly round it a ligature of hair or silk, and the substance will drop off in due course. On the other hand, it might be a tumour, easily removable by excision by a veterinary; or it might even be an enlarged vein. You see speculation in the dark is very useless. If not apparently a feather growth, you might paint it once a day for a fortnight with a feather dipped in extract of wych hazel of the full strength as you get it from the chemist. If this makes no improvement, and the bird is a valuable one, your best plan is to get a veterinary to examine it and see what is wrong. In addition to the plain diet you are giving, supply a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with maw every third day for a month, and half a teaspoonful of mixed seed twice each week on the intervening days. Also add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn to the drinking water every second day for a week.

IS IT TOO COLD? (E. Horne).—It must be something more than mere cold which causes so many of your birds to get colds in winter. There must be damp, or, perhaps, extreme fluctuations in addition; otherwise, I can only suspect that your birds come of a delicate stock, or have not been hitherto accustomed to a normal temperature when you got them. You say the room gets as low as 34 degrees in winter. Well, I have myself had the water in the drinking vessels reduced to an almost solid block of ice, and numerous fanciers whose experiences you might have read in our columns have had similar experiences, and the birds have been in the pink of condition through it all. This, of course, means a temperature considerably below 34 degrees, so you see your conditions are far from being exceptional in this respect. If you read up Parts II. and III. of "Our Canaries," you would see that Canaries of high-class stock have been bred quite successfully in cages kept in the open air all the year round, and you would also find full information of all forms of heating worth considering. If you take due care to guard against insects, there can be no objection to covering the cages over at night from the beginning of the moult until the spring; or, if you still wish to heat the room, I would suggest a small portable hot-water coil, of which you will find details in the parts of book mentioned.

VARIOUS (Bosco, Waterford). (1) If you mean an insecticide to paint on ends of perches, joints of doors, etc., once or twice a week, the essence of quassia, or fir tree oil, on the market, are both excellent. Nothing excels a solution of camphor (one ounce) in methylated spirit (half-pint), but it spoils the varnished surface of cages, if they are polished or varnished. If they have no varnished surface, by all means use it. Parraffin is very "smelly," but quite effective, and may have camphor added to it to increase its own effect. (2) Sulphur, being insoluble in water, is quite useless in the bath. Perhaps you are thinking of sulphuretted potash.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1½); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping (1/1); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's 'Colour-feeding" (3½d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each) No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Canary," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London E.C.

This is said to be very effective, though, personally, I have not used it. A teaspoonful in a pint of water is the strength to use—a few drops of essence of quassia in each bath is also very useful. (3) You could certainly put all your Canaries, with Linnet and Greenfinch, in one aviary, provided you do not overcrowd them. In any case you will not get so much song from the cock Canaries, and the Greenfinch will be inclined to be a "bit of a bully" sometimes. (4) This aviary is really only a large cage. Six birds is all it will properly accommodate, but with strict attention to cleanliness you might put in nine, or even a dozen temporarily.

IS IT WORTH WHILE? (Beta).—If the hen is one bred in 1912, I should certainly consider it worth while trying her again next season. Her abnormal laying this season is merely due to the fact that the reproductive organs did not assume full activity, but she has done enough to show that next season there is a probability of her coming into full vigour and making a successful breeder. Do not waste any more of her strength this year. Aim at getting her through a good moult, and in hard vigorous condition for next spring. Then mate her at the proper time with a vigorous young lusty singing cock.

REFUSING COLOUR-FOOD (H.P.).—It is certainly rather strange for all your birds to refuse to touch colour food, even those that were fed last year. Your fears that they are too well fed will not explain their behaviour, as, except in case of quite exceptional idiosyncracy, I have found very few Canaries indeed that do not quite appreciate a well-prepared colour food. Could you get a fancier friend whose birds are taking colour food freely to try a little of your food and see if his birds are as conservative as your own? If so, it is just possible your sample of colour might have been tainted by contact with some other substance, either in transit to you or since. In these days of motor transit this may easily occur, as I myself have discovered quite lately. Try using the colour very weak to begin, say, half a teaspoonful in your heaped teaspoonful of egg-food, and sprinkle it with maw. Cage birds in groups of two to four for feeding. I do not advise you to risk starving the birds totally for 48 hours. It would be very risky unless they had access to egg and colour, or even plaintain or shepherd's purse seed stalks. Whilst trying above means, write again, and say exactly how you mix your colour food—all ingredients, quantities, etc., and how your birds are sorted out for moulting.

TROUBLESOME YOUNG (A.B.A.).—(1) You omit to say whether any of the young are now ill, what symptoms they exhibit when they are ill, or whether any have died. If any have died I would strongly advise you to have a post-mortem on the body in the event of another succumbing, as there is some probability of these casual illnesses being due to a non-virulent type of bacillary disease. If no birds are ill at present, you cannot do better than go on paying scrupulous attention to cleanliness in cages, and all foods and food and water vessels. Once a week add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to each ounce of drinking water. Also give about half a teaspoonful of summer rape per bird every second day, omit the linseed until towards the latter half of moult, and substitute meanwhile a pinch of maw per bird every second day, alternately with the rape. Every third day give a few half ripe plaintain stalks, seed spikes of shepherd's purse, or a few sprays of nice seedy chickweed. With these little amendments in the diet you may either give the colour food every day or omit it every fourth day, as now, if you prefer doing so. Its omission will make no material difference in the result. By the bye, I do not approve of brandy being added to colour-food, but I expect it is too late to alter this now. If any such stimulant is used, it is usually run in combination with saffron, that is given separately in the water. It is very useful to get birds to break away freely with the moult. (2) Bathe the foot for a few minutes daily in a warm solution of extract of Wych Hazel—a teaspoonful of the extract in a teaspoonful of warm water. Dry carefully, and paint over the swollen part with a feather dipped in the extract of full strength, holding bird for a minute or two whilst it dries in. If this does not set the foot right in the course of a fortnight, try the peroxide treatment, which you will see described in Part VI. of "Our Canaries."

BLACK ENAMEL (F.M., New Cross, S.E.).—Sorry I do not know the particular brand you have by you, so cannot say whether it is suitable for enamelling cage fronts. In a general way it may be taken that any hard drying enamel of the Brunswick black type is quite suitable for the job. The only precaution necessary is to thoroughly clean the articles before applying it, so that it will dry smoothly and evenly, and allow it to become quite dry and hard before putting the articles in use. I suspect all these enamels can only be termed "absolutely non-poisonous" after they are applied and dry, then, as far as my experience goes, there is "much of a muchness" about them in this respect, and all may be regarded as quite harmless. If you are in any doubt, so as to prefer a particular kind, then use Brunswick Black, and the result should be quite satisfactory.

PIMPLE ABOVE BEAK (J. Shaw).—Touch just the pimple with tincture of iodine, using a small camel-hair pencil or small feather, such as a Canary's tail or wing feather for the job, to avoid touching the surrounding skin. Repeat the painting four or five times at intervals of four clear days, if necessary.

TREATING FOR PNEUMONIA (Hartz).—You should have said how the bird was affected. If it was really suffering from pneumonia it has probably been "gathered to its fathers" long before this reply can appear. Briefly, you should place the bird in a quite warm temperature, free from all cold draughts or serious fluctuations, offer a diet of bread and milk, maw, a little ripe banana, and scalded rape, and add a stimulant such as 30 drops of brandy to each tablespoonful of its drinking water, keep bowels regular with saline aperients, if necessary, and leave the rest to Nature for a day or two until bird shows signs of improvement—if it does improve. Then you may reduce the stimulant by one-half, add 10 drops of chemical food, and give the mixture for one-half of each day, and during the other half add five drops each of glycerine and oxymel, of squills, and three each of chlorodyne and sweet spirits of nitre to the water. If bird recovers, bring it back to the ordinary diet by easy stages. You will notice this is not a very optimistic reply, but the fact is, when pneumonia really sets in, the chances of recovery are somewhat remote. Warmth is the surest anchor, and a good stimulant may help the bird to win. By the bye, I note that you do not specify a particular bird. If it is that you want the treatment to keep handy, you should get a copy of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL before it is too late, and keep that for reference.

NOT YET MOULTING (H. Garside).—The fact that your birds have not yet started to moult is of no consequence whatever. Thousands of birds have not yet begun, but will get through in good time. It is rather early, in fact, for birds to begin, although quite a large number of early starters are now deep in moult. Have patience a little longer. You may with advantage add 20 drops of whisky and five of syrup of saffron to the water about every third day. It will help them to break away more freely.

LIST OF GREEN-FOOD (W. C.).—It is a pity you listened to the croakings of friends on the subject of green-food, as by doing so you are avoiding two of the best vegetable foods you could have used. It is sheer nonsense to say plantain stalks should not be used because they are "too fattening," as however rich they may be in food material, they are not given in anything like sufficient quantity to do the least harm. By the bye, in the old days the plant had a certain reputation as a cure for obesity. As regards the lettuce, it is nothing less than dense ignorance to say it is full of opium. It contains no more opium than a cabbage leaf. I have known groundsel stigmatised as "poison" for Canaries, yet I have had hens feed young almost exclusively upon it from a day or two old, and bring them up fine bouncing birds, too. Thus the tale might go on to the end. Any of the following green-foods you may use with perfect safety, giving preference to them in order named when in season. It is well, however, to use a little variety:—Chickweed, groundsel (the flower buds), watercress, plantain stalks, dandelion, shepherd's purse, lettuce, chicory, rape seed lings, grass seeds, and the extreme tips of the inner stalks of celery dressed for table use. Most young seedlings and a number of common garden weeds are also relished, but the above-named will go all through the year. You would find the handbook, "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants for Cage Birds," 1s. 2d., post free, from our manager, of great use.

SWELLINGS ON BIRD (Holland James).—It is not possible to dogmatise in cases of this kind without seeing the bird, but I have little doubt the substances are abnormal feather growths. You might touch them slightly once with a moulted wing or tail feather dipped in tincture of iodine. Beyond this let them take their natural course, when they may develop to a certain stage and then drop off. Keep bird in a fairly warm temperature for moulting, free from cold draughts or great fluctuations, and allow it to bathe freely. In addition to its usual seed diet give a morsel of bread and milk slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day for a fortnight. On the alternate days give a morsel of ripe banana and a pinch of maw seed, and add to the drinking water 20 drops of whiskey, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece.

ANXIOUS FOREBODINGS (Perplexed).—You have no cause for anxiety about the hen's temporary absence from the eggs, and have done quite right in removing the cock and allowing the hen to resume incubation. Providing the eggs were duly fertilised in the first instance, the quite temporary chilling at such an early stage will have no effect whatever upon them. You were probably right in your suspicion of the cock. Do not return him to the hen again this season, as it will be too late to try for a second nest. You were much too late in beginning.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

WHO IS THE FATHER? (Light Mule).—Yours is a conundrum that would easily puzzle the whole of our fifty thousand readers. I can only give you an opinion, which I suppose is what you require. It is quite possible to have a clutch of eggs fertilised by both a Finch and a Canary. In your case I should think the third and following eggs, if any, would be the Canary's, but one cannot be certain upon these matters. Anyway, if the brood belonged to me, I should look to have one or two Hybrids in the clutch—that is, of course, providing you are quite certain about the time you introduced the cock Canary. If they thrive and do well, you will not be kept long in doubt respecting their parentage; you will find the young Hybrids very precocious, and quite ready and willing to leave the nest, and the cage, too, if there is a chance, before their companions, and even if they all come away at once, you should have no difficulty in deciding what they are. It is very improbable that they will be all clears.

FEEDING CANARY-HYBRID (J. T.).—I hardly like your staple food; three part rape is too much for a hybrid. Let it be the other way about, three parts canary to one of summer rape. Then make up a mixture of hemp, teazle, linseed, and niger, and give him a spoonful of this three days a week, and a little sunflower seed on the other days. If the weather sets in hot you had better give him only half the quantity. Let him have any of the usual wild foods, just the seeding tops, of groundsel, chickweed, dandelion, shepherd's-purse, etc., and as soon as the plantaine are ripe, a sprig or two right through the moult will assist him wonderfully. (2) As regards his singing, there are degrees of excellence in all birds, and yours may be a nervous bird that does not "open out." I would advise you to try him in fresh positions, leaving him in each a few days. Some birds sing best in a darkened place, others prefer the full light. You can only tell by testing him. As a rule bird-keepers do not complain about the softness of a Canary-Hybrid's notes; they mostly look round for a piece of cotton wool to deaden it. Yours may do better after the moult.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

WHITE RING DOVES (Alba).—The young White Ring Dove with pink eyes is certainly an Albino. Albinos occur occasionally in almost all species of British birds, but not very frequently in the Wild Pigeon. There is a specimen or two in the Natural History Museum at Kensington, but I never remember seeing one alive. Your bird would be an acquisition to anyone who has a large aviary, and is in the habit of buying rare and uncommon productions. If you do not require it, why not advertise it in our advertisement columns?

SIBERIAN GOLDFINCHES (Ambitious). As you are anxious to get a young bird, you had better get in touch with one of the dealers and tell him to advise you when he has his first batch over. You may get a Greypate or two, or a young one scarcely through his moult. If not, pick out a steady one with clean legs and feet, and as soon as you get your bird, put him in a cage with he seed and water vessels inside. Give him plenty of inga seed in a pot by itself, and in another a mixture of canary, linseed, and teazel, a little maw seed and cracked sunflower. As you get him on to the sunflower and mixed seed, gradually reduce the inga until you can include it in the mixture. Withhold hemp until you have had him some time, and be very sparing with grit just a pinch occasionally. A little soaked teazle is good for a change, or if he looks at all mopy. (2) If your Linnet will take soft food, to colour feed him will improve his throat and breast without any detriment to the whites in the flights. If this is his first moult in captivity, and you give him a fair quantity of hemp and sunflower, and plenty of linseed, he may come out darker. (3) If judiciously administered you can feed twenty birds on 1lb. of colour food. Start it early so as to get the blood well charged with colouring matter; you need not give it very strong at first, but gradually work up to full strength. If you do this properly, you can miss a couple of days a week, and still get them good colour.

EYE TROUBLE (Marlborough).—Your young Thrushes are suffering from some complaint that they have managed to catch from each other. Your feeding appears to be satisfactory, but as young birds frequently overeat, particularly when the food given is of pretty good quality, you had better give them just one dose of Glauber salts at once, and another in two or three days. Put two crystals about the size of a pea in an ordinary drinker, fill up with warm water, give it in the evening, and take it away when you feed them in the morning. Keep them without water for a couple of hours before giving the salts, so to be sure they have a good drink before going to roost. Catch each bird and bathe the eye with a wad of cotton wool dipped in boracic lotion made in the following manner: Put a quarter of a teaspoonful of boracic powder in a cup, add a few drops of water to make into a paste, and then half fill with warm water. Bathe all the parts affected thoroughly. This should soothe and relieve them. Do you keep them thoroughly clean, particularly the perches? If you can change these frequently, putting in clean ones that have been thoroughly scrubbed, you should do so.

THIN-SHELLED EGGS (N. Y. Z.).—All birds' eggs have wonderfully thin shells, and one sometimes wonders how they bear the knocking about they get before hatching. Are you sure yours are thinner than usual? Thin-shelled eggs are caused more from a bad state of health than want of grit. You had better give your bird a tonic even if she is not having another clutch of eggs. Put half a teaspoonful of chemical food in an ordinary drinker, in water that has been previously boiled, or it will not mix. You are particularly unfortunate in having the eggs thrown out of the nest by the sitting hens, but some hens are very tiresome, and will do it frequently. A good deep nest pan is the best remedy I know of. You might try it in future. Are you giving your Bullfinches' eggs to different hens to hatch, by simply placing one in a nest here and there? If you are, that is probably the cause of them being thrown out. Some hens are very particular about what they sit on, and will often manage to get out a strong egg, even a Canary's. How they know the difference is somewhat puzzling, but perhaps they know more than we think they do.

(Answered by H. J. FELLOWES).

CORN ON FOOT (J. W. Saywell).—Are you quite sure it really is a hard "corn"? If this is so, then touching it with caustic at intervals may ultimately remove it, or you might try any of the "corn solvents" which are purchasable at a chemist's. If the lump is simply a swelling, it may be reduced by painting with iodine or by soaking the foot in a solution of a half teaspoonful of witch hazel extract to a saucerful of warm water, afterwards painting the swelling with the neat extract. If the swelling is a tumour, only a surgical operation would remove it. The foot trouble may be due to improper feeding, but as you give no particulars as to your methods, I cannot advise more definitely.

LINNETS, LARKS, AND MEALWORMS (F. Sims).—(1) Linnets when fresh caught will have been feeding on freshly ripened seeds of various weeds, and they must be gradually brought on to the dried seeds upon which they will ultimately be kept. Have ready some canary seed, German rape, charlock, and teazel. Heat has been soaked in water for two or three days, the water being poured off and renewed with fresh each day during the process, and give this at first, supplying at the same time a tin of mixed dry seed—canary, teazel, German rape, charlock and linseed; the birds will take a little of this, and they must be gradually weaned from the soaked seeds until they are able to do well on the dry seeds only. You will, of course, be careful to supply plenty of freshly-gathered shepherd's-purse, groundsel, chickweed, or any other seeding weed procurable. (2) For Skylarks get a good insectile mixture such as advertised in our columns, and add to it a few extra "ants' eggs" or dried flies or meat powder, supplying also in a separate vessel some canary seed. A few mealworms daily will be necessary, and any other "creepy" thing you may find for them—small caterpillars, spiders, house flies, etc. (3) Unless you have a large stock of birds it is scarcely worth while to trouble to breed mealworms, as they may now be bought quite cheaply. If you decide to breed them, however, get a receptacle of any kind, a biscuit tin, crock pan or wooden box (the latter is the best of the three). Put in some old sacking some meal of any kind, and some broken dog biscuit. Turn in a pint or so of mealworms, cover the box with a ventilated lid, put it in a dry and warm place, and forget all about it for twelve months. The mealworms will not breed satisfactorily if you are always turning them over searching for the biggest ones, as these are the ones which would soon turn into beetles and lay eggs for perpetuating their species. You will find particulars of the breeding of mealworms, and the feeding of Skylarks and other insectivorous birds, in Nutshell No. 26, and much information as to the proper keeping of Linnets in Nutshell No. 2 (see inset advert. in these columns).

GOLDFINCH WITH INFLAMED STOMACH (J.A.C.).—I think you have been overfeeding and overdosing your bird, and you have left it so long before seeking advice that the inflammation of the bowels indicated may have gone so far as to be incurable. Leave off dosing with castor oil, and feeding on cod liver oil food, and try it with a little milk sop made of bread or biscuit soaked in scalded milk, and squeezed to remove excess of moisture. In the drinking water put either half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's fluid magnesia, or as much sulphate of soda (Glauber's salts) as will cover a sixpenny-piece, and alternate this medicated water with plain water two days out of three for a fortnight. If there is then any improvement manifest, give the medicated water only once a week. For seed, keep it as far as possible on freshly-gathered wild seeds. You would do well to secure one of the few remaining copies of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL for 1913, in which inflammation and other diseases are fully explained, and remedies given.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S

ARE THEY A PAIR? (L.N.).—From your remark, "has turned pale blue," I think you have a true pair. When out of breeding condition the ceres of both sexes are blue, that of the male being usually the darker, but when in full breeding condition the cere of the female is dark brown. If you do not recollect the colour of the cere of the supposed hen, you will have to wait a little, i.e., till the birds are in breeding condition again to settle the matter. Of course, I have only your letter to go by, but I gather you have a true pair.

SPECTACLE THRUSH (W.A.G.).—The two names you use refer to the same bird—Trochalopterum canorum. He has the reputation of being a fine songster, but the song capacity of imported individuals varies considerably. As regards food, a good insectile mixture and a few live insects. The bird would do well enough in the porch from May to October, but during the other months it should spend most of its time indoors.

AILING BUDGERIGAR (W.G.V.).—Continue to foment or soak in hot water (not hot enough to cause discomfort), and dry with a soft cloth. If the sores are hard and the skin unbroken, then paint with tincture of iodine, but if soft and containing pus, then you must lance the sores as soon as they appear fully developed and exude the pus by gentle pressure, well clean it with warm water, and anoint with a little healing ointment. Put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the bird's drinking water till full relief has been given, then only as required, to keep the bowels moving freely, but not watery loose. Add half a teaspoonful of bynogloss plaster to the drinking water when not giving the magnesia. Your diet is satisfactory.

TALKING MYNAH (F.T.H.).—(1) The Larger Hill Mynah makes the better talker. The plumage is glistening purplish-black with reflections of varying hues; the wattle, which are rich dark yellow, commence below the eye, forming a rather large lappet behind the ear, and then bend upward in a narrow stripe to the top of the head; bill, orange-yellow. (2) From about 60s. upwards, according to talent.

(3) This is variable, but somewhere about 35s. or a little more; no special time—watch our advert. columns, or insert a wanted advert. yourself. (4) I should get a cock, if possible. (5) They are fairly hardy when once acclimatised, but if kept out of doors, must have a snug shelter to which they can retire at night. (6) Insectile mixture, ripe fruit and live insects. (7) They are large eaters, and their rage needs constant attention to keep it sweet. (8) I am not aware of this species having bred in captivity, but, given suitable accommodation, see no reason why success should not be ultimately attained.

We are afraid some of Mr. Page's answers have miscarried in the post.—Editor.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

W. F. B. Leo.—Hen bird. Advanced fatty degeneration of the liver. No cure; the liver tissue becomes converted into fat, a structural alteration which is irreparable.

"Toddie."—Pneumonia; the bird was probably not acclimatised.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

C. MARTIN.—Thanks for the excellent photograph, which we will reproduce in the near future.

A.E.—You must remember that we have no power to compel a society to put on any special class or classes. We accept the classification societies think most likely to pay in their own particular districts. However, we will certainly see if anything can be done in the direction you specify.

A. J. REA.—We most decidedly value the support of every section of the Fancy, but we do not see how we can give one section preferential treatment over all the others.

W. BAXBY.—We apologise for referring to you as a "Sheffield Blade," which was due to all the eight family postcards being headed "Dronfield, Sheffield," and our own lamentable ignorance of the exact location of that doubtless lovely spot. We are not aware that we accused you of breaking any rule; if you are not careful, however, we shall certainly have to accuse you of having no sense of humour.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Paring, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Beswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/-, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1½.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Published in 8 Monthly Parts at 6d. each, post free 7d. Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a modern Hybrid. The practical and comprehensive work for which all Hybrid breeders have been waiting.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

Preserving Wasp Grub for Winter Use.

Sir, Would some reader be so kind as to tell me how to preserve wasp grub, so that it will keep during winter?

The Testimonial to Mr. W. B. Cobb, of Leeds.

Sir, I have pleasure in announcing the receipt of subscriptions amounting to four pounds nine shillings. Mr. J. F. Dewar, 2, St. Patrick's Square, has kindly offered to receive subscriptions in Edinburgh, and Mr. T. C. Crawhall (121, St. Georges Terrace, Jesmond), will be pleased to do the same in Newcastle. Further subscriptions will be welcomed, and acknowledged by

The Future of the Annfield Plain F. and F. C.B.S.

Sir, I am pleased to inform you that my last appeal has proved successful. We had at the last meeting a grand turn out of 20 members, looking not at all bad after a well-earned rest. It would indeed have been a great pity to have a society like this go to the wall, after holding such a first-class show (considering it was our first venture). It was decided to run another open show on January 3. Fanciers and members, please note that we crave once more your esteemed support. Election of officers followed: President, A. L. Atherley Jones, K.C., M.P.; vice president, re-elected, with Mr. W. Shields and Mr. Beamnont; chairman, Mr. J. Elliott; vice chairman, Mr. R. Bowes; treasurer, Mr. G. Hankey. The secretaryship was taken up by Mr. M. Archer, 25, Williams Street, Craghead. Balance-sheet read and found satisfactory. Two new members enrolled, Messrs. J. Teasdale and J. Mason. Now, ye members, buck up and support your new secretary, who is indeed a keen and hard-working fancier. He walks five miles to every meeting, and thinks nothing about it. Follow this good example, and put your heart and soul into the work. For myself, I shall do all in my power to help our secretary. Next meeting, August 23; subs., due, 2s. 6d. J. W. Christon.

Notes from a Foreign Bird Aviary.

Some Interesting Items Concerning Budgerigars.

Sir,—I should be glad to know if it is a usual thing with Budgerigars to have both colours in one nest. I have both yellow and green birds flying loose in an outdoor aviary, with a good many other birds, and they mate indifferently. Awhile ago I had in one nest (yellow hen) only two hatched, one yellow, one green. Now, in another husk (green hen) I have six birds, four green, two yellow. I was under the impression that when green and yellow birds mated together, the nestlings reverted to the original green, but this is evidently not always the case. My yellow hen was mated with the yellow cock. Then a quarrel ensued, and the six eggs were thrown out, and the green cock taken into favour. She is now on six more eggs, which may also turn out varied. I have had very little trouble with Budgerigars and small birds so far, in five years' experience with an outdoor aviary, and a very mixed series from Cockatiels down to Avadavats. I have only had about two cases which I could fairly lay to the Budgerigars—both of these were Canaries—though I have certainly seen a young Budgie take up a little bird by the wing and shake it, apparently in rough play, but no harm was done.

My Cordon Bleus and Waxbills make nests from time to time, but I have never had any young hatched, the last time the Waxbills unfortunately deserted about two days off hatching. The eggs in this case were all fertile, and the birds well developed, which was very disappointing. Just now I have a Fire Finch-Waxbill alliance, in a beautifully made round nest of grasses, but whether any results will follow remains to be seen. It is rather amusing to see what a huge conglomeration of material these tiny things will gather together, while some of the bigger birds are content with very little preparation. The breeding results seem to be in inverse ratio to the trouble expended on the nest. I always read Cage Birds with much interest.

E. M. Burlingham.

[The Yellows are "sports" from greens, and always more or less liable to appear amongst the progeny.—Editor.]

How to Keep Black Beetles.

Sir,—I see that a reader is asking how to keep black beetles. My advice is to get an old sack and sprinkle in between the folds a portion of dust from any sort of meal, also sprinkle a little porter (beer) over it about every other day. The sack should be folded loose so they can get between the folds.

HOW TO LIVEN UP (!) OUR SHOWS.

A few classes for exhibitors would, suggests our artist, make things decidedly lively. The lanky ones would go into the class for "Yorkshire type," and those of more corpulent build could compete as "Norwich," while, of course, there would be a "Foreign" class. He thinks (and we quite agree) that the greatest attraction of all, however, would be a class for "matched pairs"!

Canaries and Mules in the Same Clutch of Eggs.

Sir.—I have a hen Canary at present with a nest of four young, three of them Canaries and one a Goldie Mule. The Goldfinch had been only one day with hen before she laid her first egg. J. A. Corteen.

Precocious Young Canaries

Sir,—In answer to Mr. G. Stubbs I had one hatched on the 12 July, which left the nest to-day (July 27). It was not frightened out, as I was sitting alone at the far end of room when it left, and it can hop from the bottom of the cage to the spar. As there was only this one in the nest, it has been well fed, though it never got any egg food. The hen brought up a previous nest of three on seed and lettuce, and I offered nothing else for this one. I cannot say if it will sing at 18 days, as I cannot tell a cock from a hen till I hear them sing. They are Norwich.

T. Cryan (Glasgow).

Hybrids Between the Redpoll and the Twite.

Sir,—It may interest readers of Cage Birds to know that I have five young Hybrids between cock Lesser Redpoll and hen Twite. They are cage bred. The hen built her nest in an ordinary Norwich wooden nest-box. After laying her first egg, she missed three days, then laid four consecutive days. All five eggs proved fertile. After the hen Twite had sat on the eggs for one week, I transferred the eggs to two Norwich Canaries. The young are five days' old to-day (Monday). I am hoping to rear them. Success to Cage Birds. Geo. H. Ball.

A "Cock" Redpoll Lays Eggs and Breeds Hybrids with a Linnet.

Sir.—We thought the following might interest some of our fellow readers and fanciers. We possess a Redpoll which has won a few honours as a "cock" and we did not know it was a hen until this breeding season. We paired to a Norwich hen, when to our surprise it took to the nest, so we took the Canary hen away and left the Redpoll alone. She laid six eggs and sat them for the full time. We then put a cock Linnet with her, and she laid five more eggs. To-day (July 27) she has hatched two young ones. We would like to know if Hybrids off these parents are rare or not, as we have looked through a few books on Mules and Hybrids, but cannot trace any others like these.

Kemp and Govier.

Two Cuckoo's Eggs in a Yellowhammer's Nest.

Sir,—It has come to my knowledge where two Cuckoo's eggs were found in a Yellowhammer's nest this season; the eggs of the Yellowhammer were found on the ground under the nest, but how they were thrown out I have not been able to ascertain. Both these eggs of the Cuckoo were hatched out, and the young Cuckoos were seen at the age of about a week. When my friend next went to the nest, there was only one young Cuckoo in the nest; the other was dead upon the ground under the nest, so there is not the least doubt it was a case of murder—the living Cuckoo had thrown the other one overboard, so that it could get all the support of its foster parents, and as everyone knows, they can take some support, for they are always hungry. Only once in my life have I tried the experiment of raising Cuckoos, and never more do I attempt the task, for I never got a minute's peace long after they could do for them elves. They only wanted to hear me about before they began crying to be fed

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

LEEDS.

Weekly Linnet singing contest for quality held at Skinner's Arms, Burlingthorpe Lane, July 27; 16 sang for three prizes given by Mr. A. Fishwick. Some very good singing was heard. 1, 3, Sellers; 2, King. Judges, J. Granger, C. Clayton.—T. C. Summers, Hon. Sec.

Weekly contest for quality singing, held at Prince Albert Hotel, Newtown, July 27, 12 birds sang: 1, Binner; 2, Chippendale; 3, Wood. Judges, Messrs. C. Lorriman and P. Maddison.—H. Brown, Hon. Sec.

Usual weekly contest for quality Linnet singing, held at the Old Bird House, King's Head, Shannon St., July 27. 16 birds sang for three good prizes: 1, Bland; 2, Farrar; 3, Ward. Judges, Cooper, Naylor, W. Naylor, Hon. Sec.

KIPPAX.

Members' sing, held July 26, at Headquarters, Commercial Hotel, with a poor entry, owing no doubt to an early moult overtaking many birds: 1, Tomlin; 2, Potter. Members' special sing, Aug. 2, when all members must be straight on books to compete for prizes. First pair lung 3.15.—A. Tomlin, Sec.

BLACKBURN.

Linnet contest was held at Empire Hotel, Bolton Road, Blackburn, for quality, 17 birds entered, and there was very good singing. 1, Smedley; 2, 3, Holcroft; 4, Smedley; 5, Hayhurst; 6, Dobson; 7, Pender. After the contest we had a good evening.—T. Hayhurst, Sec.

LEADGATE.

Next sing, Golden Lion Inn, August 2.—W. Atkinson.

CASTLEFORD.

Weekly contest, held July 26; 20 birds entered for three good prizes. 1, Nelson, 73; 2, Sweeting, 64; 3, Parnell, 64. Also July 27, 12 birds entered for three good prizes given by Mr. L. Parker. 1, 3, Nelson; 2, Kirk. Open sing, August 2, everybody will be welcome, first pair at 3 prompt.—Walter Dobson, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Linnet singing contest, held British Oak, Attercliffe, Sheffield, July 26. Mr. Austin gave three special prizes. Rodgers, 1, 76 secs.; Thompson, 2, 48 secs.; Woodcock, 3, 40 secs. Also July 27, Mr. Austin gave three special prizes, 12 birds entered: 1, Watson, 81 secs.; 2, Newton, 79; Woodcock, 3, 77. Linnet fanciers wishing to join the Linnet Society can do so by applying to the landlord, Mr. Austin. Contests, Aug. 2, 3, 4. First pair lung at 1 on Monday.—A. Thompson, Sec.

The Lancashire & the Way it Has Been Judged.

Friend "Teddy," of Glossop, Indulges in Another Little Grumble.

Sir,—I see we are not to have a show at Rochdale this year. Well, after the way the Lancashire and Lizard classes were muddled last year, I think it about time they shut the shop up. I have been expecting it for some time. I have seen some judging in my time, but that show beat the lot. At Manchester the judge put buff Plainhead down as not fit to show, saying it was not a Lancashire at all. At Rochdale the judge put it first and made it the champion. Now both of these judges are supposed to be specialists on the Lancashire—which is right? Which should the breeders follow. What was Mr. W. Kay's yellow Plainhead vhc for at Rochdale? The bird was in fine form. This bird was first at Manchester, second at Sheffield, first at Nottingham, first at L.C.B.A., and first at the Palace. Although he was second at Sheffield, the winner was a fine young bird and will make him go for all he is worth in the coming show season. I don't envy Mr. Garner his job at Manchester if they meet. I am only a novice with the Lancashire, never having won a first prize, so will some of the big winners tell me how it was the bird was only vhc at Rochdale? I may say I was pleased the way Mr. Robson judged the London shows, but could not understand him putting Mr. Ollerenshaw's broken-cap gold second. The bird left Glossop very fit and came back the same; he was the best broken-cap gold out last season. Also why was Mr. Fitton's buff Plainhead out of the money at the Palace? The bird could easily have been first or second. Still, taking things all round, I think he did very well. I hope all Lancashire and Lizard exhibitors will give our old friend, John Garner, something to do at Manchester. Lancashire fanciers have said that I have done the Lancashire a lot of harm in the past not the Lancashire, however, say the mongrel. Ever since the Rochdale breeders put Crest into the Lancashire, the breed has been going down, so fanciers will see what they have done for themselves—no show after all these years. Everybody looks forward to Rochdale Show. Being in company with the oldest Crest breeder in England at the last Manchester Show, I asked him which was the best Lancashire, the old or the new, to cross with the Crest. He said the old sort, the bird that stood well up, coppy all in front, not rough behind, nice spoon back, not a spread or sprayed coppy, but a well packed front, not over the beak, nicely drawn in at the back of the skull (not a round head; it should be long and flat). Another well-known champion Crest breeder wanted to buy a ticked buff Plainhead that was shown, for Crest breeding. This bird was a Lancashire all over, his owner would not sell. How is it these well-known breeders want the pure Lancashires when there are so many big rough "Fat Heads" about? The Crest breeders want birds with big heads; then why not buy the bird with Crest in it? I asked them that; no, they did not want that, they wanted to know what sort of Crest was in. One said he wanted a pure one to start with, then he would know what he was doing. Judging from what I have seen at shows I don't think Crest breeders want much Lancashire to improve their Crests. I think they ought to be content and leave the Lancashire alone for a bit and let it get going again. I know a lot of breeders who are trying to get it back into its old form. If judges will help those of us who are trying to breed a good Lancashire I will do all I can for the old bird. Let them judge to the standard as near as they can, and I for one shall not grumble more.

E. Fuller (Glossop).

"Twin" Mules This Time!

Two Goldie-Canaries in One Egg.

Sir,—I put a hen Canary and cock Goldfinch together and they paired up. The hen Canary had three eggs, and she has brought four young birds out of these three eggs. The first was hatched on Friday, July 18, one on Saturday, 19, and two on Sunday, July 20. Do you know of anybody who has had a similar experience.

G. Mountain.

[We do not remember to have heard of "twin" Mules before.—Editor.]

A Cage Not Necessarily a "Bad Place" After All.

Sir,—So much trouble seems to have been taken lately in certain directions to prove cage-bird keeping is one of the more refined cruelties, that I thought the following might be of interest, as they certainly go to prove the contrary. In my own experience I have had several birds escape and return to their cages and, moreover, seem glad to get back. These include, Linnets, Redpolls, Waxbills, and Bullies. The Linnet was away a month before returning to his "prison"! This happened during 1912. Recently a Bullie hen escaped and showed no inclination to leave the place, but entered her cage again after a half-hour of freedom. Then, again, the extraordinary period some live in cages over the ordinary span of a wild bird's life, must surely prove that cage life is not what some would try and make out. Take a case in point: Early in the present year I had occasion to visit Evesham, and in one of the rooms of my hotel was a Goldfinch cock which made quite a fuss of all visitors that took notice of him, so much so that I made one or two enquiries about him and found he had been the pet of the place for fifteen years! How old he was when they first had him the present owners did not know. Surely this, together with the striking testimony of many more of your readers, must prove that even the birds themselves do not find that "awful cage" such a bad place after all.

Geo. S. Woodcock.

A Visit to a Deal Fancier.

Sir,—On the occasion of our annual "beano" we took the opportunity of calling on our esteemed friend and member of the Kent County C.B.A., Mr. G. Johnson, of Deal, whose Yorkshires have graced the show bench in this and other counties now for some years with a large percentage of success. It was a great pleasure to find one of the best appointed bird rooms in Kent, and we saw about fifty Yorkies, in all, including, I think, 35 youngsters. Many of these will be heard of later. Mr. J. takes but two nests from each pair, and that accounts for our visit occurring at about the worst possible time, for a few hens were "romping" for nest and young were in moult. The clear yellow cock which you depicted in Cage Birds Annual; and which has taken honours at Canterbury, Dover, etc., is looking well. I am sure he will be ready before long for many a hard fight—most fortunate was its owner in getting four yellows in one nest from this bird and a very nice buff hen. This hen, I think, was bred from double yellows. A clear yellow (which will be sure to make its mark), two ticked yellows, and a saddle mark (a hen, I think) make what I call a good nest. Time will not permit of me dwelling on the other pairs. Amongst the valuable trophies seen was a solid silver cup, won outright at the last Deal show.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

appeals to all of us. A few strokes of the pen on the form found on page 51 this week will make an interesting booklet yours free of all cost. Do it now!

Cordon Bleus Nesting in a Cage.

Sir,—My Cordon Bleus have built a nest entirely of grass, about the size of a cocoa nut. Would you tell me if it is at all unusual for this to happen in a cage? Nothing has come yet except one egg they have thrown out and it was without shell. They are both young birds imported last winter.

M. E. K.

[It is not very unusual for this species to build a nest, but it has proved an exceptionally difficult task to get young Cordon Bleus reared in captivity.—Editor.]

Novice Classes and Open Shows.

Sir,—Mr. F. W. Laidlow says if I look at the catalogue of Blaydon open show I will see seventeen novice birds in two classes. Perhaps they are Scotch Fancy classes; you should have mentioned the classes. I remember a year or two ago a few novices wrote to Blaydon for schedules, but never got any reply. Where is the encouragement for novices to join the Northern Norwich Club, when you say "one class for novices and six for champions"? The one class for the novices has to keep up the six champions, and all the club specials go to the champions. You say that there are scarcely any novices in your club, including yourself; I am surprised at you, being secretary, with only one novice class. You expect to get more novices, too! You remember a society called Gateshead. They had a very unlucky time at their annual show. I believe, if I am not mistaken, you are one of the committee. Why is Gateshead putting on novice classes, very nearly every other class? I think Gateshead Society must have good faith in them filling, or else they would not put them on under present conditions. Just look in the Fancy papers, and see for yourselves. In the first place, look at the novice classes: July 18, Portsmouth and Southern C.B.S. Nest Feather Show. Then turn your attention to Newcastle-upon-Tyne Nest Feather Show, with no novices classes and compare the difference. There are other shows in the same way, but look for yourselves. Just fancy, a Newcastle Yorkshire judge cannot be beaten in the champions in Newcastle Nest Feather Show, and they expect novices to enter in the same class. Why don't they put novice classes in? They lose nothing on the sliding scale, and they would see the novices flock in to the show, and there would be a good entry, and the gentleman who takes the money would not have time to sleep. Mr. Laidlow knows that the novices are the backbone of all societies, and help to pay the professional classes. Why don't they put all classes on a sliding scale, and give the novices back the money they pay in each class? No, this would not do for the champions. The novice classes that were put on: Newcastle, York., 1909, 37 in a class, and 21; 1910, 25; Norwich, 1911 32, and 18; Yorks., 36 and 23; Border, 28. Gateshead, Norwich, 1911, 28; Yorks. 31, and 21; Border, 24; Linnets, 20. May I ask Mr. Laidlow how many shows he supported? I supported North Shields, Wallsend, Gateshead, and others, and I did well in them, but I never took any money from them; I gave it to them back excepting 1s. 6d., which was sent to me, and if the committee had been honourable to me I would not have had that. In the society I formed for novices, they did not turn up regularly as I expected. It would have been much better for me and them, if they were going to their society regularly at every meeting. They would score at every try. When the classes are made up the novices are never there; they are in the majority, not in the minority, you know that. I challenge any champion on this subject. I hope I have satisfied Mr. Laidlow; but I have not finished with this subject. They will be looking for your paper on Friday morning for this answer, as it is very important to secretaries.

THE MASTER SINGER OF THE CANARY TRIBE

By J. TOMLINSON

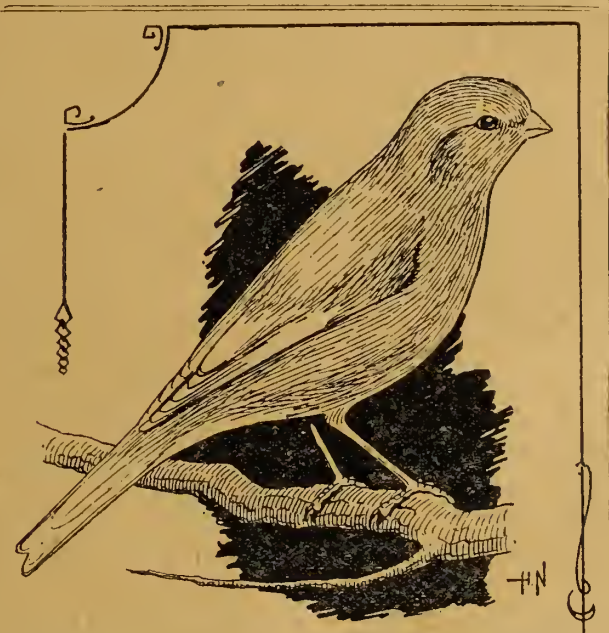
How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

ANOTHER way to breed with two hens and one cock is to run him with one hen until about noon, then place him with the other hen until noon the next day; and so on until both have laid. Should one lay and begin to sit before the other, then leave him with the latter hen until she has also laid her third egg. Where one cock has been paired with two or more hens in this way he should afterwards be taken entirely out of hearing of his hens in the breeding room.

One of the causes of hens deserting their young is the cock being left in the same room. His song has a detrimental effect on them at this period, and they evince a desire to go to nest again by neglecting to feed the offspring. I have known cases where the hen has fed and brooded them well in the day time, then neglected to brood them at night, consequently the next morning the chicks have been dead. Others have fed and brooded well up to a certain period, then without any warning (i.e., any outward sign that she is failing in her duties) has abandoned them altogether. She desires to go to nest again, often her eggs are advancing, and the cock should be put with her again. The hen tells you as plainly as possible, by her actions in trying to get a view of the cock and in a shrill voice answering his calls, that he is the cause of those youngsters being deserted.



The Best of All the Methods.

When the cock is left with the hen when she is sitting and rearing the young, his singing will not have the least effect on her. This method I have found the smoothest and the simplest of all the various methods. When both parents are feeding, the chicks will grow more quickly, attaining a larger size, and are ready to leave the nest sooner than if the hen had sole charge. You have allowed the hen her choice of two nest pans; leave the spare one in its position, and should the hen wish to lay again before the youngsters can feed themselves, the cock will continue to feed them while the hen is busy incubating her next clutch of eggs.

This last method of breeding may be found, of course, to have its "ifs" and "buts." The presence of the cock in the breeding cage will make some hens indolent; they will sit over or on the youngsters, and take all the food from the cocks, without troubling to give their chicks any. This may be due to the hen having previously had sole charge, and the remedy is to leave the business to her, and take the cock not only out of the cage but out of the room. There is no accounting for the peculiar temperament of some hens; and they have to be humoured.

It may be thought that I have painted a black picture, and that Roller Canary breeding is very difficult. Such is not the case, however. I have given you candidly both sides of the question. It is probable that no difficulty will arise (in fact, it appears to be the new beginner who usually breeds the most young birds). Yet should it do so, you will not be groping, as it were, in the dark, for I have pointed out the best way to combat every obstacle that is likely to be met with in pairing the birds.

I have remarked that the cock should be removed in some instances when the hen has laid her third egg. This may be an opportune time to explain the why and the wherefore. No doubt you will have heard that with one act of copulation a hen's whole clutch of eggs can be fertilized, but we have no means of ascertaining whether they actually will be, although the cock may show every outward sign of having accomplished this. As a safeguard, it is usual to either let the couple remain together, or to introduce the cock for a short period, or for half a day as the case may be, according to the method of breeding you have adopted, until the evening of the third day. In this way you provide every possible opportunity for the eggs to become fertilized.

A GOOD YOUNG NORWICH PLAINHEAD.

This very promising Clear Yellow Norwich was exhibited by Mr. A. E. Leech at the recent Nest Feather Show of the Poplar C.B.A., where it was awarded a first prize.

Dealing with the first three Eggs.

In all the various methods employed in breeding, the first three eggs should be removed from the nest as soon as it is convenient on the day they are laid, and placed on a little bran, or on some other soft material that is not likely to puncture the shell. A dummy egg (i.e., one of earthenware, coloured to resemble the Canary's natural egg) should be placed in the nest as each egg is removed. The natural eggs should be turned over once each day to prevent the yolk settling to one side. When they are returned to the nest again the hen will see to this duty. Use a teaspoon to remove the eggs from, or replace them into, the nest. Some writers do not advise putting more than one dummy egg in the nest. I have tried both ways, and prefer to substitute a dummy egg for every natural egg removed, i.e., three in all, because I have found a few hens that would not at first take kindly to her own three eggs when returned, after she had been sitting only one dummy egg for two days.

Replacing Eggs and "Polishing Up" the Nest.

In the evening of the day when the third egg is laid (or, if more convenient, on the morning of the fourth egg being laid) remove the nest pan and take out the dummy eggs. It should be noticed whether the hen has made a suitable nest, as some will fill the nest pan, and leave just a small hole down one side of the pan, or may be in the centre. Neither of these nests are at all suitable (although, as the hens have built them, perhaps you will think that they should know). Take all the nesting material out of the nestpan, and make her a fresh nest, pressing the charpie, or moss, firmly in and around the sides of the nestpan; and then replace the three natural eggs.

Some hens will make numerous nests and pull them all to pieces again before laying their first eggs, and it will sometimes be found that when the first egg does appear there is no proper nest to receive it. Young hens as a rule are addicted to this habit; the danger lies in the egg being damaged when coming into contact with the bare bottom of the pan. Nest-pan linings made to the shape of the nestpan, can be purchased. They are of Swansdown, or thick felt. I like the latter kind, as less nesting material is required when these are used. These linings should be fastened inside the pan with a little glue, or flour paste, and should be already fitted into the nestpans when they are first hung in the breeding cage.

Giving the Young Equal Chances.

The object of removing the first three eggs from the nest on the days they are laid is that the young birds will all hatch out at or about the same time; this gives them an equal chance of being reared. Some hens will begin to sit as soon as the first egg is laid, and as it is usual for them to lay four or five eggs (sometimes more), were not the first three eggs removed the young birds would be hatching on different days. Then the oldest, being the largest and the strongest bird, would lift its head the highest at feeding time and get the largest proportion of the food, and the rest would often "go to the wall."

Reverting to the breeding cages, the pattern and the size of these have to depend in many cases on the amount of space available. The Roller is not such a large bodied bird as some of the other varieties of Canary, so will not require a cage so large. I have used all the various types of breeding cages, and from experience favour the two-compartment and the four-compartment kinds. I have not described the latter, so will give a description of those I am now using, as I have found them satisfactory in every way.

PLYMOUTH W.C.O.S.

Third and final N.F. show for 1913 held July 23. The entry was not quite so good as at previous shows, but well up to average for the time of year. About 60 were staged, Yorks. showing up well in numbers and quality; Cresto, however, being very disappointing. Mr. Pope judged Yorks and Nor., Mr. Finch Crests and Cinnamons, and Mr. Pridham the remainder. Cups for most points in three shows were won as follows:—Yorks., C. Javell; Nor., W. Spillman; Crests, J. Bavage; Cinn., A. B. Brown; Mules and Brit., Wills; Nov., W. Hutchings. YORKS YELL. (7): 1, 4, c, Mellows; 2, 3, Jewell; vhc, hc, Craven. CARDIFF C.B.S.

Annual Y.B. show, held at Naish Royal Stores, July 23. Mr. J. H. Payne, Gloucester, judged, his awards being well received. The Norwich, Yorks., and Border sections were good in quality and numbers considering that many of our members have had so much bad luck this season. Mr. A. Maggs won special for best Canary with a clinking marked buff Norwich, a bird of wonderful type and quality.

BRAMLEY O.S.

Second F.F. show held July 26 at Carnival committee rooms, Bramley. Competition was very keen in Yorks. Mr. Mitchell again gained most points (18). Norwich came up poorly owing to bad breeding results. The British class again was strong. Mr. Palmer took special for most points in class. 39 birds faced the judge, Mr. A. Bottomley; his awards were as follows:

LEIGH C.B.S.

Annual N.F. Show held Headquarters, Railway Hotel, Leigh, July 19 and 20, when some very good birds were put down, to be judged by Mr. A. Wellings, Prescott, whose awards gave every satisfaction. Norwich and Yorks. were very good, and in keen competition. The entries totalled 63, a very good muster considering the bad breeding season most of our members have experienced. The open Linnet class was knocked off for this show only, owing to there being so many singing contests on, but we have one on for our November Old Bird Show. Principal cup points scorers, J. Lomas, 21; H. Taylor, 20; Gaskell Bros., 15; and W. Hulme, 13. Mr. Bailey's special for best young Norwich, bred by a member, was won by T. Wilkinson, with a Buff Norwich.

COVENTRY GODIVA C.B.S.

Very successful young stock show held July 19, at the Plough Hotel, Queen Victoria-road, when upwards of 120 birds were staged. Quality was far above the average, many birds standing out in quality, size and shape, and the show was voted the finest young stock show held in Coventry for some years. The attendance, considering other attractions, was very good, and the competition in several classes very keen. Mr. J. Symonds judged, and his awards met with entire satisfaction.

SOUTH SHIELDS C.B.S.

Annual young bird show held Cyprus Hotel, one of the nicest rooms we have seen for some time. In common with several other Northern districts, the Shields fanciers have not been favoured in breeding results, yet a fairly good entry of 56 turned up. Quality was of a high standard. Norwich and Yorkshire classes especially containing several birds of great promise. British were nice, the Linnet class taking pride of place for quality. The society is well favoured in the matter of officials, all keen fanciers, composed of the chairman, Mr. W. Thompson; vice-chair, J. W. Watson; treasurer, W. Duke, assistant secretary, R. Addison; and Messrs. T. Winter, R. Winter, J. Richardson, T. Parker, A. Addison, and W. Howden as committee. The genial and obliging sec., Mr. W. L. Smith, had everything in grand order. The show was well patronised, and everything points to its being a financial success. Mr. W. Reid, Sunderland, judged.

TORBAY O.S. (Paignton).

Torquay fanciers' summer show held Thursday, July 17, in Drill Hall, Market-street, Torquay. Entries were stronger than usual, and a new-comer in Mr. Blower showed a couple of smart Yorks., his cl. yell. unifigh being of grand length, with splendid tail and flights. Crests as usual provided an easy win for Mr. Williams, his 3rd prize bird being the most promising, but had lost a lot of feather, probably by being plucked in the flight cage. Norwich saw Mr. Fox's old winners again on top, while a new exhibitor in Mr. Robbins came very near winning. The British class was grand, the winner being a large bold-headed Chaffinch, a Bullie second, and a winning Greenie 3rd. Mr. J. N. Jeffery judged satisfactorily.

NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT (Permanent) O.S.

F.F. show, July 19. Mr. H. Handley judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. Very nice show of Crest and Crest-breds. Two very fine Crest-breds staged by Mr. J. Williamson and Mr. J. Wood. Mr. Hayter also staged some grand Mules and Hybrids, Canary Bullfe and Linnet Bullfe being admired by most visitors. The Norwich classes were rather a poor lot, only three birds staged. British turned up very well.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting held July 19 at Fawcett Street Cafe; Mr. Farrer presided over good attendance. Vote of thanks given to Mr. J. Clark for his kindness in judging our two N.F. shows. A silver medal was presented to Mr. Smith for most points gained over both N.F. shows; the lucky member suitably responded, after which the prize money was paid out. In consequence of the members deciding to put on (at our open show) the classes required by Specialist Clubs, the following patronages have been granted to us, viz., Northern Lizard Club, Northern Yorks C.C., Northern Nor. P.C., Northern Bord. and S.F.C., and Northern Brit., Mule and For. B.C. Sec. was instructed to write to the few members who have not yet paid sub. for 1913. READING AND DIST. C.B.S

An entry of 80 birds, amongst which quality generally predominated, was brought together in the Palmer Hall, Reading, on July 16. Notwithstanding that some of the members have had a poor breeding season. The display was a credit to the society, and a more enthusiastic body of fanciers it would be difficult to find. In Mr. W. H. Pyke the membership have a secretary who puts in whole-hearted and splendid work. He is assisted generously by his committee, and he deserves it. Mr. T. Gates won sp for best in champion section with a bonny lightly variegated buff Norwich, grand in type, and full of quality, closely pressed by a rattling yellow Yorks put down by Mr. F. Roser. Mr. S. Pike won sp best Crest or C.B. Amateur special for best, Mr. F. Frewin, with a really fine buff Norwich; novice spl, Mr. Geo. Munday, with a beautiful Plainhead. The spls for Brit. and For. were both won by Mr. G. H. Acton, who very kindly sent a grand collection of foreign birds, which lent special interest to the show. One and all expressed admiration of Mr. Acton's splendid collection. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

The saying, "No specials, no entries," was disproved at the above society's show, held at Sydenham Hotel, July 19. No special application had been made for specials, three being sent and won respectively by Messrs. Kidner (best Yorks) and Mr. Raby (best Brit. and best Mule). Over 70 birds were staged, making in all, for the two shows, 140 birds—another record. Increased attendance by the public has well rewarded the committee in their effort to make this society popular. Great credit is due to the show stewards, Messrs. Constable, Kidner, Hughes, Adcock, and Burke, who had everything nicely arranged in time for Mr. G. H. Russell, the judge, whose awards gave the greatest satisfaction. Yorkshires were again a fine show. Mr. Kidner's winning Yellow was a gem of the first water. The Cup Competition has now advanced two more stages, leaving the competition more than keen for the young stock show in October and members' winter show. Total points at both shows:—Mr. Burke, 34, winner of hand-painted medal; Kidner, 29; Adcock, 14; Andrews, 17; Clay, 12; Messrs. Hughes and Constable, 3 each; Murray, 1. NOV. CUP—Bayliss, 25 (winner of President's spl); Swindon, 18; Field, 17; Hall, 10; Rees, 9; Matthews, 6; Luckman, 1. BRIT., MULE AND HYB. CUP—Raby, 27 (winner of H. NORTHERN NORWICH P.C.

Meeting held July 16, Mr. Topping chair. Correspondence was read from Blaydon and from Sunderland re patronage. Decided to grant patronage to them (failing a reply from Darlington if their classes were suitable. Sunderland sec. having since written that they are increasing their Norwich classes to five more than last year, we have granted patronage to their open show on Jan. 16 and 17. Next meeting Aug. 14, and a debate on colour-feeding, opened by Mr. W. Cuny. Members please attend and spend another pleasant evening. In connection with the meeting a table show was held, but as our members' birds were either too young or too old, we could only have two classes instead of three, as advertised—one clear, one marked—but what did turn out were exceptionally good, and most fanciers present were of the opinion it was the best lot of young Norwich they had seen out this season. Mr. R. W. Smith judged, and gave entire satisfaction, and a hearty vote of thanks was given him. Mr. Smith kindly replied, and said he was always willing to do what he could to help the club on to success. CLEARS: 1, Holden; 2, hc, Laidlow; 3, vhc, Wyndham; c, Cuny. MARKED: 1, vhc, Topping; 2, 3, Holden; hc, c, Cuny.—F. W. Laidlow, Sec.

RICHMOND AND DIST. C.B.S.

F.F. show, The Imperial, Richmond, July 16. There was an excellent number of entries, and some fine birds were shown, and judging by the amount of interest taken, the society appears to have every prospect of a successful future. Local interest is needed to make it popular, and all owners of birds are invited to take an interest by applying for particulars of the forthcoming autumn show, which will be held in one of the large halls in the town. Norwich headed the list for quantity and quality. The clear buff Norwich exhibited by Mr. W. Nichols was put down in faultless condition, and is indeed a grand bird, and rightly deserved the two spls, viz., best Norwich and best bird in show. We also congratulate Mr. Beavington on his fine team of Norwich and his grand entry of 25. Mr. T. Harris captured the spl for best Yorks with a fine cl. yellow. Mr. J. Robson judged, and gave general satisfaction.

CHESTER C.B.S.

Annual N.F. Show at Club Rooms, Boot Inn, July 9th. The four handsome cups up for competition brought out a nice entry of about 100 and some very promising youngsters were benched. The awards were very evenly divided. A "dark horse" from Hawarden picked up the Yorkshire cup by means of entering same birds in Champion and Novice Classes. There was a very good attendance, and the Secretary, Mr. Simpson, had everything in tip-top order. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, judged, and his awards were well received.

GLASGOW WEST END C.B.C.

Usual monthly meeting held in Co-operative Hall, St. George's Circus, July 12, Mr. C. Campbell presiding over a good attendance. Business transacted all relative to F.F. show. Spls for same allocated; these totalled 18 of 2s. 6d. each, all contributed thereto by the members. Annual F.F. show also held on this date in the Co-op. Hall, St. George's Cross. There was a grand turn-out, no fewer than 61 facing the judge—a considerable increase on last year's F.F. shows. The strongest in numbers were the Border Fancy section. The number of entries would have been much higher had it not been for the bad breeding results experienced by a large number of our members. The quality was very good, and a number of them very promising, and should make a name for themselves during the forthcoming show season. Mr. John Young (Rutherglen) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. The office-bearers and members wish to tender him their hearty thanks for his kindness in coming to judge.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Annual N.F. cup show, held July 19, at the Duke of York, when only 60 birds had to face the judges, this being the result of bad luck and poor breeding season. Mr. F. J. Weaver won in the clear yellow class. Mr. O. Robinson next walked away with clear buff class, taking 1st, 2nd, 3rd with a trio of real good birds, winner especially so. Mr. J. Crundell, of Crundell and Rowley, staged a fine yellow marked. Mr. F. Loach had an easy win with his buff marked bird, which won the spl for best bird in show at the June table show. In Yorks Mr. J. Hinton won the yellow class with a very typical bird. J. Gibbons, hon. sec., next won the clear buff class and yellow marked class, the latter winning the spl for the best bird in show, which is a beautiful cinnamon-chested bird, teeming with quality of feather. Mr. E. Hall wound up by winning the buff marked class with a bouncing big but typical bird. Mr. G. Harris had the British and novice Norwich and Yorkshire classes under his thumb and finger, his hand-reared Cuckoo being a great attraction. Mr. H. T. Collier, of Birmingham, judged the Norwich and British, and Mr. W. G. Andrews the Yorks., and I am pleased to say their awards gave every satisfaction.

WHEN FORTUNE SMILES

THE FANCIER SMILES WITH HER!

Mr. C. Martin, of New Southgate, N. (late of Southampton) has had a goodly measure of success with his favourite birds, the Norwich Plainheads. Our photograph shows him with a few of his winners and special prizes; the sketch depicts a successful member of his exhibition team.

F. CARL, Publisher, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstance will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which me must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clapnets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ¾-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¾-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

Shooting a Poisoned Arrow.

Lady Bird-Keeper Repeats Allegations About Blinded Birds.

Notes by the Secretary of "Cage Birds League."

In the August issue of "The Avicultural Magazine," the organ of the Avicultural Society, Mrs. K. Curry writes bewailing that her letter published in the May number of that magazine, and to which I referred in my notes in our issue of May 31 last, has been ignored by her fellow-members of the Avicultural Society.

Mrs. Curry writes: "I see that the subject of the indiscriminate capture and traffic in birds, and their condition in the dealers' shops, has not been taken up by members as I hoped it might have been, for it is a very real and great evil, and ought to appeal to the sense of justice for which England is famous."

It is not surprising that Mrs. Curry's letter did not meet with any support from the members of the Avicultural Society, who know that bird-keeping does not entail the horrors outlined by that lady. The surprising thing is that some of the members did not point out, as I did in CAGE BIRDS, that if Mrs. Curry had any actual case on which to base her denunciation of those who get their living by ministering to the necessities of those who keep birds it was her duty to take steps to have the offender punished, and that if she did not know of any such individual case then her generalities were as unwarrantable as those to which we have become accustomed as being promulgated by those with much less knowledge of birds than is possessed by Mrs. Curry. In support of her allegations against bird-dealers Mrs. Curry writes: "Imagine the daily task of cleaning out such a multitude of bird-cages! A small army of workers, busy the whole day long, would be needed to look after hundreds of birds!" This is drawing the long bow with a vengeance. I could tell Mrs. Curry of a collection of about six hundred birds, including rare Parrots, frugivorous foreign birds and British birds of every species that could be properly kept in captivity, all these six hundred birds being kept in perfect cleanliness by one person, and that person a lady who has, besides, her household duties day by day. How many birds could "a small army" look after?

I should not have referred to Mrs. Curry's second letter if it had not been that she allows herself to ask the question whether any bird's melody, poured forth in a tiny cage, "when its eyes have been put out with hot wires to make it sing better," is an indication that it is not suffering.

Who told Mrs. Curry that English bird-dealers put out the eyes of birds with hot wires? The only inference that may be drawn from her remarks is that they do this. She certainly does not know it of her own knowledge. It is simply a repetition of one of the most favoured of the scandalous misrepresentations used by the shrieking "humanitarians" who stop at no exaggeration in their frantic abuse of bird-keeping.

I had occasion in May last to write to a London editress who had allowed herself to make the statement that "many have their eyes put out with red-hot needles," and in answer to my letter this lady said that during the last twelve months there had been at least two convictions in London courts against perpetrators of the atrocity. She was "making enquiries" and would in due course let me have her authorities for her statement.

After "making enquiries," the only case this lady could quote was a solitary one four years old. This one instance of wicked brutality is the whole and sole basis upon which it has been repeated over and over again that it is a common practice among bird-dealers to blind birds in order to improve their power of song. I am still waiting for the particulars of the two convictions alleged, and I know I shall be kept waiting, for there never were such convictions.

It is nothing short of scandalous that a member of such a body as the Avicultural Society, herself a bird-keeper and a fellow member of bird-keepers, should allow herself to give utterance to this wicked accusation, and I challenge Mrs. Curry either to produce some ground for her assertion or to admit that she has allowed herself to go beyond the bounds of truth in her anxiety to bolster up her generalisations.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Meeting held July 29. Mr. J. Stenhouse, chair. Letter was received from B.F.C.C., granting their patronage. Agreed to get supply of tickets for show from Hyde's. Collecting books were handed out for the various districts. Next meeting Aug. 26.—A. Dickson, Hon. Sec.

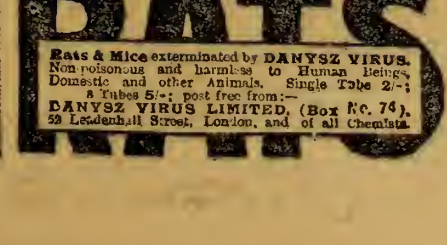
SWINDON F. AND F.A.

Monthly meeting held at Baths, July 30. Present: Messrs. H. R. Halliday (chair), A. Ireland, T. Patterson, E. Ireland, F. R. Gee, S. Tanner, D. Hoare, R. A. Northover, E. Jefferies, W. Townsend, S. Lewis, A. C. Mockridge, E. Wallington, J. Neal, W. Judd, and W. J. Moran. New member elected: Mr. W. Judd. Decided to hold a committee meeting on August 13, to make arrangements for the young stock show. A table show of pigeons bred this year was held. The meeting concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. J. Neal for the very able way in which he had judged the exhibits.—W. J. Moran, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH WALES AND MON. FEDERATION OF F. AND F.S.

First Executive Council meeting of this year held Luffu Hotel, Cardiff; Mr. D. A. S. Longden, Swansea, chair. The most difficult matter the Council had to decide was the allotting of the new cups for competition during the coming season. It will be remembered that the Fed. has gone in for a £5 5s. cup, to be subscribed for, and that a £3 3s. cup was presented by Mr. W. G. Camden, Swansea, at annual meeting. Taking into consideration there are four sections to be catered for—Poultry, Cage Birds, Pigeons, and Fur, the Executive decided to purchase two other cups, one £2 2s. and one £1 1s. Decided that the exhibitor scoring the highest number of points at end of season in any one section should win the £5 5s. cup, the next highest number of points (but he must belong to another section) to win the £3 3s. cup, and so on, so that one section cannot win more than one cup. It can thus be seen that the most valuable cup can be won by either a Cage-bird, Poultry, Pigeon, or Fur exhibitor. This arrangement will, it is believed, meet with the approval of all concerned. Several other important matters were dealt with. Considering the quality of the cups put up for competition, and the relative advantage that will no doubt accrue to federated societies, we again appeal to those societies who have not become affiliated to do so at once before the show season starts. The first show affiliated to the Federation is Ystradgynlais, where all these cups will be competed for. Any information required will be most readily given by the Sec., A. A. Gordon McLucas, 48, Rosser Street, Maesycoed, Pontypridd.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE C.B.S.



At the usual monthly meeting there was a fair turn-out of members. Sec. read a letter from Mr. Tindale, sec. of the Northern Yorks. C.C., stating that Blaydon had again been granted patronage. Decided to put another Green Border class for annual show. The members also decided to present, for valuable services rendered to Blaydon Society, an umbrella to Mr. G. S. Ellwood, who is emigrating.—G. Havver.

WEST OF FIFE C.B.L.

Meeting held Aug. 2, in Masonic Arms, Cowdenbeath, Mr. Dickson, chair. Balance-sheet of Y.B. Show was approved and considered very satisfactory. Agreed to pay as prize money 1s. for 1st, 6d. 2nd, and 3d. 3rd, which leaves a balance of 6s. towards the funds. After prize money was paid a very enjoyable smoker was held, and the rest of the evening was spent in song and story, nearly everyone contributing to the programme. Will secretaries please note that next meeting will be held on Sept. 13, and keep it vacant for their delegates to get a chance to attend?—Jas. Cordery, Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION

Monthly meeting held Oldham Hall, July 24. New members elected:—J. Beasley, J. Barnett, R. Algie, T. Plunkett. Patronage was granted to Newcastle (Borders only), Halifax (Yorkshires), Manchester (full classes), Liverpool (full), Sheffield (full), Preston (full), Bradford National (Yorkshires and Norwich), Gateshead (Borders only), Scottish National (full), and G.C.A. The Palace to be written re classes. The patronage to Liverpool O.S., Warrington, Anfield, G.C.A., and Liverpool Bird Breeders was granted in the novice section, with several shows which are likely to be added later next meeting. Aug. 28 will be question night. Any members who are unable to attend, please send any enquiries relative to our variety to the Sec., who will see they are dealt with and answered through the Press or by post. Several of our leading members are away on holidays, but we hope to have a strong muster next meeting.—F. Handley, Hon. Sec.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Monthly meeting held July 26. Amongst correspondence read were letters from Mr. Waring and Mr. Lyons. Mr. Massey presided. He regretted to hear of our president's illness, and believed the sympathy of all members would be extended to Mr. Waring. Owing to business, Mr. Lyons finds he is unable to leave home on date fixed to officiate at members' show. This earning of our daily bread prevents many capable fanciers accepting judging engagements. Kindly note, members' show on Nov. 29 at headquarters, Old Boar's Head, Corporation Street, Manchester. Birds to be delivered on the evening of the 28th. Messrs. Massey and Waring will judge. Four classes provided, open, any age, rung or unrung; champion; amateur; novice; young birds, which must wear a 1913 ring. Prize-money on sliding scale. Textile Hall, Bury, again engaged for the annual open show, Jan. 9-10. Following classes:—Open class, any age, rung or unrung; champion young birds; novice young birds (the birds in these two classes to wear 1913 rings); amateur team; and £2 selling. These three classes are for birds any age, rung or unrung. Another class also provided for novices, open to any not having won a first prize. Birds in this class can be any age, rung or unrung. This is another concession granted to the novices, as last year the rule read: "Open to any not having won a first or a second prize." Several interesting discussions took place; notice of others are down for the next meeting.—J. Tomlinson, Hon. Sec.

CITY OF BRADFORD O.S.

Meeting held Aug 2 at Flying Dutchman Hotel, Leeds Road. Owing to the small number of members present, Mr. H. J. Chittenden, who should have given a lecture on "Moulting and Colour Feeding," kindly consented to postpone same till a later date. However, for the benefit of the few novices present, he showed a few samples of colour food in the pod, and gave a good hint how to select your colour feed and also other hints that, if followed out, should prove of great benefit both to the fanciers and birds. I can assure anyone who comes to hear him will be in for a treat, so, members, please watch your CAGE BIRDS for date of lecture, and come in good numbers and bring your friends.—W. Helliwell, Sec.

We hear that Mr. J. W. Metcalfe (Liverpool) is judging Chester Show, Nov. 22.

We are asked to notify the following changes of address: Mr. H. Sayles, hon. sec. York C.B.S., to 7, Baile Hill Terrace, York; Mr. J. Robertshaw, from Sowerby Bridge to Mytholm Cottage, Hebden Bridge.

At a meeting of the Ushaw Moor Workmen's Club C.B.S., Aug. 2, writes Mr. H. Briggs, hon. sec., Mr. J. Riseborough, Sunderland, was elected to judge at the 2nd annual show, on Dec 6.

Mr. F. Hampshire, Sunny Side, Skelmanthorpe, nr. Huddersfield, writes that he has been appointed secretary of the Skelmanthorpe C.B.S. All correspondence should be addressed accordingly.

Will societies who are desirous of the patronage of the Southern Yorks C.C. make application for same at once, writes Mr. J. W. Rennie, hon. sec., Junction Hotel, Andover. Rule books for current year, have been sent to all members.

We hear from Mr. J. Woolhouse, asst. sec., that the next ramble of the Sheffield C.B.S. will be on Aug. 9, to Wharncliffe Crags. Train leaves Sheffield, Victoria Station, at 2.40 for Oughty Bridge. All friends invited.

A very favourable quarterly balance-sheet reaches us from the hon. secretary of the City and Suburban A.C.B. Whereas the society had a year ago a cash balance of £7 6s. 7d., this now stands at £11 5s. 8d., which reflects credit on the management of Mr. Wynn and his fellow officials.

We hear from Mr. F. Knight, press correspondent, that the following gentlemen have been appointed judges at the show of the London C.B.A., held Nov. 27, 28, and 29: Messrs. Camps, Easterling, Longden, Mason, Marloy, Prior, Robson, Seth Smith, Tyson, and Vardy.

The principal article in the August issue of "British Birds" (Messrs. Witherby, High Holborn) is a very interesting contribution by Mr. J. G. Millais, "The Sequence of Plumages of the Common Eider." Accounts of the breeding of Crossbills in Shropshire, and for the fourth year in succession in Suffolk, appear among the usual "Notes" of the month, together with many other items of interest.

Will members of the Denton and Dis. C.B.S., wishing to go on a ramble on Aug. 31, kindly give in their names to Mr. T. Holden, seed merchant, Manchester Road, before Aug. 23., writes Mr. W. Hopwood, the secretary. Reserved compartments; and a Manchester fancier will act as guide to Wimslow, where we shall be met by a Wimslow fancier who will show the most interesting places. All friends are invited; meet Crown Point, 10 a.m.

In the August number of "The Avicultural Magazine," the organ of the Avicultural Society, Mr. A. Ezra commences an article "Some of my Sunbirds." The Marquis of Tavistock contributes some entertaining "Experiences of King Parrakeets." Mr. H. D. Astley writes of the mating of two species of Ibis. Mr. R. P. Wand tells of a pet Stork. Mr. M. Portal gives an account of the rearing of ornamental ducks. Mr. P. Goose contributes "A day in a Hampshire Garden," and Mr. M. Amsler describes his new aviaries. Bird notes from the Zoo, by Mr. Seth Smith, and the usual notes and correspondence make up a good number.

Sale's Bright Prospects.

I am pleased to inform you that we have again secured the Lecture Hall of Sale Technical School, for our Open Show, Nov. 28 and 29, writes Mr. H. Whitney, asst. sec. Sale and Dis. C.B.S. It is well lighted from roof and sides by day, and by electricity at night, and heated throughout. The show will be managed by such well-known fanciers as Messrs. Royle, Dunkley, Morgan, Hardcastle, Gray, etc., and fanciers may send their most valued birds and depend on them being as well looked after as they would be at home. We hope as in previous years to pay out prize money inside of seven days, and hope fanciers will give us a record entry. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success.

A Correction.

We hear from our correspondent who contributed the report of the show, published in our issue of Aug. 2, and headed "Torbay O.S., Paignton," that the show in question was held by the Torquay Fanciers Society, not the Torbay O.S. The mistake arose through the report being sent to us on the headed memorandum of the Torbay O.S.

Cricket and Supper at Bradford.

In connection with Bradford West C.B.A. there is to be a cricket match and supper to-day (Saturday, Aug. 9), writes Mr. A. Cooper, the Sec. Match played in the Girlington Field, meeting at headquarters, "Shoulder of Mutton," at 2.30 p.m. Supper, 1s. 3d. per head, at the "Shoulder of Mutton," served 6.30 p.m. After supper business will be brought before the meeting, and it is hoped that all members will turn up.

Nest Found After 100 Years.

While an ash tree, about eight feet in circumference, was being sawn in two at Embleton Saw Mills, near Cockermouth, on Saturday last, the workmen found a bird's nest, containing the dead bird and four eggs, in the heart of the tree, in a splendid state of preservation. The bird had apparently made her nest when the tree was quite young, for there were no signs whatever of any hole through which the bird could gain access, the bark of the tree being unbroken. The tree is without doubt over 100 years old. Needless to say, the eggs were completely dried up.

OBITUARY.

It is with regret that I have this week to inform you of the death of the wife of one of our members, Mr. John Murray, who passed away on the evening of July 28, after a few hours' illness, writes Mr. Robert Aitken, sec. Ayr and Dis. C.B.C. To Mr. Murray and his small family we extend our deepest sympathy in his sad bereavement.

Pike and Water Hen.

Waders and other water birds that rear their young among the rushes and coarse herbage on the waterside have deadly enemies in the large pike that infest most inland pools. These voracious fish will swallow young ducks and Moorhens with ease, and it is reported from County Clare that the body of a full grown Waterhen was found in a large pike which was caught by a lady in Killone Lough.

How Opinions Differ.

Samuel Butler, in his "Alps and Sanctuaries," speaks of the Solitary Sparrow as the most beautiful of all bird songsters. "All other bird-singing," he says, "is loud, vulgar, unsympathetic in comparison." Some of Butler's other opinions about the song of birds are curious. "People say the Nightingale's song is so beautiful; I am ashamed to own it, but I do not like it. It does not use the diatonic scale. A bird should either make no attempt to sing in tune or it should succeed in doing so." As for Canaries, he would "almost sooner hear a pig having its nose ringed or the grinding of an axe." Cuckoos, he said, were all right; they sing in tune, "Rooks are lovely; they do not pretend to tune. Seagulls, again, and the plaintive creatures that pity themselves on the moorlands, as the Plover and the Curlew, or the birds that lift up their voices and cry at eventide when there is an eager air blowing upon the mountains and the last yellow in the sky fading—I have no words with which to praise the music of those people."

Wild-Bird Life.

Venturesome Young Birds.

During the past week or two the weather has not been all that could be desired; the wind has persistently come from the east, accompanied by dull leaden skies, and the nights have been cold, but one cannot notice that wild bird life has suffered any great discomfort. No doubt here and there young birds just launched from the nest have felt the keen air, and possibly a few have failed to hold their own. In a quiet corner of a field covered with briers and thorns the writer found three young Lesser Whitethroats, perched in a row close together (possibly for warmth) on a branch of a thorn bush just outside the nest. The mother bird was not in the neighbourhood, as far as could be seen or heard, and had, no doubt, gone further afield for food. The little mites had scarcely any feathers, and appeared almost too young to venture out of their home. Young birds that leave the nest early are quite creatures of circumstances—while everything is bright and sunny they do well, but if the sky should become cloudy, or a shower come on, they fare badly, and no doubt thousands of young ones "go under" in consequence. Ground-breeding birds are especially liable to lose some of their brood in this manner. Out of a nest of five Skylarks two were found dead within a couple of yards of the nest; they had evidently ventured out when the sun was shining, got cold when it became cloudy, and failed to get back to their companions.

Unfortunately these venturesome birds are generally the most forward ones, the finest and strongest in the brood. This appears to the writer to be quite contrary to the general rule of wild life. We speak of the "survival of the fittest," but here we have the strong and fit going under, and the weakly stay-at-home birds safely reared. The young birds of the year have already begun to wander. During the month of August they leave the thickets and hedgerows that they know so well, and roam into the shrubberies and gardens of the villages and small towns. The Whitethroats and Willow-Wrens are particularly prone to do this, and for the next week or so, we shall have them flitting in and out our rose bushes, and seeking insect life among the fruit trees, charming us with their graceful manners and pretty ways.

H. NORMAN.

THE FINEST AVIARY IN THE LIVERPOOL DISTRICT.

Liscard in Luck.

It was with the expression of opinion that it was the finest in the district of Liverpool that Mr. T. S. Ashmole, the chairman of the Parks Committee, formally declared open on July 26, the aviary in the Liscard Central Park. He voiced the appreciation of the public of the generosity of Mr. Chapman Porter, who had suggested the establishment of such a feature, and who had also supplied all the birds, with the exception of a pair of storks which had been given by Mr. Cross, of Liverpool. Mr. Ashmole hinted at an extension of the aviary in the future if it was appreciated by the public.

The Mayor (Alderman Storey) cutely suggested that Mr. Porter should have many imitators, and pointed out that many gentlemen who resided in the district were connected with commerce abroad, and had little difficulty in getting foreign birds. His Worship also remarked that he would like to see a collection of British birds there. (Hear, hear.)

The Parrot's Little Idyll.

The gaily plumaged birds fluttering in and out of hollows in natural looking rockery proved a source of general attraction, says the representative of the "Liverpool Evening News." There were some rare members of the feathered tribe who resented the curious gaze of the public, but a pair of "love birds" perched on a branch of a miniature tree were perfectly unconcerned.

Neither did the presence of spectators deter a gentleman Parrot from making ardent love to a female member of his species. His advances were very favourably received for some time, until trouble arose as to which should have a piece of biscuit.

The Waiting Game Paid!

In the midst of the skirmish the biscuit fell to the ground, and was immediately gobbled up by a stork, unconcernedly standing on one leg. This was too much for Miss Parrot's equanimity, and after shrilly upbraiding her lover she flew away to another tree, vowing never to exchange words with him again. Mr. Parrot solemnly winked one eye, and said, "Shut the door," and sat awaiting developments.

When the audience had listened to the speeches, and again turned their attention to the aviary they discovered that Mr. Parrot had obtained forgiveness, and was whispering words of love to his future bride, whose pretty head rested on his shoulder. There are many things that can be learned at an aviary!

THE FASCINATION OF AN AVIARY

With a Mixed Collection of Birds.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

THERE is a call for an article dealing with the keeping of British and Foreign birds together in an aviary, and, by request, I am endeavouring to meet the need. In writing such an article there are to be considered limitations of space, the desire of many to keep a heterogeneous series together in a very limited area, the said series often to consist of small Parrakeets, Canaries, British and Foreign Finches, and all these considerations combine to make the task anything but an easy one. The keeping of a mixed collection, however, has a fascination which is missed by those who are satisfied with the possession of one kind of bird, and when an outdoor structure is used as a home for the birds the pleasure and gratification of watching their various alluring characteristics and ministering to their wants are limited only by the space which may be afforded and the accommodation that may be provided.

Wonders Accomplished in Small Places.

Before saying anything about the aviary or its prospective inmates, I would fain say a word about the limitations of space—there is the fairly generally-accepted principle that each pair of birds of the size of a Finch must be given one superficial foot of floor area—this is the allocation of space I purpose following in this article, for these notes are to meet the needs of those who through force of circumstances are compelled to try and get a little more than the utmost out of a given space. I am bound to confess that many such get most excellent results from the much mixed and overcrowded aviary, fighting down their disadvantages and limitations by assiduous care and attention to their feathered captives and ingenuity in contrivances to meet given conditions. Of course, it goes without saying that those able to have more roomy aviaries would allocate yards instead of feet of floor space to each pair of birds. I will close this paragraph on accommodation by stating that I personally know that many fanciers do wonders in quite small aviaries, and get breeding successes too, where many aviculturists would say such were impossible, owing to the number of birds housed in the space. Nevertheless, my advice is, make the aviary as large as possible, even if the extra money spent on same compels its stocking to be quite a gradual process.

Whatever the area to be covered, it is a good general principle (for moderate sized aviaries) to divide the frontage of the aviary into three equal parts, these to consist of shelter shed, covered flight and open flight. The general design is not of great moment, and this must to a great extent be governed by the exigencies of each particular case, and I will merely remark that a plain, neat structure has frequently a more handsome appearance than the ornate one, for to make a thing merely pretty is to belittle it; further, ornamentation costs money, and where funds are limited, put your money into size and let the ornate features go. I repeat that a plain neat erection is more handsome than a pretty one.

The shelter must be wind and rain proof, and also well lighted, the latter is most important, for birds will not use an ill-lighted house, or use it but little even in bad weather. Ventilation is also another important matter, and care must be exercised that there is not a draught between the floor inlet and roof outlet, and perching (roosting) accommodation should never be provided in a direct line between the two. All glass must be covered with wire netting on the inside, and the walls and roofs furnished with twiggy branches and various nest receptacles, such as boxes, husks, rush-nests, etc. Weather proof walls are best obtained by two courses of boards with a layer of felt between, but such walls should be solid; that is, with no space between the two courses of boards.

This very uncommon bird, the Crested Wood Partridge, a native of Borneo, was exhibited by Mr. C. T. Maxwell, and won a 1st prize at Clapham Show. Considerable discussion ensued as to whether it could rightly claim to be a "cage" bird.

The covered flight should adjoin the shelter, and only have the front of open wire netting. One end, of course, will be open to the open-flight. The back of this, the end formed by the shelter shed, and also the roof, should be furnished similarly to the same portions of the shelter-shed. In this portion should be suspended carriers for seed and dishes for other food, or receptacles for same hung on the walls.

The open flight should be all of wire, except the back, and if its extent be at all limited, the owner must be content with growing grass and weeds, as with a quantity of birds occupying a small flight, plants and bushes have but a very short life. The common broad-leaved laurel and aucuba best resist the attacks of the birds, and also provides excellent cover in wet weather. Here should be placed the bath; an excellent one can be easily and cheaply made by sinking a drainpipe into the ground to act as a soak-away, and on top of this forming with cement-concrete a dish with waste pipe and plug and collar in the centre leading to soak-away.

The Importance of the Foundations.

The above will convey the general principles covering a well arranged aviary, the minimum size of which for the purpose in view should be, say, 20 feet by 8 feet wide, which might well be divided as follows: Shelter shed 6 feet, covered flight 6 feet, and open flight 8 feet. As regards height, the flights should be at least 7 feet high, 8 or 9 feet is better, so that the birds may have room to fly about above the head of the aviarist when he enters the aviary for feeding and other purposes. I have really left the starting point to the last, viz., the foundations. These must consist of either brick, concrete, or netting, and must be carried 18 inches below the ground level, and if of wire netting they should be turned outward, thus ⌟, for the purpose of excluding rats and similar vermin. Where the foundations are of netting it is best to proceed by digging a trench of the requisite depth and width, put in a few stakes, and stretch the netting to these; then fill in the trench partly with brick rubble, stones, etc., and thus secure a well-drained surface for the site of the aviary. Then if a good strong skirting board be attached to the foundation posts, the structural standards and framing can be attached to this.

Some Conditions to be Avoided.

The wind blowing right through the aviary: this point is very important in moderate sized aviaries, for in large aviaries trees and bushes supply the necessary cover and protection from the force of the wind; but in all medium-sized aviaries the North and East should be solid, either of wood or brick.

A wet base is very detrimental to the birds. If the soil be a retentive one, the putting in of a kerb, and raising it six inches above the ground level, will be time and trouble well spent, and will mean much in comfort to the birds; the surface water from such a base rapidly drains away after rain.

For perching accommodation do not tolerate straight perches of any kind, use only natural twiggy branches, and arrange these in faggots, so as to provide plenty of cover, and thus enable any given bird to escape the too close attentions of a persecuting fellow inmate.

"Cage Birds" Championship Scheme.

A "Good Thing" for Both Societies and Exhibitors.

OUR list of Coupon Shows continues steadily to expand. This week we have the pleasure of notifying that the following additional societies have taken up our Championship Scheme:—

GILLINGHAM F.A.
HALIFAX O.S.
LEICESTER HAND-IN-HAND C.B.S.
WARRINGTON C.B.S.

Now that the August Holidays are numbered with the things of the past, the show season begins to loom ahead, and society officials will soon be getting busy upon the details of their show schedules, etc. We shall be glad if those societies who have not already done so will let us know at the earliest possible opportunity the decision of their members regarding the acceptance or otherwise of CAGE BIRDS' scheme, so that our list of Coupon Shows may be completed at an early date.

A Good Thing for all Societies.

Here are a few of the "good things" that come the way of all societies enrolling their annual fixture as one of our Coupon Shows:—

A Competition in which great interest is being evinced all over the United Kingdom, and which will add greatly to the attractiveness of all Coupon Shows, and appreciably swell the entries thereat, appealing as it does to novices and champions alike.

A sum in cash for the benefit of the funds of your society, as coupons are supplied to secretaries at the rate of 5s. for twelve, to be resold at 6d. each, the profit going to the society.

The addition of two 10s. cash prizes to your special prize list, and twelve diplomas of honour for champion exhibitors and twelve for novice exhibitors, covering practically every section in your show, for participants in our competition.

Valuable free publicity for your show in the columns of CAGE BIRDS, the attention of exhibitors being specially and prominently drawn to all Coupon Shows throughout the season.

The adoption of CAGE BIRDS Championship Scheme does not involve any society in any outlay whatever, except that we ask societies to put a brief notice (roughly, quarter-page space) announcing the same in their show schedules and catalogues—the wording of the notice being supplied by us. As a matter of fact, every society can make money by the scheme, for, as mentioned above, secretaries are supplied at a reduced rate with coupons to sell to their members and others, the profit therefrom belonging to the society. Then, of course, every section of our Coupon Shows should be benefited in entries, by reason of the competition for the diplomas and the right which they convey to participate in the grand finale at the Palace for the £99 (cash) in special prizes, and the £10 10s. challenge shield, all of which, of course, are confined strictly to coupon birds.

Easy and Inexpensive for Exhibitors.

It is quite an easy and simple matter for exhibitors to compete for CAGE BIRDS splendid prizes. It costs them not one penny extra in carriage, or in the other ordinary expenses attached to exhibiting, and all birds, of course, at all times stand their usual chance of winning the usual prizes and special prizes offered at the shows in addition to the specials offered under CAGE BIRDS scheme. All that the exhibitor has to do is:—

(1) Buy as many coupons (sixpence each) as he chooses before Sept. 30th next.

(2) When the show comes round at which he wishes to compete for the diploma (or diplomas) and 10s. cash prizes, opposite the bird (or birds) he selects for this purpose, stick one of CAGE BIRDS' coupons and write "C.B."—or "C.B. Novice" if he competes in the Novice section.

(3) See that he keeps by him sufficient coupons to cover the entries he will make in the Grand Finale (open to diploma winners) at the Crystal Palace Show.

Exhibitors participating in our Championship Scheme will have prizes value at £200—probably considerably more—to compete for, and all restricted to coupon birds. Every exhibitor can avail himself of numerous chances of competing for them. He has a good and equitable chance, whether he be a champion or a novice, with his brother fanciers. He may, in each of twelve sections, win a considerable sum of money with a very inconsiderable outlay in coupons.

He gains entrance into a competition which adds to the pleasure and interest of his hobby, and his birds become potential winners of CAGE BIRDS' Diplomas and Cash Prizes of 10s. offered at each Coupon Show, also of their share of the huge cash specials at the Palace Show (at present amounting to £99) and of the £10 10s. Challenge Shield for best Coupon bird in the Show.

CAGE BIRDS' Diplomas of Honour will set the seal of excellence upon stock—they will ensure holders of them a ready market for their surplus birds.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th, next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10s. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird, and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS
(4) BORDER FANCIES
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3: SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1; FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

For details of rules tentatively adopted see page 81.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must concinde with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonyne, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who receive letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Post-cards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S.. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If no answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

CARBON DISINFECTANT. (Bad Luck).—Many thanks for sending specimen of the substance you term "carbon." It is in reality a very commonly sold article in a variety of forms and under many different names—eucalpozo, naphthaline, and a host of others—as a preventive of insects and disease. It is useful enough kept in closed cabinets with natural history specimens to prevent attacks of mites, moth, etc., but as a real preventive of disease or disinfectant its virtues are chiefly imaginary. It is a mixture of various substances, camphor, eucalyptus, and probably some form of naphtha, among others, and "carbon" can only be a trade appellation. I do not suppose for a moment it would be the cause of your birds dying, though you had far too much of it in the room to make it a pleasant abode for either man, beast, or bird. Keep the air of your room sweet and fresh by the judicious and sufficient admission of pure air from outside, and you will not need these "smelly" articles to lull you into a false security that it is "disinfected." It is too late to attempt further breeding this year, so the best advice I can give you is to get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d. post free, from our Manager, and be guided strictly by its contents from now onwards through next season, and I have no doubt you will be more successful. If your hens have passed their second season clear them out and start with fresh, younger ones next year.

ROLLER-YORKS. CROSS. (W. Southwood).—At present give the youngsters an unlimited supply of good sound dry canary in the seed-box daily, and each morning place a teaspoonful of summer rape, also dry, on top of the canary seed. Give in addition a little egg-food each morning, and in the afternoon throw out any remains, and substitute either a little crushed hemp or soaked rape. The latter may be given in turns. As soon as they are cracking canary freely, reduce the hemp and soaked rape gradually, and occasionally miss it altogether for a day, and give in its place an equal quantity of a mixture of equal parts whole hemp, inga, teazle, and broken groats. Continue giving a little egg-food, or bread and milk as a substitute, at least every second day right through the moult. When well on seed give a staple diet of a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape. A light cover over the cage will help to concentrate the attention of the cocks upon the song of the tutor, which should be kept on hand in full song if possible. For these youngsters you require a tutor that is now nearly, or quite, through its moult, if such a one is available. Towards the end of the moult cage the young cocks separately to bring them in song quickly.

SEED SAMPLES AND WINTER FEEDING. (A.E.A.).—Of the seeds you sent the canary is rather small, but is clean, sweet, and of good quality. The rape is good summer rape of excellent quality. The hemp is thoroughly bad, and totally unfit to feed any kind of Canary. As regards winter feeding I think you would find full details in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which you say has been so useful to you. Anyway, from now until the end of the moult treat the young the same as advised to "W. Southwood" in this issue. You omit to say what breed your birds are. But if you are not colour-feeding them you may feed the adults on the ordinary diet when not breeding. After the moult treat old and young the same. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. In addition give each bird, separately, a half-teaspoonful of summer rape every second day. On the alternating days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, black rape, millet, and teazle twice a week, and a similar quantity of egg-food once a week. Give a little green food when fit to use, or, at other times, banana or sweet apple, twice a week. If birds are kept in a very cold room you may with advantage double the allowance of egg food, and add one part of broken groats to the seed mixture. I note your remark about withholding green food. It is by no means indispensable, but I doubt the economy or advisability of permanently depriving the birds of a wholesome relish which they so obviously enjoy.

DIFFICULT BREATHING (A.M.O.).—The bird is undoubtedly suffering from bronchial trouble, and your attempts at treatment have probably failed because you did not first remove the existing causes of the condition. The bird must be protected from all cold draughts, and, for the present at least, should be kept in a fairly comfortable temperature, which is not subject to extreme fluctuations. Feed as advised in latter part of reply to "A.E.A.," in this issue, but for the next fortnight, instead of the egg-food, give every second day a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Afterwards give the egg food as above with a pinch of maw added to it. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a week. After this give 20 drops of the following mixture, which any chemist will mix for you, in the water every second day for a fortnight. Mixture: Two drachms each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one drachm each of chlorodyne and ipecac. wine, and eight grains of iodide of potassium.

COLOUR-FEEDING YORKSHIRES (F. Barlow).—Certainly you must find full instructions for giving the colour-food, either on or in the tin. I cannot give you definite advice without knowing precisely what you have in the tin, as the firm in question put up both "red" and "yellow" feeds in the pure peppers, and also mixed with biscuit food ready for use. If yours is the pure colour food, without the admixture of biscuit—and to attain your object it should be the "red-feed"—you should mix one teaspoonful thoroughly into eight teaspoonfuls of egg-food, and begin to give a teaspoonful of this coloured egg-food to each young bird twice a week, and to each adult three times a week. After a week or so give it to old and young every second day, and continue this until the birds show signs of commencing to moult. As soon as this happens, begin to give the coloured egg-food daily—a teaspoonful per bird—and slowly increase the proportion of colour to one teaspoonful in six teaspoonfuls of egg-food. Give this regularly each day, in addition to the usual seeds, until you see the birds beginning to moult the head and neck feathers; which indicates, in normal circumstances, that the moult is drawing to a close with those individuals. Then you should reduce the strength of colour to one in eight again, and may omit it every third day. During this final stage give a pinch of linseed three times a week, and add a crystal of sulphate of iron the size of a hemp seed to the water twice a week.

Owing to the intervention of August Bank Holiday, a number of Queries were not received until Tuesday last, and we cannot, of course, get these answered in this issue. They will be dealt with, however, next week.—Editor.

SIZE INDICATOR (W. J. H.).—The size of a Canary's egg is absolutely no criterion of the size of the bird it may produce. Given normal and fully developed fertile eggs, the largest bird may be produced from a quite small egg and vice versa. Size to a certain extent is inherited, but it is very largely controlled by post-natal environment and food supply.

YOUNG DYING (Mrs. E. Tilbrook).—Had you given me details how you feed the birds, and treat them generally, especially from the time they begin to feed themselves, I might have discovered some reason for your losses. As it is, I am quite in the dark, as it were. I am not even aware of the book you refer to as your guide. I am inclined to think the chief cause of your trouble is that you stop the soft food too early, or too suddenly, or perhaps both. Feed the three young you now have exactly on the lines advised to "W. Southwood" in this issue, and during the first week give in the afternoon each day a piece of bread and milk the size of a walnut with four drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with maw, in addition to the foods named in reply referred to. See that all your seeds and other foods are perfectly sound and fresh; keep cage floor and perches as clean as possible, and strew floor with clean gritty sand. Add ten drops of syrup of rhubarb to the water for three days, and afterwards twenty drops of Chemical Food every second day for a fortnight.

SEPARATING SEXES (B. G.).—As your birds are in a mixed collection in outdoor aviary, where they are intended to be kept permanently, it is not necessary to separate the sexes at the end of the breeding season. Nesting is not likely to take place during the winter in such circumstances. It is not unlikely that the failure to rear their young was also due to the mixture of birds in the aviary.

DRAWN BLANK (Collier Fancier).—I agree with you, it is very discouraging to have no less than 13 nests of practically all good eggs and not rear a single youngster. Hard lines, truly; but, maybe, next season will bring ample consolation. It is much too late now to think of retrieving fortune this year, even if your hens had not already spent energy enough for one season, as is the case. As regards the cause of your losses, you do not give enough data to form any definite opinion upon. You mention nothing whatever except the egg food. What quantity, and how often did you give this? And what green food, if any, did you give? Then, how about hemp and all other seeds or items of food, the condition of nests, and any symptoms shown by the young, such as being unduly relaxed or constipated? All these points would have helped to elucidate the mystery, but you leave me in total ignorance upon them all. I cannot advise you better than to invest in one of the handbooks to be got from our office, House's "Manual" (1s. 2d.) or "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.,) and digest the contents between now and next spring. Meantime, separate your stock and aim at moulting and getting them in good hard condition for next season. Then, if you meet with any further difficulty, write again immediately, and give full particulars.

SCOTCH FANCY NOT PERCHING (J. P.).—I cannot account for your young Scotch Fancy refusing to perch, if, as you say, its feet and wings are all right, unless maybe it left the nest with defective eyesight. Examine its eyes in a good light and see if they, too, appear normal. If so, see that the perches are conveniently arranged, and rather low down, and also make them of a suitable size and good shape for the bird's toes to grip comfortably. If it does not then take to them, place two perches from back to front of cage, not more than an inch off the floor, so that bird cannot cross the cage without getting over them, and perhaps resting on them now and again. After a time you can gradually raise these into the upper regions. Is the bird caged alone? If so, give it one or two companions for a time, and see what force of example will do. It is just possible the peculiarity may be only an exaggeration of an idiosyncrasy which some birds have of sitting in bottom of cage or pecking about sand tray just before and during the moult. If this is the case, the peculiarity will disappear at the end of the moult.

YOUNG PLUCKING EACH OTHER (J. T. M.).—You can do nothing in this case but separate the groups of birds among which the plucking occurs and cage them separately until the end of the moult. By close observation it is frequently possible to detect the real culprits, of which there may be only one or two in the early stages, but the habit quickly spreads and becomes general in a group. If you can discover the culprits (these are usually in the best plumage themselves), they especially must be caged separately until the moult is quite over. Also, any birds that are badly plucked and have bare places should be caged separately, as their appearance incites others to begin the vicious habit. Keeping pieces of cuttlefish in cages, giving small bunches of grass seed, seed stalks of plantain or shepherd's purse to occupy their time and attention will help to break the habit, but separation for a time is essential, as well to stop the habit as to prevent further injury.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

GOLDFINCHES MOULTING (Marlborough).—The February moult of your Goldfinches was an out-of-season one, and the one that they are now undergoing is quite a natural one. Your feeding seems to be all right, but while the birds are moulting you must guard against any sudden variations of temperature. It is very dangerous at such a time to put them out all day and take them in at night, as you say you are now doing. The outside temperature has during the past week or so made sudden jumps of many degrees, and the indoor temperature at nights has been quite sultry. To expose birds in moult to such violent changes is to court trouble, and your Goldfinches should be kept inside until they have completed the moult, and the place in which they are kept should be one that is not subject to draughts or sudden changes of temperature.

All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

THE CASE OF A LINNET (T. B.).—I hope it is not quite the case that your Linnet is "always asleep," as you say. If it is just a bit dull, this would only be natural at this time of the year in view of the imminent moult, and the bird should be all right again after he has got over the quite natural troubles of the moulting period. Proper directions as to the treatment of birds during the moult would take up a very considerable amount of space, and I think I cannot do better than advise you to get our Nutshell No. 12, "How to Moult British Birds" (see advt. inset in this column). In this you will find a mine of useful information. If the bird is sleepy beyond what may be expected during such a time, please let me know more about the symptoms and your treatment, and I shall be glad to help. Are you sure that red-mite are not keeping him awake at night, so that the only time he gets for sleep is during the day, when they have retired to their hiding places?

FOREIGN BIRDS.

We believe that last week some queries intended for Mr. Page went astray in the post, will, therefore, any readers who may not have received answers kindly repeat their questions?—Editor.

AVIARY QUERIES (A. Ogden).—If you wish to keep your birds out of doors all through the winter you must have wooden shelter at least 4ft. long and the same width as the aviary. This shelter must be well lighted or the birds will not use it; it must also be draught and rainproof. By all means retain the growing bushes, though it will be no use retaining those in the shelter portion, save as perching and roosting accommodation. Make the aviary as wide as the surroundings will permit; it adds but little to the cost, and means so much towards its general success. I fear from the tenor of your letter that your conception as to the number of birds it will accommodate for breeding purposes is in fault. Six pairs of Finches are all it will accommodate to give any reasonable chance of success, and fairly regular breeding. Possibly an extra pair of Waxbills might be included without interfering with results, but it all depends what British species you desire to keep. Goldfinches and Bullfinches will soon kill the deciduous bushes by continuous dishudding, and Chaffinches, Bramblefinches, and Yellow Bunting frequently prove very quarrelsome in smallish aviaries, not infrequently killing their smaller companions. As regards foreign Finches and Waxbills, you will find the following interesting and hardy: Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Bib Finches, Bengalese, Long-tail Green-Finches, Cut-throats, Avadavats, and Gold-breasted Waxbills. Of course, merely as a place to live in for the birds—that is, leaving breeding results to chance, you could keep more, say, 30 to 40 small Finches and Waxbills. You must use ½in. mesh wire netting to enclose the bushes, and all glass must be covered with same on the inside.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

"Bad Luck."—Pneumo-enteritis, that is, inflammation of the bowels, complicated with pneumonia, due to ptomaine poisoning. The egg food may be the source of the trouble.

Meax.—Rupture of the liver, arising from violence, and causing death from haemorrhage.

C. Harrison.—Broncho-pneumonia, arising from a cold. Sorry I did not note your remarks re sex of bird until re-reading your letter, so overlooked this at time of post-mortem examination.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

J. Carter.—The method of breeding mealworms was explained on page 59 of our last issue by Mr. Fulljames in his British bird queries.

R. G. R.—The body sent is that of a male Cirl Bunting. By the way, you kept this until pretty "high" before favouring us with it.

A. Bishop.—Thanks for the photograph, which we shall be pleased to utilise in the near future.

Churchman.—We will convey the purport of your letter to the author of the article, but must respectfully decline to take any action ourselves in so delicate a matter.

The Popular Moorhens.

Among the water-birds the Moorhens are as well known as any, and if they inhabit a district at all they are popular because of being so particularly tame and confiding. Their nest is a collection of weeds and water-plants, generally pretty well hidden among the rushes. When the young are hatched, the old birds will sometimes form another nest in a more open and sunny spot. This they do for the benefit of the young, who crowd into the new structure.

Nature Study in the Council Schools.

A writer in a "Daily" condemns the nature classes at the Board schools. He fears that the "love" of animal life, as instilled into the minds of thoughtless children, will be fatal to the existence of bird life round London. Another correspondent takes up the cudgels in favour of the boys, and considers that they are only carrying out part of their natural duties in checking the spread of bird life. Unfortunately children have no discrimination, they are as happy while rifling the homes of such rare birds as the Goldcrest and Hawfinch as when appropriating the eggs of the common Sparrow.

Musicians in the Making.

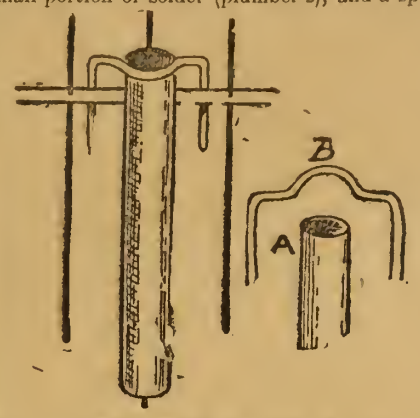
We print the appended verses, taken from the children's corner of the "Warrington Examiner," in the hope that they will be found entertaining by the younger members of the families of our readers :—

You dear little birdie, who taught you to sing
Among the green branches and blossoms of spring?
I wish you would tell me, for then, don't you see,
I'll ask the same person to try and teach me.

I wonder, whenever I hear you, if you
Have to sit in a tree for an hour or two,
And practise your dear little twitter and trill
When it is so dreadfully hard to keep still.

When you want to play in the sunshine all day,
Does somebody hold up a finger and say
As solemnly, 'Now, little birdie, stay so
And carefully practise your do, re, mi, do?'

Do you have to learn about octaves and thirds,
And chords and arpeggios and other hard words?
And those terrible scales? Why, of all that I do
I think them the hardest to practise. Do you?

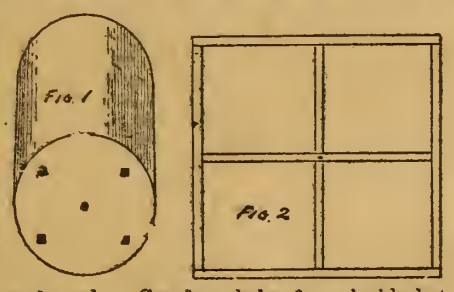


Well, however you do, I am sure of one thing,
That I have to practise before I can sing;
And with all I may learn, and the best I can do,
I never shall sing, little birdie, like you.

Illustrated Ideas

Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 629.
A Holder to Keep Green-food Fresh.
Sent by Mr. S. Golding, 283, Milkwood Road, Herne Hill, S.W.



Herewith is an illustration of a green-food holder which should be found useful. The idea struck me some months ago, and I thought it might be useful to some of your readers. It is made by first obtaining a buttonhole flower-holder costing one penny, also three inches of stout, tinned wire, and a small portion of solder (plumber's), and a spot of zinc chloride, which is made by putting a small piece of zinc in a little spirits of salt. Then bend wire as shown in B, well clean the centre all over by rubbing with sand-paper, then clean neck of flower-holder, A, in the same way, paint both parts with the zinc chloride, and place in position as per illustration. Lay the solder on top and hold joint over gas-ring flame until the solder runs into the crevice between holder and wire, and all is complete. Water kept in the holder keeps the green food fresh, and consequently more nutritious.

No. 630.
An Ingenious Seed Hopper.
Sent by Mr. F. C. Dickens, 34, Vernon Street, Northampton.

I am sending a sketch of a useful seed hopper for the aviary. I have used the same for several years, and find it very convenient. It is made from a syrup tin, one pound size, and it is best to have one for each kind of seed used. Cut four holes from inside bottom of tin with chisel, and punch small hole for screw, as shown in Fig. 1, then procure a square piece of wood and nail on strips of wood ¼in. square, forming four small trays, as shown in Fig. 2; place the tin in centre, and screw down tightly from inside with one hole over each tray.

A Magazine for Handymen.

In order to make the "Woodworker," the threepenny monthly magazine, better known, the publishers are making a very generous offer to the readers of CAGE BIRDS. There are a few sets still left of the 12 issues comprising the complete 1912 volume, which represent a value of 3s. and costs 5d. to send by post, which they offer to send to a number of our readers post free for the nominal sum of 1s. 6d. This magazine will be found extremely useful to CAGE BIRDS readers who, we know, are men who delight to work about the house and garden. The pages are packed full of information regarding all kinds of woodwork and contain valuable hints and suggestions for all kinds of jobs. We can assure our readers that the offer is a good one. Any reader sending the small sum of 1s. 6d. will thus obtain a volume to which he can refer time after time, and thus save himself hours of unnecessary labour, whilst extending his knowledge of tools and woodwork. It is essential to send at once, since the stock is limited, to Messrs Evans Bros., Ltd., Sardinia House, Kingsway, Loudon, W.C.

In the Kingfisher's Haunt.

By the quiet stream, flowing slowly through the meadows, one can occasionally get a glance of the gorgeous Kingfisher as he darts away like a stream of coloured light. Sit quietly under the lee of a bush, and we shall probably see him alight on yonder dead branch, suddenly peer downwards with excited look, drop like a stone, returning almost instantly with his prey.

A Nuisance to the Neighbours.

Allegations Against a Canary Breeder at Bradford.

A case of considerable interest to the Canary Fancy was heard at the Bradford Police Court on July 29, when James Clark, 59, Hustler Street, was summoned for creating a nuisance by keeping Canaries in an attic. Mr. H. R. Watling, from the Town Clerk's department, prosecuted, and Mr. T. I. Clough defended.

When the case was called the Stipendiary magistrate inquired if the defendant was summoned for creating a noise.—Mr. Watling: No, sir; a noisome smell. (Laughter.)—Mr. Watling stated that the defendant indulged in the unusual pastime of breeding Canaries in the attic. This being an annoyance to the neighbours, notices had had to be served upon the defendant. The number of Canaries kept by the defendant varied from 20 to 200. The Canaries were fed on stuff which seemed to attract mice, numbers of which invaded the room, and the inspector found as many as nine mouse-traps in use there. The smell that greeted the inspector on his visit was better imagined than described.

An inspector said that on one occasion he found over 200 Canaries in the room. There was a fearful smell in the place, which was also very dirty. The defendant had to light his pipe before he could enter the room. The smell was perceptible all over the house.

Mr. Frank White, the chief sanitary inspector, gave evidence to the effect that the keeping of these birds in such great numbers was against good sanitation.

The Stipendiary Magistrate: Is this keeping of Canaries a common thing in Bradford?—Mr. White: There is a good deal of it done, I believe. We have served notices in several cases, and an improvement has been effected.

The Number; and the Mice.

The Stipendiary Magistrate: Is there any limit as to the number to be kept?—Mr. White: Perhaps if there were only half a dozen no objection would be taken. Another reasonable objection was that the mice got into the false roofs of the adjoining houses and "danced about" during the night.

Mr. T. I. Clough, for the defendant, suggested that these birds were prize Canaries, and it was in the interests of the defendant that the place should be kept spotlessly clean.—The Stipendiary Magistrate: But you could not keep prize pigs in a bedroom.

Mr. Clough raised an objection that the Canary was not an animal within the meaning of the Act of Parliament.—The Stipendiary Magistrate: It is not a vegetable or a mineral. The Act implies any living thing the keeping of which might constitute a nuisance.

Mr. Clough, continuing, said that the defendant had kept Canaries in this way for fifty years. The attic was not used as a bedroom, but kept solely for the birds. There had only been complaints from one neighbour, who had a substantial interest in making the defendant suffer. The place was kept clean.

The defendant gave evidence, and said he had kept Canaries for fifty years in the same place. He had had as many as 500 at one time. He had never had complaints from neighbours, for they had never seen the birds. It was to his advantage to keep the birds clean. He had taken steps to keep the mice out of the room, and had lined the walls with sheet iron.

Mr. George Taylor, the well-known bird fancier and judge, said he had visited thousands of bird-rooms in various parts of the country. There were more Canary keepers in Bradford than in Norwich.

Mr. Watling: But it is stated that there are 20,000 people who keep Canaries in Norwich.

Mr. Taylor said he had visited the defendant's rooms, and the birds were as well kept as any he had ever seen.

The Stipendiary Magistrate remarked that he had no doubt there were too many Canaries kept in this room, and there must be smells which should not exist. "You must tell your client, Mr. Clough, that he must reduce the number of his birds."—Mr. Clough: This case will affect a very large number of Canary breeders, sir.

Mr. Wilberforce said he would not inflict a penalty this time, but would make an order for the nuisance to be abated within fourteen days.

A Local Paper's Views.

Commenting on the above case, the "Bradford Daily Telegraph" says:—

Canary farming is a more popular pastime in Bradford than many people imagine, and in the opinion of one of the best authorities there are more persons in the Canary fancy in Bradford than in Norwich itself. Conducted on the best lines the fancy is also one of the most profitable in the feathered world, and quite a number of our citizens find in it a considerable part of their income. The attempt of the Corporation Health Committee to interfere with the fancy is not appreciated in these circles, and it ought in fairness to be stated that there is little cause for complaint regarding the way Canaries are kept in this city. It is just as much in the interests of the Canary breeder himself that strict cleanliness should be observed, for the bright little yellow bird is one of the most intelligent and sensitive of all the feathered tribe.

What a Norwich Paper Thinks.

The "Eastern Daily Press," published at Norwich, remarks:—

"The case heard at Bradford Police Court will be read with quite as much interest in Norwich as in the Yorkshire town itself. We confess that we had no idea, before reading this case, that there was any other town in England which claimed to rival Norwich as a Canary breeding centre. Bradford, it appears, makes a claim not only to rivalry, but to supremacy; and it was stated in court that there are more Canary breeders there than here, in the traditional home of the industry. We should want something more than a casual statement in a police court before accepting any such claim.

"On the point raised in this case, as to whether Canary breeding in cottage homes leads to insanitation, an issue of considerable importance is raised. Carried on in a reasonable way, Canary breeding as a home hobby may be, and in the majority of cases is, a pleasant addition to the interests of the family. But it is with Canary breeding as with everything else. It is possible to overdo it. In this particular case there does not seem to be any question as to the existence of a nuisance.

"The defending solicitor remarked that the decision would affect a very large number of Canary breeders. So far as Norwich is concerned, we hope it will not, and that here locally Canary breeding is carried on under conditions which could not be described as a nuisance. A home which is primarily a home, with Canary breeding carried on in it as a hobby, is all right; but a home which is primarily a Canary breeding place, with the comfort of the home regarded as a secondary consideration, is all wrong; and we should be better without a Canary breeding industry if the amenities of a decent home life have to be sacrificed to it. Such cases are, we imagine, rare in Norwich."

A Talented Starling.

Sir,—I have a Starling that sings, whistles and talks. I will give you a few of the things he says. If my wife gives him what he likes he says "Ta, dear Mum." If he does not like it he says, "You tease me; you are saucy." We have taught him to whistle the soldiers' bugle call, and when he has done it he says: "Ain't it nice? Come and kiss me." If he hears baby cry he says, "That's a pretty baby; kiss missus." We are willing to allow any lady or gentleman to see and hear him on presentation of their card. He is not for sale. He is now six years old.

Birds That Remained Widowers

Curious Story of a Crow and a Thrush.

Sir,—In the "Irish Times," a writer signing himself "Ovins," relates some curious things concerning a Crow and a Thrush. He says:—About my residence there is an aged Crow, ten or eleven years old. Several years ago this Crow lost his mate, and has never formed a second alliance. When the others are building their nests he sits alone on his perch, quietly looking on. One day last year I found him very busy feeding two young birds which had lost their male parent. He helped to rear them till they were old enough to look after themselves. Last March he appeared to have resumed his solitary life, but later found another nest of orphans in the rookery, to which he is still devoting his attention. There is in my garden a Thrush which also lost his mate some years ago, and he also remains solitary. On summer evenings I often see him perched on the top of the tree wherein he used to build his nest, but he never sings a note. I would very much like to know if these are peculiar instances of fidelity, or would all birds of the species be likely to act in the same way if bereaved in the same way? P. Finnigan.

Two Bramblefinch-Chaffinch Hybrids Reared this Season.

Sir,—I thought perhaps it might be of some interest to your many readers to know of my breeding two Bramblefinch-Chaffinch Hybrids. These are now ten weeks old. I hatched out five more, which died at five days old. I have not heard of any others of this cross being bred this season. F. Mascall.

A Wagtail's Peculiar Nesting Place.

Sir,—Whilst Mr. Eli Parish, employed as a packer on the L. and S.W. Railway, was recently engaged in weeding the permanent way near Egloskerry Station, Cornwall, he discovered a Wagtail's nest under the off-sets of a crossing which connects the loop with the main line. The nest, being built directly under the off-sets, is sheltered from the weather by the metals. It is built chiefly of cotton-waste used at the station for cleaning purposes. There are four young birds in it, and several trains pass over the crossing daily. Western Star.

Mule Breeding in the Olden Times.

With Some Observations on the Production of White Canaries.

Sir,—In the first place I was very pleased with the beautiful coloured plate you gave in Cage Birds of the White Canaries. I little thought that they would become a recognised breed. In the eighties I used to go into Mule breeding strongly and had then made a good strain of Sib. hens, especially for muling them with the Goldfinch only. To get this strain I used the largest Norwich birds I could obtain, in fact some were Crest-bred birds, but not of the immense feather these birds have to-day. In breeding from them I resorted to the "Sib," or in-breeding system. I used to breed yellow to yellow and buff to buff for some years, father to daughter, and son to mother. After a few years breeding in this way I had got the blood so well set that from the double buffs I frequently got a "White" Canary, which I then thought was "no colour at all;" such birds I discarded as early as possible as quite useless for Mule breeding, for I did not want the Mules to be a "white" colour. My object in those early days was a bright sound yellow, and that is the reason I used to always "double yellow" a pair or two each year; then I crossed these with the double buffs. Now and then, by so doing, I upset my "apple-cart," as the buff blood was stronger and more vigorous than the yellow. I inbred the yellows so much that they were a very raggy miserable lot, and hardly worth a gift. What some fanciers thought of them may be gathered from the fact that I was offered 1s. each for them, and cocks at that. Of course I thankfully declined the generous offer and kept my mouth shut over them, for I did not wish my secret (as it was most certainly then) to get out. From this inbreeding of the yellows, and from the most miserable and ragged of the hens, I got some of the most beautiful yellow-marked Mules any one might wish to see. At that time, I might as well state, I solely depended upon the hens to bring up the Mules. Some of the hens, being so highly bred, were very weak, and many a good Mule I lost, both in the shell dead and in the early stages from seven to ten days' old, most probably through the hen's weakness. Had I then the experience I have now, I think I might have raised and saved many a good bird. Let me most strongly impress upon young breeders who take up this hobby of Mule breeding always to have a pair put up at the same time to act as feeders or foster-mothers, for you may never know what you may want. It is very disheartening, after having Mules hatch out, to find that the parents refuse to feed, and that you have nothing to put the young under. When I had this choice strain of "Sibs," I was a bit bigoted and thought that the Mules of any other Finch but the Goldfinch were no good, and not worth trying after, so did not go in for using either the Linnet or Siskin. We then had no fancy paper to run to for advice. Old fanciers of over thirty years' standing must now acknowledge the great good that a paper such as Cage Birds has done the Fancy by giving information and helping them in many ways. Wonderful progress and improvements have been made in the different varieties of Canaries, Mules, and Hybrids, and I dare say if we could get some letters from the old breeders of thirty years ago they would prove very interesting and many a wrinkle would be learnt, but I daresay some of them don't like to report their failings and mistakes. For myself, I am always ready to admit where I had failures, for many I had in those early days, as they may benefit others and prevent them making similar mistakes. No hard and fast rules can be laid down in Muling; patience and common sense are the most essential qualifications. Just a word on the sentimental; some years ago I put up some Canaries for breeding. I did this one Sunday morning; my wife told a lady that I had that morning put up a pair for breeding. This lady then said as I had put them up on Sunday I should not raise any young from them; which turned out a true prophecy, for I did not, and she gave me a parting a piece of advice gratis, that I should always put up my birds with a new moon and never when the moon was on the wane. Of course all that nonsense is only superstition. I was also given the advice respecting Bullfinch hens when I first began to use them for breeding (this is now some 25 years ago), that I should always feed the hens (Bullies) solely on hemp seeds, as this would cause them when they moulted to assume the black plumage, and this would be given to the offspring. I have always been a believer in hemp for Bullfinches, and have had some hundreds in my time, and I can only say that with all the birds I have had only one has turned black from the hemp seeds, which they have had ad lib, and that was a cock, but they always had in addition any amount of green food and, in season, young shoots of various trees and the tender shoots of the plum with aphides on. Another old fancier once gave me a great secret, as he called it, that when you put hens up you should give them a stimulant in the water, i.e., a small quantity of gin. This was, he told me, a sure prevention of egg-binding, and also brought the hens into breeding condition. I did try it and used it some time 25 years ago, but I cannot say that I derived much benefit from that grand recipe, although I have since that time given hens a little in the water when they have been egg-bound. I have since proved that it is a great mistake to over-feed hens before they are put up, or to give them too much stimulating food. The great secrets which I had given me in these days of long ago have since caused me many a good laugh, although they were given me in good faith, and as great tips. How the times have altered since those "dark days" of the Fancy! At the present day, nearly all the various breeds have improved almost out of recognition. What a contrast there would be if the Norwich of to-day was shown against the Norwich of thirty years ago! They would be termed Borders now.

How to Get One's Anxieties Relieved.

Sir,—I saw in the issue of Cage Birds for July 26th, a letter signed "Anxious," asking for information on certain questions with regard to the management of Canaries. I would suggest that if he read Cage Birds Annual, and also regularly and carefully read the answers to Queries in Cage Birds, "Anxious" would find all the knowledge he requires given in detail. As I get four consecutive numbers of Cage Birds I sew them together and save them. When I want to know anything I look up the queries or articles, and can always find an answer. Besides, it is always interesting to read old numbers of Cage Birds. Shellback.

Have You Seen the "Water Jack"?

An Ornithological Marvel which Hides Her Nest and Eggs Under Water.

Sir,—I think somebody has been having a bit of fun with us people in Glasgow. Have you ever heard of a bird which pulls its nest and eggs under water to escape observation? Yet this is what was told us in the natural history column of the "Glasgow Evening Times" the other day. The writer says:—"A few weeks ago, during one of our moorland rambles, we discovered a pond in a sheltered nook among the hills. As we sat smoking among the heather our attention was drawn to a bird, which was hovering above the water about ten yards from the shore. At first I took little notice, but my friend, who was watching eagerly, said he saw something like a nest in the water. At once my interest was aroused, and doffing our boots and stockings we waded out to the spot. The water was little more than knee-deep, but to our surprise both nest and bird had disappeared. My companion was mystified; he was positive he had seen a nest. We waded back to the shore to await developments. In a few minutes the nest again appeared, floating among the rushes. My friend arranged to remain on land and watch, while I again waded out to solve the mystery. As I approached the nest I was amazed to see it gradually disappearing under the water, but making a rush I secured it, while the parent bird came to the surface a few yards away, and assailed me with plaintive cries. The ingenious tactics of the Water Jack may be briefly explained. The nest is built to float among the rushes, but on the approach of danger the parent bird, which has been sitting on eggs, immediately dives overboard. She seizes one of the tough tendrils hanging from the bottom of the nest, and drags her house under water. She has been known to remain submerged for five minutes at a time. The nest we found on this occasion contained five eggs." A. Ferguson.

Curious Site for the Nest of a Nightingale.

Sir,—I was shown a few days ago, in the garden of a neighbour, the nest from which a brood of young Nightingales had just flown. It was placed under the eaves of a shed, about five feet nine inches from the ground, partly in a hole in the wall, and partly in the jasmine which grew up it. I had previously repeatedly seen and heard the Nightingales in the garden, and had talked to the gardener about them, asking him to let me know if he found the nest. Unfortunately my friend, the owner, was away for a fortnight or so when the nest was found, and the birds often seen feeding the young in the nest. My friend returned home the day after the young left the nest, and told me about it. The gardener and a maid who had seen the old birds feeding the young, and watched them leading the young away from the nest, pointed out the birds they had seen, which were Nightingales. The gardener is a sensible man, who knows the common birds of the neighbourhood well. The nest was a large structure of moss, hair, etc., and large numbers of oak leaves.

A Lecture on Wild Bird Life Before the Sheffield O.S.

Sir,—Owing to Mr. G. Fletcher being away on holiday, the meeting of the Sheffield O.S. announced for Aug. 12, has been postponed to Aug. 19. Mr. Fletcher has undertaken to give a lecture, "Bird Life through Camera and Field-glass," on the latter date. This will be most interesting, a good many of the plates having been obtained under very difficult circumstances. We are hoping to have a record attendance, and are throwing our doors open to all fanciers and friends, at Rose and Crown Hotel at 8 p.m. sharp.

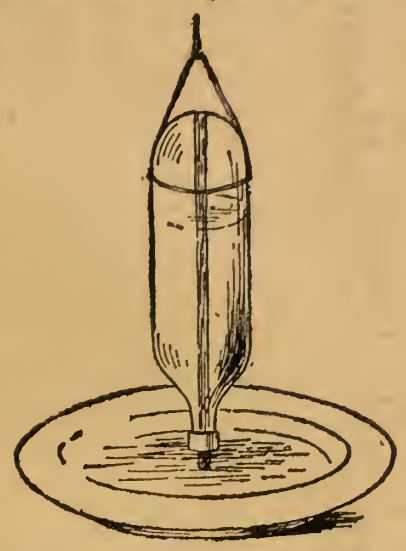
Fighting for Their Homes.

The Swallows and Their Enemies.



Sir,—I have noticed myself how the Sparrows and Swallows sometimes fight in the spring over nesting sites, and thought these few lines from a weekly contemporary might interest other readers. The writer says:—

It is the Sparrows and Starlings, rivals for the nesting sites, who show themselves the irreconcilable enemies. Terrific battles are continually enacted with varying fortunes, and the anecdotes of these frays would fill a volume. Jesse tells of a feud at Hampton Court, in the course of which the Swallows, having only then completed their nest, were evicted by Sparrows, who forthwith took possession and hatched out their eggs. Then came Nemesis, for the Sparrows were compelled to go foraging for food with which to fill the greedy beaks, and during their enforced absence the Swallows returned in force, threw the nestlings out, and demolished the home. The Sparrows sought other quarters, and the Swallows triumphantly built a new nest on the ruins of the old. A German writer relates a case of revolting reprisal on the part of some Swallows against a Sparrow which appropriated their nest and refused to quit. After repeated failure to evict the intruder, the Swallows, helped by other members of the colony, calmly plastered up the front door so effectually that the unfortunate Sparrow was walled up alive and died of hunger. This refined mode of torture is not unknown in the history of mankind, but seems singularly unsuited to creatures so fragile. C. A. Thomas.

How a Bottle Makes a Useful Water Fountain.

Interesting Variation of an Old Idea.

Sir,—The sketch shows a bottle fountain for an aviary. Tie a piece of string around bottle, with a loop as shown in drawing. Adjust another piece of string or wire so that when the bottle is hung from the roof it will be just clear from the bottom of a plate placed underneath. Cut a piece of stick so that it projects a little when put into the bottle (if you want an inch of water let it project one inch). Fill the bottle with water, and partially fill the plate; then insert the stick and turn the bottle upside down into the water. The water in the plate will keep fresh, and at the same level as long as there is any in the bottle. W. Purves.

The Cultivation of Wild Plants for Cage Birds

By R. MORSE (Hitchin).

SECTION 2: PERENNIAL PLANTS.

THE plants to be dealt with in this article differ from those which have received consideration in earlier numbers of Cage Birds, in that they do not die completely away at the approach of winter. The stems and leaves may in most, if not all, cases die down to the level of the ground, but the roots persist, to burst forth into growth with renewed vigour in the following spring. It will thus be seen that those who have but little time at their disposal can make one sowing suffice for several years, if the proper species be chosen.

Most perennial plants thrive better if their roots are divided—or at any rate transplanted into a fresh situation—about every three years. This operation may be performed in the autumn, after the crop of seeds has been gathered, or early in the following spring before the new season's growth has commenced. It may be interesting to note that most perennial weeds can be safely removed from the field to the garden without injury. Indeed, many cultivators prefer this method on account of its greater simplicity, and also because mature plants producing larger crops can be secured in a much shorter space of time.

Take these "Tips" when Transplanting.

As a general rule, it must never be forgotten that perennials should not be transplanted during their flowering seasons, or a great check to their growth is likely to result, and the entire crop of plants may be lost. Further, transplanting should not be carried out when frosty weather is probable, or the plants may die before being able to accommodate themselves to their new surroundings. A few additional notes on this subject will be given under the individual plants, where necessary. Perhaps it should be mentioned here that the method of transplanting which is often so convenient in the case of perennial plants, is practically valueless where annuals are concerned. As was mentioned in a former article, hardy annuals seldom bear transplanting well, and as they all die at the end of their first fruiting season, one is practically never repaid for the trouble taken.

Although a richly manured soil is undesirable in the cultivation of almost all wild plants, soils which are extremely poor, or sour, will not produce good crops. A detailed discussion of soils and manuring would be out of place here, but it may be of interest to some readers to know that a light dressing of lime is an excellent remedy for sour soils; and that a pinch or two of saltpetre sprinkled round each root is a valuable stimulant for plants which appear stunted in growth, or lacking a healthy appearance. Excess is to be most carefully guarded against.

Those who grow perennials from seeds will find that in most cases the plants will mature much more readily if transplanted from the seed beds to their permanent situations as soon as large enough to handle conveniently. Although the plants will mature where sown, if properly thinned out and cared for, yet in the majority of cases one is amply repaid for the extra trouble taken in transplanting them as suggested above.

An Elegant and Useful Couple.

The Great Knapweed (Centaurea scabiosa) is a stout plant about three feet in height, bearing large, crimson, ornamental flowers; and as each specimen increases in size year by year, ample room must be allowed. If the plants become overcrowded after a year or two, some should be thinned out and transplanted elsewhere. For the first season, about a foot or so should be allowed for each plant, but later on considerably more room may be required. The drills should be not more than half an inch deep (the seeds being covered with fine soil), and the rows some fifteen inches apart. Seeds may be sown at any time from April to August, June being a very suitable month. The plant is common in dry pastures and by waysides, from which places its roots may be safely removed to the garden during the month of September. It is always advisable when transplanting to retain a fair quantity of soil round the roots of the plants, and to water them freely at first if the weather be at all dry. A white-flowered variety may sometimes be met with, which is a distinctly ornamental plant.

Common Quaking-Grass (Briza media) commonly reaches a height of about a foot, and on account of its light and graceful appearance, is of a decidedly elegant nature, and very useful for associating with cut flowers for table decoration. It is a common grass in dry pastures and on downs, where it is in flower during June and July. Those who wish to grow it from seed may sow the latter in shallow drills at any time from April to July, giving only a light covering of fine soil, on account of the small size of the seeds. The rows need be only a few inches apart, as the plants do not require much room, and if the seed be sown thinly, perhaps no weeding out may be necessary. Cultivators who wish to remove the plants from their natural habitat into the garden should search the situations above indicated during July and August, carefully uplifting with a small trowel such plants as appear to have matured, and retaining a ball of soil round each clump of roots. Quaking-Grass will not succeed in shady situations.

Two Fragrant Flowers.

The Wallflower (Cheiranthus cheiri), although frequently occurring in a wild state on old walls and such-like places, is not generally considered a native species. It commonly attains a height of from one to two feet, and is in bloom from April to June, its masses of flowers giving off the well-known pleasant fragrance. In cultivation the wallflower is best treated as a biennial; that is, the seed should be sown every year. This should be done in early summer, when the seeds may be scattered broadcast in prepared beds, and lightly covered with fine soil. As soon as large enough to handle, the plants should be transplanted, or weak, straggling plants will result. Later on they may be finally removed to where they are required to flower, about a foot or more being allowed from plant to plant. Wallflowers delight in a sunny situation, and a rich soil is quite unsuitable for their culture. It is generally best to discard the old plants after the crop of seed has been gathered, though some gardeners propagate this plant by means of cuttings, or slips, which take root readily in a light, sandy soil, and after standing the winter, make nice strong plants for flowering the next season.

A Liking for Moist Places.

The Meadowsweet (Spiræa ulmaria) is a common plant in moist places, and by river sides, where its masses of creamy-white, fragrant flowers are in their beauty during almost the whole of the summer months. It is a tall, strong plant, from two to four feet in height, and requires a good deal of room for its full development. It is of little use to attempt the cultivation of the meadowsweet unless a very moist spot, such as a river-bank, or lake-side, be available. In such situations it is really elegant, and strong plants removed from their natural habitat during early autumn will readily establish themselves under favourable conditions. If desirable to grow from seed, the latter may be sown from April to July, the young plants being transplanted when large enough, in order to prevent their being drawn up unnaturally, and finally removed to their permanent situation in early autumn, so that they may become well rooted before winter sets in. (To be continued.)

RUTLAND C.B.S.

Annual show held in Lime Kilns Field, Oakham, Aug. 4. Entries were disappointing in number, but some grand birds were on view. If the cage bird section is to be a success, it should in future be advertised in CAGE BIRDS several weeks prior to the show. The day was an ideal one for the occasion, and a willing and hard-working committee looked after the wants of the birds. Mr. W. P. Barnes, Grantham, judged, and his awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

DUBMIRE WORKMEN'S CLUB C.B.S.

Third annual N.F. show held July 26, Club Hall, which is an ideal place, being well lighted, well aired, and free from draughts. Mr. G. T. Lynn, the new secretary, (Mr. B. Robinson having resigned), had everything in good order, and was ably supported by a fine body of fanciers, headed by their genial chairman, Mr. J. Fenton, and committee, D. Hann, J. Atkinson, T. Stokeld, M. Dixon, J. Lowery, W. Finlay. Fine weather favoured the show, which we hope will soon be one of the best in the district. Mr. A. J. Notley, Hetton Downs, judged, and gave every satisfaction.

NOR. CL., ETC., YELL.: 1, Atkinson, grand young bird, good head and neck, fine qual. and col.; 2, Fenton, good shape, nice col., not so good in wing carr.; 3, Lowery, beaten in size, nice deep col. BUFF: 1, Atkinson, good one all over, good subs., neat head and lovely qual.; 2, hc, Fenton, lovely shape, short and cobby, scarcely the subs. of leader; 3, vhc, Fletcher, nice col., neat head, loses in size. BORD.: 1, 3, Fletcher, cl. yell., sweet one all over, good col., and qual., grand wing and tail carr.; 2, Fenton, nice shape, good carr., loses in col.; 3rd very similar to 2nd in shape and col. A.O.V.: 1, Fletcher, Green Nor., grand bird, one of the best Greens seen for some time; 2, Fenton, Yorks., grand bird, good position, slim, nicely tapered; 3, Lowery, green Nor., good bird, loses in col.; vhc, Black. BRIT.: 1, vhc, hc, Robinson, Greenie, grand shape and size for a yell., shown in the pink; 2, Finlay, Linnet, good, nicely pencilled; 3, Dixon, Greenie, good big bird. FOR.: 1, 2, 3, Lynn.—B. Robinson.

BISHOP AUCKLAND C.B.S.

The above society is evidently intent upon gaining for itself a position amongst the premier societies of the North, and being possessed by a true fancier's spirit, and in the hands of most capable management, it is pretty certain that the ambition will be realised. Formed a few months only, it has already a membership of half a hundred—keen fanciers to a man. The birds on show would have graced the tables of a society of maturer age in the Fancy. Yorkshire and Nor. classes were well filled, the buffs in each section being a remarkably fine lot. The wing-marked buff Yorks. owned by Mr. Walton, which took first, is a gem, being packed full of quality, while the buff Norwich owned by another novice, Mr. Wilson, is a real good one, and will be heard of again. This bird took first and special; special in Crests was taken by Mr. Ridley. Brownson and Hornsby took special for most points, Burns and Collingwood being runners-up. The society is most fortunate in securing Mr. Elliott as sec., he having already earned for himself the confidence and goodwill of all. Mr. Nattrass judged, and his awards were received with general satisfaction.

YORKS., YELL.: 1, 3, Watson, good long bird, wins in size, 3rd wing mkd.; 2, vhc, Brownson and Hornsby, nice tkd. yell., little shorter; r, hc, c, Crowther. BUFF: 1, sp, Walton, wing mkd., very promising, easily beats Yorks. in show; 2, 3, c, Moore, 2nd good one, not quite the length of winner, 3rd good shape, little on small side; r, Button; vhc, Dodds; hc, Brownson and Hornsby. NOR., YELL.: 1, 3, vhc, hc, Burns and Collingwood, 1st big cobby Nor., plenty of subs., 3rd good col. and feather; 2, Brownson and Hornsby, taking youngster, not fully grown, or might have gone up; r, Elliott. BUFF: 1, sp, hc, Wilson, good exhibit, plenty of subs., with type, fine feather and qual.; 2, r, vhc, Brownson and Hornsby, 2nd seems very young, little down in size, but full of qual.; 3, (name not given—Ed.), lot of substance, not so short, crosses wings a little; c, Ross. CREST: 1, Ridley, nice Crest, good shape, rather small; 2, Ridley, loses in size here; 3, Oughton, bird with best body subs., and good crest, but not so well staged. C.B.: 1, Oughton, rattling good one, plenty of width, good turnover, wealth of feather, promises well; 2, Ridley, much smaller. A.O.V.: 1, 2, no name, 1st nice cinnamon Bord., 2nd cl. Bord.; 3, 4, Robson, Budgerigars. BRIT.: 1, Britton, real good Linnet, good size and col., nicely mkd., 2nd Goldf., good col., bit small, 3rd Bullfinch.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULES.

Troon and Loans (Ayrshire).—Aug. 30, Unionist Hall, Troon. Judge, Mr. J. McLay. 19 open classes: Scotch Fancy 2, Nor. 2, Bord. 4, Brit. 6, Mules 2, For. 1, Sell. 1, Gift 1. Prizes, 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d., Fee, 1s. 6d. Ent. close Aug. 26, to A. Shaw, 1, Fullarton Terrace.

Holmfirth (Yorks).—Aug. 23. Judge, Mr. C. R. Hampshire. Two classes: Can. 1, Brit. 1. Prizes, 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s. Fee, 6d. Ent. close Aug. 16, to L. Sykes, Holmfirth.

Abergwili (S. Wales).—Aug. 28. National School. Judge, Mr. O. E. Hodge. Two classes, Brit. 1, Can. 1. Prizes, 3s., 2s. Fee, 6d. Ent. close Aug. 21 to T. Dempster, Dolgwilli, Carmarthen.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

TONG C.B.S.

Members' show held Aug. 2 Hand and Shuttle Inn, Dudley Hill, 62 birds were staged and well judged by Mr. L. Dykes, Bolton Woods.

MATLOCK F.S.

Annual Y.B. show in the show room of Mr. J. W. Waterfall, of Matlock (kindly lent for the occasion). Mr. Nutt, Clay Cross, judged, and gave satisfaction. The show was followed by a meeting, at which Mr. J. C. Barnes, of Sheffield, was selected to judge cage birds at the annual open show, Oct. 30th, which will also be a CAGE BIRDS coupon show.

NOR. CL. TKD. OR VARIEG. YELL. (5): 1, sp, 3, Dean; 2, res, Lill; vhc, Buxton. BUFF (12): 1, 2, 3, ex 3, vhc, Bean; res, Woolley; hc, Wain; c, Lill. YORKS.: 1, Wain. Specials offered by Mr. G. Poyser for best bird in show and by Mr. Nutt for best Norwich were won by Mr. J. Dean. Messrs. Slater and Boden, chairman and vice-chairman, were also the donors of cash prizes. The show was a success financially, and whilst the exhibits hardly reached the number of previous years, quality was very much in excess; the judge complimenting the exhibitors on the quality, also condition in which the birds were staged.—G. Poyser, hon. sec.

INVERNESS O.S.

Annual Y.B. show held July 26th Crown Mission Hall, Washington Court. The show was a decided success, there being over eighty entries, which considering the very poor breeding season in the "capital of the Highlands" was very satisfactory. The youngsters were deep in the moult, especially Crests, Crestbreds, and Yorks. Mr. John Connochie, the new sec., along with a band of willing workers had everything in good order, which augurs well for our show in Nov. Mr. K. McLean, Forres, judged, and his awards were well received. Special for best Crest of C.B. was won by Mr. R. McGregor with a Green Crest, best Nor., Mr. McDonald Beauly, with a nice well-balanced yellow cock; best Yorks., Mr. Junor, with a nice lengthy yellow cock; best Border, E. Chisholm, with a buff cock, which will be heard of later on; best Mule or Hybrid, Junor, Tomatin, with a Canary Bullie Hybrid, a beauty; best British, J. Duncan, a lovely Goldfinch. Some very nice British were staged and a second lot of winners could easily have been chosen, there being 17 in the class. Borders here in the north have come to stay, and nice teams were shown by Messrs. Simpson, Connochie, Chisholm, Falconer. Mules or Hybrids were a nice lot.

CREST OR C.B.: 1, sp, McGregor, G.C., a bit rough but will improve; 2, 3, Todd, nice clear body body and D.C., good heavy bird, but deep in moult, 3rd a beauty of a Green C.B., unfortunately minus a tail. YORKS. YELL.: 1, 2, Junor, nice lengthy birds, will be looking for them later on in Nov.; 3, Smith, nice bird, lacks length of winners. BUFF: 1, 2, Junor; 3, Smith, a baby, will improve. BORD. YELL.: (9): 1, 2, 3, Simpson, a bonnie team, the envy of the show, well shown. BUFF.: 1, sp, Chisholm, nice Border, well put down, plenty life; 2, 3, Smith, nice brace, not much to choose from, close up to winner. YELL. NOR: 1, 2, sp, 1st nice yell., Bully type, lovely head, wins well, 2nd varieg., fails in body, hardly up in condition; 3, Hutchison, nice yell. cl., well shown. BUFF.: 1, 2, 3, Hutchison, not much to choose from, really a nice trio. MULE OR HYB.: 1, Junor, a beauty, Canary-Bullie, will be heard of later; 2, 3, Duncan, a pair of varieg. Goldie Mules, monsters considering their age, much admired. BRIT. (17) The largest class in the show: 1, 2, Duncan, 1st Goldfinch, beauty for col. and tannings, wins well, 2nd Siskin, clinker, black cap and bib, shown in tip-top condition; 3, Chisholm, Greenfinch, one of the largest we have seen; 4, Harcombe.

ANFIELD AND EVERTON C.B.S

N.F. show held July 26, in Mission Hall, Priory Grove, Everton. An entry of 96 cast great credit on the management; quality was very high. Greens were acknowledged to be the best seen out for years. Being shown by the novices, this speaks well for the Green Fancy during the coming season. The foul yellow owned by Mr. Fairclough Jones was a smasher, and easily carried away the best bird sp. Other sp. winners were: Champ.: Best cl. Yorks., Rawsthorne; green Yorks., W. Bell; Nor., J. Cooper. Novice: Cl. Yorks., M. E. Wilson; Green, Fairclough Jones; Tkd., D. Steinart; vhc, Mullen; Nor., Poole. The secs., Messrs. W. Walker and Redpath, shaped like old hands. Prize money and specials were paid out during the afternoon. Plenty of visitors turned up, so everything points to a financial success. Mr. T. Rowlands judged, and gave entire satisfaction.

YORK., CL. YELL.: 1, Rawsthorne, fine upstanding exhibit, rare shape, well filled in neck, breaking into moult; 2, 3, Huyton, not big ones, but exceptional qual. and type. BUFF: 1, Rawsthorne, looks like a yell. hen, capital feather, extra good legs and wing carr.; 2, Huyton, small, but shapely. YELL. VARIEG.: 1, Bush and Burns, very racy, capital feather, neat legs and wings, well put down; 2, Poole, lovely type, grand qual.; 3, Huyton; vhc, Cooper. BUFF: 1, 2, Parsons, winner looks like a hen, if so, a good one, 2nd big one, just trifle loose in feather, good stock bird; 3, Bush and Burns; vhc, Cooper. YORKS., GR., SELF YELL.: 1, hc, W. Bell, great length, lovely pencilling, good shoulders and legs; 2, 3, Parson typical birds, grand tone of col., and well benched; vhc, Rawsthorne; c, Cooper. BUFF: 1, 2, W. Bell, monsters, and good feathers with it, well pencilled; 3, Parson, good style, bright tone of col.; vhc, Rawsthorne. FOUL YELL.: 1, 3, Bell, nice exhibit, straight and well up on pins, capital col. and lacing; 2, Parsons, polished like marble, wonderful feather and cond.; vhc, Cooper. NOR. YELL.: 1, 2, Cooper, neat birds, rare feather and cond.; 3, Jos. Cooper, capital feather. BUFF: 1, Jos. Cooper, bonny size, capital col. and feather; 2, Walker, all there for type, lovely qual., well staged. FOUL YELL.: 1, 3, Walker, good size and col., capital type; 2, Poole, nice size, but broken in moult. BUFF: 1, 2, Poole, neat and stylish, bit weak in head; 3, Redpath, capital type, glorious feather; vhc Walker. BORD., GR.: 1, Leatherbarrow, smart, full of go, sweet contour; 2, Redpath, capital col. NOV. YORKS., CL. YELL.: 1, Wilson, topper for style, straight as a gun barrel, put down like an old hand; 2, 3, Rothwell, 2nd wonderful feather, ran winner very close, should make up well, 3rd full of nerve, shows plenty of daylight; vhc, c, Steinart; hc, Redpath. BUFF: 1, 2, Mullen, full of swank, nice pair of legs, good wings and tail; 3, vhc, Evans, lovely qual., neat wings well braced up; hc, Trafford; c, Rothwell. TKD. YELL.: 1, 3, Steinart, Bootle and C.C.A winner, very smart type, capital wings and tail, fails a bit in head and neck, or would be a "flyer"; 2, Rothwell, very smart, ran winner close, nice feather; vhc, Wilson; hc, Poole. BUFF: 1, Wilson, round as a bottle, capital qual.; 2, Poole, varieg., lovely type and qual., neat legs and tail; 3, Redpath. YORKS., GR., SELF, YELL.: 1, 3, Mullen, capital brace, nice shade of col., 3rd bit short on leg; 2, Kelly, all there for col. and markings, neat wings and tail; vhc, Jones; hc, Redpath. BUFF: 1, vhc, Mullen, neat pair, bit on the small side; 2, Jones, capital style and feather, shapely; 3, Steinart, rare length and style; hc, Evans; c, Jones. FOUL YELL.: 1, 2, Fairclough Jones, real topper, straight as a soldier, lovely feather, knows its business, 2nd bit thicker, capital col.; 3, vhc, Evans, real stormer, runs winner close, but for a slip heel; hc, Mullen. BUFF: 1, Wilson, straight from head to tail, glorious feather; 2, Kelly, beauty, should make a good stock bird, full of Yorks. properties; 3, Poole, very smart, neat head and tail; vhc, Redpath; hc, Evans. GREENF.: 1, Rothwell, rare skull and size; 2, Redpath.

EDINBURGH C.B.S.

Annual Y.B. show held in Cairns' Memorial Hall, Gorgie Road, Aug. 2, about 80 birds were staged—a very good turnout indeed. Quality in the Norwich and Border sections was well to the fore, and some grand competition is to be looked for later. Mr. J. F. Dewar judged, and his awards were well received.

SITTINGBOURNE C.B.S.

Annual Y.B. show held July 28, 63 exhibits were staged. Quality in all sections was exceedingly good. In Norwich some very good youngsters were on view, and in Yorks. Mr. Olive had matters all his own way, securing 1st in each class. In British Mr. E. Stevens had a good collection, while in Foreign Mr. J. Jacobs was seen to advantage. Mr. C. Conway, Maidstone, judged.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES C.B.S.

Y.B. held Aug. 2 in Good Templars' Hall, Ingram Street. The entry was not quite so good as on former occasions, as although some of our members have done exceedingly well, others report nothing doing. Norwich were the mainstay of the show, some very fine quality birds being staged, a number of them very promising. Special for best Canary was won by Mr. A. McFarlane with a Buff Varieg. cock of exceptional merit, good size, head and front, and rich in qual. Borders were only fair, still some fine quality birds were among them, the tkd. yell. cock bred by Mr. J. M. Edwards being worthy of special mention, also his Linnet-Canary Mule, sp for best in section, a bird of good size, shape, and col., should moult out a topper. We heard of several other Mules being bred by members, but too young for showing. Mr. R. Jeffrey (Pollockshields) judged, and his awards were well received. He was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. CL. NOR.: 1, 3, 7, sp, Findlay, yell. hen, fine type and qual., and a good yell. cock; 2, G. CANARY AND C.B. IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

Special Report by Mr. Alexander Thomson, late of Aberdeen.

Seventh annual show held in St. George's Hall, Newtown, Sydney, May 22, 23, and 24. Friends in Scotland will be interested to hear that the Fancy in Australia is about the same as at home. The same old squabbles, jealousies, "wrong judging," opposition societies, etc. Mostly all think they should win, but, just as at home, there is only one winner in a class, although there may be twenty prospective ones staged, each in the exhibitor's eye fit to win. There was a fair turnout of exhibits, 350 odd being staged, their merits in many cases exceptionally good. The officials, with Mr. H. J. Hawes as secretary, managed the affair in excellent style. Scotch Fancies were judged by Mr. J. J. Currah; Yorks by Mr. H. W. Terry, and Crests and C.B. classes by Mr. Currah, who, in the absence of Mr. Joyce, also judged the P.H. classes, and all seemed to give general satisfaction. The 5-guinea cup, presented by Mr. Mearthy, for most points, to be won outright in any one section of Canaries, was won by Mr. Miller; special for best Yorks., Mr. W. Fraser; 3-guinea challenge trophy, for best in show, Mr. Robson, with a clear buff cock of outstanding merit, the runner-up being Mr. Miller's cl. yell. cock; special best clnn., Mr. Douglas; and best Crest or C.B., Mr. Trevall. The challenge shield, presented by Mr. McPherson, for most successful exhibitor in wild birds, or, as they style them here, "cage birds," was won by Mr. Taylor. The trophy presented by Mr. Taylor for the most successful exhibitor in cage birds who had never won a first prize, was won by Mrs. Gorman, and special for hottest-fed bird, presented by Mr. A. Thomson, by Mr. Saunders, with bis var. buff cock, a very level coloured bird, and as colour-feeding is only in its infancy here yet, his exhibit was of exceptional merit.

The Critique.

SCOTCH FY. (4): 1, 2, 3, 4, W. Orr, 1st cl. yell., very typical, fine shoulder, good head, good size, splendid drive, 2nd yell. varieg. beauty, grand shoulders, well set up, decided drive, full of nerve, must have pressed, 3rd also varieg., not up to size of 1 and 2, 4th rather on small side. YORKS., CL. OR TKD. YELL. (11): 1, Miller, grizzle cap, nice head and shoulders, well filled back, wings well laid, grand length, good position, well piped tail; 2, Miller, cl. yell., straight as a gun barrel, perfect in feather, grand length of side, beaten only in size; 3, Fraser, capital feather and colour, erect, good length, and plenty of leg, but lacks a little in style; 4, Miller, well set up; 5, Fraser; 6, Howard. BUFF (9): 1, sp, 3, 6, Miller, 1st nice exhibit, perfect in position, length, lovely back, flights, and tail, well on leg, staged to perfection; 2, Fraser, beautiful feather, stands like guardsman, good col., great length, a good one; 3, Miller, good one all over, grand quality, rare wings and tail, like pipe stem; 4, Fraser; 5, Cromley; 6, Miller. VAR. GR. OR YELL. (10): 1, Cromley, cap and wing mkd., nice head and neck, charming position, great length, polished like marble, regular gem; 2, 3, 6, Miller, 2nd a green, feathered to perfection, shows well, grand back and wing carr., well folded tail, must have pressed hard, 3rd varieg., well laid wings and tail, good length and size, well filled back; 4, Fraser, nice exhibit, well staged; 5, Inglis. BUFF (8): 1, 3, 4, 5, Miller, nicely balanced all over, grand style, wins, 3rd good length and position, grand qual., shows plenty of leg; 2, Cromley, straight as a rush, smooth as a bottle, capital col. and feather, plenty of thigh, not far behind, 4th also a very typical Yorkie; 6, Pinfold. 1912 COCK OR HEN (10): 1, 3, 5, 6, Miller, 1st res. for Yorks. trophy, grand position, long and narrow, shows well, grand back and wing carr., well folded tail, good one, 3rd also good one, nice quality feather, good style and col.; 2, Cromley, good pos. and qual., good style, best of backs, grand wing carr.; 4, Fraser, little gem, must have made a good bid for better place, beaten only in size. SELL., YORKS., 50s. (a difference from home selling prices) (9): 1, Fraser; 2, 3, 4, 6, Miller; 5, Pinfold. YORKS. HEN (7): 1, sp, Fraser, cl. yell., beauty, full of nerve, not a feather misplaced, grand back, flights, and tail, not a big one, but a good one, champion Yorks. section, and well placed, too; 2, 5, Miller, 2nd buff, good pos., not so neat as winner, but a good one, shows well; 3, 6, Cromley, capital feather and col., erect, good length, plenty leg; 4, Fraser, gem, but on small side. NOR., CL. OR TKD. YELL. (11): 1, sp, 5, Miller, res. for trophy, good size, thick, well placed wings, opens a little in front, but real Bullfinch type, grand col.; 2, Thompson, nice cobby bird, good col., type, and style, bit rough on left thigh; 3, Saunders, well proportioned, good head, crosses wings a bit, smaller than winners; 4, Robson, very typical; 6, Adams. BUFF (11): 1, sp, Robson, real topper, winner of trophy for best in show, well proportioned, nice round chest, a thing that is not always to be found in Australian birds, which are inclined to be pouter-chested, which always breaks the feather, grand head and neck, wings placed to perfection, short tail, short all over, thick and cobby, could win in any company; 2, Russell, good qual., short, thick, bit inclined to hug perch; 3, Beattie, on small side, and rather slim; 4, Saunders; 5, Neale; 6, Miller; No. 92 unplaced, good head, chest, nicely rounded, short and thick, might have been well placed. (Your envelope was unstamped, and we were surcharged twopence postage.—Ed.)

CROYDON F.A.

Young stock show held Public Hall, Croydon, July 30. The entry was good, particularly in Yorks, but no doubt the lateness of the date affected the numbers considerably, many of the exhibits being far advanced in the moult. Mr. Mudd's winner in the varieg. Yorks was much admired for size and type, as was Mr. Truelove's mkd. yell., a very stylish bird, close up with the winner. Although not very numerous, Norwich were of good quality. Mr. Saunders, of Sutton, staged a good team. His wing mkd. buff won sp for best in show rather easily. He also staged a nice team of Borders. The show was well attended by visitors. Mr. Capell, the sec., had everything in order, in his usual able manner. Mr. H. Norman judged.

NOR. YELL.: 1, 3, Saunders; 2, r, Broughton. BUFF: 1, 2, 3, hc, Saunders; vhc, Boughton; c, Britton. YORKS YELL.: 1, Mudd; 2, Whiting; 3, Britton; vhc, Lisney. BUFF: 1, vhc, Britton; 2, Whiting; 3, hc, Truelove; c, Mudd. TKD. OR VARIEG.: 1, c, Mudd; 2, vhc, Truelove; 3, Lisney; hc, Whiting. BORD.: 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, c, Saunders. HYB.: 1, 2, Pain. Linnet and Greenf.-Can.

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which me must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clap-nets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. "PHOSTO"

Don't begin moulting without "Phosto." Don't give your birds tonics and medicines which do no good; give them "Phosto," which will build up the whole system, and enable them to stand the strain of moulting. Don't wait until your birds show signs of softness, start at once to build them up. "Phosto" is a great food, which has now become famous. Give a little with the colour food. A shilling may save you pounds. Don't forget, "Phosto" improves size, and don't forget the name. Sold in tins, 1/-, 2/6, 4/6.—Judge Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

HOUSE'S Canary Manual, 1/2, by C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds- a compendium of knowledge: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

DO you know just what benefit you are deriving from your hobby? It is necessary to keep some account, and it may be kept in the most compact and handy form if you use, "The Stock Book, and Breeding-room Register," compiled by G. E. Weston; this makes bird-breeding easy. In addition to all that is required to enable the breeder to see at a glance how he stands, there are many hints for times of emergency. Price 7d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

SOMETHING WITH A MEANING

The following should be important to all intending purchasers of Canaries, and speaks for itself; it is merely one more proof given (amongst many continually being received) that I possess what I offer, and give value for money: Putney, August, 1913.—Birds arrived quite safe. I think it a great thing to be able to depend upon a man like yourself. Will highly recommend you. Harry Mawhill to W. Rudd. Great value for money. Prize-bred Norwich or Yorkshire cocks, 1913, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6 upwards; hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/6; pairs, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6 10/6; adults cocks, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; hens, 2/6, 3/6, 5/-; cages, 3d. Don't be deluded by the so-called Roller, etc., cocks, at 2/6 and 3/6, etc., they are all hens. See my extended August list with this hen trick exposed before you are tempted by the "land sharks":

A Hidden Danger in the Plumage Bill.

Notes by the Secretary of "Cage Birds League."

The Importation of Plumage (Prohibition) Bill, presented by Mr. Hobhouse and supported by Mr. S. Buxton and Mr. Montagu was read a first time on the 4th inst.

With the Bill, so far as it relates to the matter indicated in its title, we have, as bird keepers, little or no concern, but a copy of the Bill which I have obtained shows that it goes very far beyond its title, and contains matter which is of vital importance to us.

Clause 4 of the Bill reads as follows:—"An order may be made by the Secretary of State, the Secretary for Scotland, or the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, under sections eight and nine of the Wild Bird Protection Act, 1880, and sections two and three of the Wild Birds Protection Act, 1894, and section one of the Wild Birds' Protection Act, 1896, which give powers with reference to the protection of wild birds and their eggs, without any application or representation from the council of any county or borough."

This clause in the Bill is entirely foreign to its title, but if the Bill is passed as printed the result will be that after the tenth day of January next it will be in the power of the three ministers named to prohibit the taking of any wild bird throughout England, Scotland, or Ireland respectively, and that without even being asked to do so. Things are bad enough, and absurd enough, as it is, it being open already for any local authority, with or without any knowledge of the subject, to get upon application an extension of the acts named above, with the result that the bird laws vary locally throughout practically every county in Great Britain and Ireland.

It is now calmly proposed that one politician without being asked by anyone, should be able to render illegal the taking of any bird whatever. Could anything be more ridiculous? But there is the clause, and this will be the effect if the section, which is tacked on to a bill which professedly applies only to the importation of the dead plumage of foreign birds, be not amended out of that bill.

I understand from Mr. Trower, who is one of the committee appointed by the Bird-keepers' Protection Society in connection with the National British Bird and Mule Club, that a letter has been sent to the Secretary of State calling his attention to the petition which was long ago presented, and asking him to receive a deputation, and I will refer further to the matter next week.

A Pertinent Question.

A member of CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, referring to my notes of last week, asks me the following conundrum: "Does Curry spell Grundy?" Mrs. Grundy we all know as a busy-body who has something nasty to say about everything of which she personally disapproves, and the question needs no answer from me. I would, however, take the opportunity of saying that the name of the lady mentioned last week should have been printed "Currey" not "Curry." I regret having omitted to correct the printer's error.

A League Member Dead.

On another page will be seen with regret the announcement of the sad death of a prominent member of the Portsmouth and Southern Counties C.B.S., Mr. T. Chiefe. Mr. Chiefe was one of the oldest members of CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, and I am sure that fellow members will join me in a sincere expression of condolence with the widow and orphans who are left to mourn his untimely end through an accident occurring in the course of his duty. Mr. Chiefe leave a widow and six young children, and the Portsmouth Society is making a collection on their behalf.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

How to become an Associate.

MANY readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

THE BIRD LOVER'S PLEDGE.

I hereby promise to take every care of my feathered pets and to induce others to do the same

Twitterings.

We hear from Mr. J. Weir, sec., that the open table show of the Coaltown of Wemyss C.B.S. will be held on Sept. 27.

Will the members of the Dubmire Workmen's Club C.B.S., writes Mr. Geo. T. Lynn, Sec., please note the change in meeting day from Sunday to Saturday

Mr. B. M. Clark, Fox Hill, Radstock, Sec. Radstock F.A., asks us to notify that he will take entries up to first post Aug. 18, for the annual show, held Aug 20.

Owing to a great many of our members being away on their holidays, writes Mr. F. Moore, hon. sec. Metropolitan C.B.A., the August meeting has been cancelled.

Mr. A. Martin, hon. sec., Lancs. and Lizard F.A., 119, Buckstone's Road, Crompton Fold, Shaw, near Oldham, wishes us to say that he is prepared to receive applications from show secretaries for the patronage of the Association.

Ramsden's Pure Peppers are, without doubt, the finest, both in colour and quality possible to procure. Fanciers wishing to obtain the best results in colour-feeding their birds should use no other. Sold in tins only, with full guarantee of purity.—Advt.

There are still three dates vacant for the patronage of the Southern Border Fancy Club, writes Mr. F. Moore, hon. sec., 49, Kelmscott Rd., Clapham Junction, S.W., and societies wishing to receive the same should apply not later than August 27.

Special arrangements are being made by the Sheffield O.S. at their meeting on August 19, for the lantern lecture "Through Camera and Field Glass," by Mr. G. Fletcher. No expense, we hear, has been spared in procuring the best and most interesting slides.

At a committee meeting of the Kent County C.B.A., held July 31, writes Mr. H. Wood, hon. sec., it was decided to give patronage to the Gillingham and District, Oct. 9, 10; Deal and Walmer, Oct. 29 30; Dover F. and F., Nov. 5, 6; Canterbury F.S., Dec. 10, 11. Will members please note rule 7.

We have been, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, hon. sec., Cheltenham C.B.S., fortunate in securing the use of the Rotunda for our annual show in November. It is very well suited for the purpose, being well lighted both by day and night, and is situated at the top of our beautiful promenade.

I am sorry to inform you, writes Mr. J. Gerrard, that the Bolton C.B.S. has had to cancel its show. I have been sick since May, and now the doctor has ordered me away. The society could not obtain another secretary, and so the members decided to abandon the show. Personally it is a blow, but I could not keep on.

Mr. F. S. Matthes, hon. sec., Southern Norwich P.C., writes:—"Kindly receive result of voting for patronage given to the following clubs: Champion section: 8 votes, Clapham show, Oct. 8-9, 1913; 7, Wimbledon, Oct. 21-22; 9, Cheltenham, Nov. 5-6; 6, Leyton, Nov. 13-14; 7, Cardiff, Nov. 19-20; 8, L.C.B.A., Nov. 27-29. Novice section: Clapham, Wimbledon, Leyton and L.C.B.A. shows."

We are asked to notify the following changes of address: Mr. J. Weir, sec., Coaltown of Wemyss C.B.S., to 42, West March St., Sinclairtown, Kirkcaldy; Mr. W. Reid, from Plantation Rd. to 4, Edward St., Pallion, Sunderland; Mr. A. Martin, hon. sec., Lancs. and Lizard F.A., to 119, Buckstone's Rd., Crompton Fold, Shaw, nr. Oldham; Mr. L. James, hon. sec., Burslem C.B.S., from Pleasant St. to 48, Croft St., Burslem.

To Society Secretaries, and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used

Secretaries of open and confined shows, writes Mr. J. Brown, 599, Duke Street, Glasgow, Sec. Scottish Plainhead Club, are requested to note that applications for club patronage must be in my hands by 30th inst. Members are reminded that subs. are now due and should be paid as early as possible. Prospective members wishing to compete for the Club's trophies should write for particulars.

N.P.C. Show Cancelled.

Owing to Bolton show falling through, the Norwich Plainhead Club is in a little difficulty over its club show, which had been apportioned this fixture. Societies willing to conform to the N.P.C.'s conditions should write to Mr. Hopkins at once (note his letter in our correspondence columns).

White Canaries Honoured.

We learn that the authorities of the Natural History Museum, South Kensington, have accepted a White Canary, and mounted it in one of their cases of specimens, alongside of it being placed a copy of the coloured plate of White Canaries which was issued some little time ago by CAGE BIRDS. This particular White Canary was presented by Mr. W. Kiesel (Pentonville Road, London) who, as readers of our journal will well know, has been one of the most successful breeders and exhibitors of the new variety, staging the 1st specimen seen at the Crystal Palace Shows—the bird that was the sensation of the "Jubilee" exhibition there. Several of our present-day leading scientists have taken a great interest in Mr. Kiesel's stud of birds.

OBITUARY.

Mr. C. Cross (Macclesfield).

It is with sincere regret, writes Mr. F. Broadhurst, hon. sec. Macclesfield C.B.S., that I inform you of the death of Mr. C. Cross, who was one of the founders of our society, and one whom we shall sadly miss, being one of the practical workers whom we can ill spare. The members wish to express their sympathy to his family in their sad bereavement.

Mr. T. Cliefe (Portsmouth).

It is with sincerest regret, write: Messrs. King and Joiner, that we notify you the loss of a much respected member of Portsmouth and S.C. C.B.S., in the person of Mr. Tom Cliefe, who met with a shocking accident at Portsmouth Town Station, on Aug. 2, being accidentally crushed. He was conveyed to Portsmouth Hospital, where it was discovered necessary to amputate a leg. From shock, etc., poor Tom passed away August 5. He leaves a wife and six young children to mourn his loss. We are sure that readers will unite with members of P. & S.C. C.B.S. in sincerest sympathy with the bereaved, under such exceptionally sad circumstances. The deceased was a very enthusiastic member, and much respected by all. The sad accident was announced at a committee meeting, 5th inst. (in ignorance that he had passed away) and a collection was made on behalf of the mother and children. It was further decided to give other members an opportunity to 'contribute at meeting, Aug. 27.

Swallows Taught in School.

For the second year in succession, a pair of Swallows have built their nest, reared their young, and taught them to fly, inside the village school at Little Hallingbury, Essex.

A Wonderful Year Book.

We have received the Handbook for 1913-14 of the Yorkshire Union, from Mr. H. Hill, the secretary to the Union. This compendious annual is, as usual, packed from cover to cover with information, and is a tribute to the perfect organisation displayed by Mr. Hill in his capacity as secretary, and evidences the perfection to which the Union has attained through the untiring efforts of past and present officers. It gives the list of societies comprising the Union, and the names of the delegates or delegate of each society to the council. Societies numbering 30 members send one delegate; from 30 to 60 members, two delegates; and over 60, three delegates. The 27 societies affiliated are represented in all by 47 delegates. Under the heading of each society belonging to the Union is given details of the place and time of its meetings, the name of its secretary, and the names and addresses of its members. It would appear from these lists that the total membership of the Union amounts to more than a thousand. The names, dates, and judges of the twelve societies holding their shows under Union rules, are given, and the classification for each show is set out under the various society headings. The balance sheet for 1912-13 is reproduced, and shows a further drop of £4 15s. 6d. on the balance in hand. The amount now stands at £22 14s. 2d. Rules of the Union, particulars of the competitions promoted by the Yorks C.C., and the National Green Marked Y.C.C., and details of the special prizes presented by CAGE BIRDS complete an exceedingly interesting publication. The Secretary to the Union is Mr. Horatio Hill, 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Little Horton, Bradford.

"Cage Birds" Championship Scheme.

Will Benefit all Societies and Provides £200 in Cash Specials for Exhibitors.

WE have this week to tender our heartiest thanks to the secretaries of several societies, not figuring among our coupon shows, who have written us offering to take coupons for the purpose of selling them to their members.

One of these most obliging fanciers states "Although my society is not holding an open show, many members are exhibitors, and I see no reason, if you agree, why I shouldn't try to help your scheme, which I think a very good one, and which I know is well thought of by the fanciers here." We, of course, are delighted to welcome and to accept the aid proffered in so generous and sportsmanlike a manner.

We have pleasure in announcing the addition of five further fixtures to our list of coupon shows, viz.:—

LEYTON C.B.A.
NORWICH ALLIANCE C.B.A.
NORTH WALES C.B.S.
PERTH O.A. (CITY AND COUNTY OF)
WEST STANLEY C.B.S.

In the case of the North Wales C.B.S., the date of the show has not yet been fixed, but the officials, recognising the great value our Championship Scheme was likely to prove to them, in common with all other shows participating in its benefits, decided to at once make certain of securing it. Among the preliminary orders for coupons arriving this week Leyton call for five dozen, Cardiff for the same, and Norwich for six dozen.

Mrs. Askham, of Surbiton, who is very interested in the breeding and exhibiting of Hybrids, writes: "I think the idea capital and should much like to enter."

CAGE BIRDS' Championship Scheme (a few of the benefits appertaining to which were pointed out in last week's number) is open to every society which has enrolled its annual exhibition amongst the guaranteed fixtures appearing in our list of "Show Dates Fixed" (vide page 91 of this issue). We may say that all guaranteed shows also secure substantial benefits (a reduction in our advertising rates is one) quite apart from those attaching to our Championship Scheme. A request addressed to our Advertisement Manager will bring full particulars to the officials of any interested society.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10S. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS.
(4) BORDER FANCIES.
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN.

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace Show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of September, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonafide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

A Correction.

Owing to a printer's error in the report of Beaumaris show, published in our issue of last week, 2nd in Linnet or Bullfinch class and 3rd in A.O.V. British were credited to the Rev. Green. These two prizes were won by Messrs. R. and G. D. Green.

The Crested Tit.

The Crested Tit is a somewhat rare visitor to these shores. When it comes it seems to prefer the pine forests of Scotland to any other locality. It nests in the hole of some decayed tree, the oak appearing to be the favourite, if there are any about. Although so rare in Britain it is common enough on the Continent, particularly in the northern countries, and the Swiss valleys. It is occasionally exhibited at Scottish shows, but very rarely in England.

The Early Morning.

There is a wonderful charm in the early mornings in the open, everything is so fresh, although somewhat damp with the heavy dew. The Lark sings overhead, and the Thrush from the elms, and away in the woods someone has already disturbed the cock Pheasants, whose calling, together with some harsh notes from a Carrion Crow, rudely breaks the silence. A few notes from a sleepy Nightingale seem particularly rich beside the other sounds. The time passes with delightful enjoyment.

Sparrow Pest at Epping.

Epping Forest is being plagued at present, it is said, by hordes of rowdy Sparrows. The invaders have taken possession of large tracts of the thicket, especially in the neighbourhood of Chingford, Loughton, and Theydon Bois. The birds seem attracted by the prospect of enjoying an "unearned increment" arising from the crumbs and scraps of cake left by the numerous school treats now held daily on this popular playground.

THE PATRONAGE OF SPECIALIST CLUBS.

Societies desiring the patronage of the following specialist clubs at their 1913 shows should apply as follows, stating classification given, and judges appointed: National Green Marked Y.C.C., Mr. J. Chambers, 22, St. Anne's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds; Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C., Mr. R. Garnett, 8, Leeds Road, Windhill, Shipley; Yorks. and Lancs., Brit. B. and M.C., T. H. Inman, 43, Derby Road, Thornbury, Bradford; Northern Border and S.F.C.C., Mr. M. C. Potts, 52, Falmouth Road, Newcastle-on-Tyne; Midland Counties Y.C.C., Mr. J. Sheppard, 129, Floyer Road, Small Heath, Birmingham; Fife and Kinross N.P.C., A. Dickson, 37, Venn's Terrace, Kelty; Lancs. and Lizard F.A., Mr. A. Martin, 119, Buckstone's Road, Crompton Fold, Shaw, nr. Oldham; Scottish Plainhead Club, Mr. J. Brown, 599, Duke Street, Glasgow, closing date Aug. 30; Southern Border F.C., Mr. F. Moore, 49, Kelmscott Road, Clapham Junction, S.W., closing date, Aug. 27.

(Will secretaries please notify us of the latest date on which applications can be received?—Ed.)

Through a Bird-room Window

This article on the beautiful British Migrant, the Greater Whitethroat, is No. 39 of the new series of personal birdy experiences related by that eminent aviculturist, the Rev. C. D. FARRAR

No. 39: MY WHITETHROATS.

DO you know the method of making a cat settle down in a strange place by buttering her all over, the idea being that by the time she has polished off the butter, she feels herself at home? Well, that, metaphorically, is the way I act when I go to see somebody's birds. It always proves quite successful. I always use the best butter; and after a little natural repulsion the process turns out quite satisfactory.

One day I was visiting a neighbour's aviary, and he tried the process on me. He gently hinted at my wonderful success in getting birds to nest, and said that nothing seemed impossible to me. I naturally blushed a little, but the process was not unpleasant, and at last the secret of his talk was reached. Had I tried my hand at rearing native birds? He thought it could be done, and I was the man to do it. I demurred; I had so many irons in the fire. At the time I had about seven big aviaries filled with foreign birds, and many of them nesting. Would it be wise to undertake any further tasks? My friend urged that one pair more or less would make no difference. While I was feeding the others, I might just as well feed them!

Succumbing to Temptation.

My readers will guess that I yielded. It meant, of course, that I should have to either build a small aviary, or wire off a portion of one of the big ones. I decided that on the score of expense I would do the latter. It is no good trying to breed softbills unless you can give them a place to themselves, not only on the score of food, but also because softbills are so pugnacious, especially in the breeding season. If you have only a small aviary, don't try to emulate your rich neighbours, be content with a single pair. As well dress Venus like a Dolly Varden as attempt to do in a tiny place what can only be done successfully in a practically unlimited enclosure.

The weather that year was abominable; the rain it rained every day, and nothing is so detrimental to success as a wet summer. From the statement "a dripping June puts all in tune," should be excepted the plain person's temper. My temper that June was awful. Usually I am the most sweet-tempered of men (!) but it is not very pleasant to see all the bushes weighed down with moisture, and to know that a poor little flimsy nest is all that lies between you and failure. It always produces in me a tightening of the heart and throat—the sensation produced on some people by the sound of sacred music or the shimmer of the moonlight on the sea.

A Song That Raised False Hopes.

However, there was nothing for it but to make the plunge. June's coming means half the summer gone, and it only leaves about three months of decent weather, even if you are lucky, to do everything. It is not difficult to get a Whitethroat, as they abound in most parts of the country, and, if you have the luck to find his favourite haunt, he will soon be yours. He makes his presence known the instant he lands, by selecting some bit of bramble, from which he never wanders far, and there he continually gives out his pretty little song, when he is not engaged in scolding you violently. I was not long in finding my friend, and, getting a wire trap, well baited with mealworms, I soon made him my own. A few hours later I secured a lady, and then I fancied my troubles were at an end. As a matter of fact, they were only just beginning. The cock Whitethroat has a much whiter waistcoat than the hen, so it is always easy to tell when you have secured a pair.

My captives did not seem at all concerned at being placed in the aviary, and they at once took kindly to a liberal diet of gentles and mealworms, and soon sampled the egg-flake. The next morning when I went out I heard the cock singing quite merrily, just as though he had been at liberty. My hopes rose accordingly, but, alas! I found that this song was only a part of the day's proceedings. It meant nothing. It reminded me of the story told of a lady, one of a party travelling in Egypt. They were in one of the smaller deserts and ran short of water, and the lady added to the cheerlessness of the occasion by moaning without ceasing, "Oh, how thirsty I am." The other members of the party endured the monotonous cry for some hours, but at last one gentleman exclaimed desperately, "Here's the last ration; for goodness sake, give it to her, even if the rest have to perish." They gave it to her, but after she had drank she continued with her old cry, "Oh, how thirsty I am," and kept it up for the rest of the journey. My Peggy Whitethroat did the same.

The Danger of Unguarded Glass.

The inner aviary had a front of glass. This was my undoing. In the centre was an open window through which the birds were meant to emerge into the flight. The birds I had had in before always did so, and I supposed the Whitethroats would do the same. Alas! it was not so. One morning I entered rather suddenly to feed. I heard a thud, and saw a little flight of feathers; and, looking down, there were my poor little friends, quite dead, with their necks broken. I felt very sad, but it was too late to mend matters, all I could do was to take precautions for the future. We are always wise after the event. I always take care now that all glass is covered up with soft muslin, and thereby many a precious life has been saved. The muslin breaks the force of the blow, but allows the light to penetrate. Before I adopted this plan I lost many a youngster when it made its first exit from the nest. I remember my feelings when I saw a young Andaman Starling dart out of his log nest, and go like a rocket against the glass. Fortunately, he only stunned himself; a smaller bird would have broken his neck.

Here ended my first attempt at breeding Whitethroats. I ought, of course, to have thrown up the sponge; but everybody has a big fault, a sort of standing characteristic, a pièce de resistance for their friends to cut at, and in general they cut and come again. Indiscretion is mine. Who else, after such a failure, would have made a fresh attempt? I was still undaunted, and I looked into the darkness of the future as a child gazes after a rocket up in a cloudy sky, full of wondering expectation of the rattle, the discharge and the brilliant shower of sparks of light.

I wrote off at once to a man I know, who generally either has a supply of softbills, or can lay his hands on them at a moment's notice. In reply to my anxious enquiry for a pair of Whitethroats, he told me that he was afraid it was too late in the season. Had I applied when they first landed, he could have got me any number, but now they were all nesting, and would do no good if captured. However, he made me an offer. He said he knew of a pair that had a nest with some half-fledged youngsters and if I liked he would get them and send them on to me. I thought that this would be better than nothing. If I could not actually see the nest built, and the eggs laid, I could have the pleasure of rearing the young, or, rather, of seeing the parents do so. I replied at once, telling the man to take the nest if he could get the old birds with it, but not otherwise, as I had lively recollections of rising at 4 a.m. in the days of my youth to feed nests of young birds, and continuing till nightfall at the same task.

Safe at the Journey's End.

A morning or two later there came a wire: "Whitethroats sent off to-night; be sure and meet them. They will arrive at your place about 8.30 a.m." You may be sure I was on the platform when the train steamed in, and the guard handed me a small cage, carefully wrapped in brown paper, which the porters, at the risk of something inside bursting, had actually not torn off; and, to my relief, I could feel something stirring; by that I knew that some, at any rate, of the birds had arrived alive.

It is a risky thing to send little softbills on a long journey, especially when they are dependent on the parents to feed them. It is quite on the cards that the noise and the journey will so frighten the old birds that they will refuse to feed, and then all your hopes are ended. In this case, happily, it was not so; and when I got home and took off the cover, I was delighted to find that all were in good condition. There was the father and mother, and five grand youngsters, and only one of the latter looked a little thick. The condition in which they arrived was wonderful, as they must have left at 8 p.m. on the previous evening, and here was 9 a.m. the next morning. In spite of the darkness and other natural difficulties, the old birds must have managed to feed them a bit.

A Lesson in the Art of Feeding.

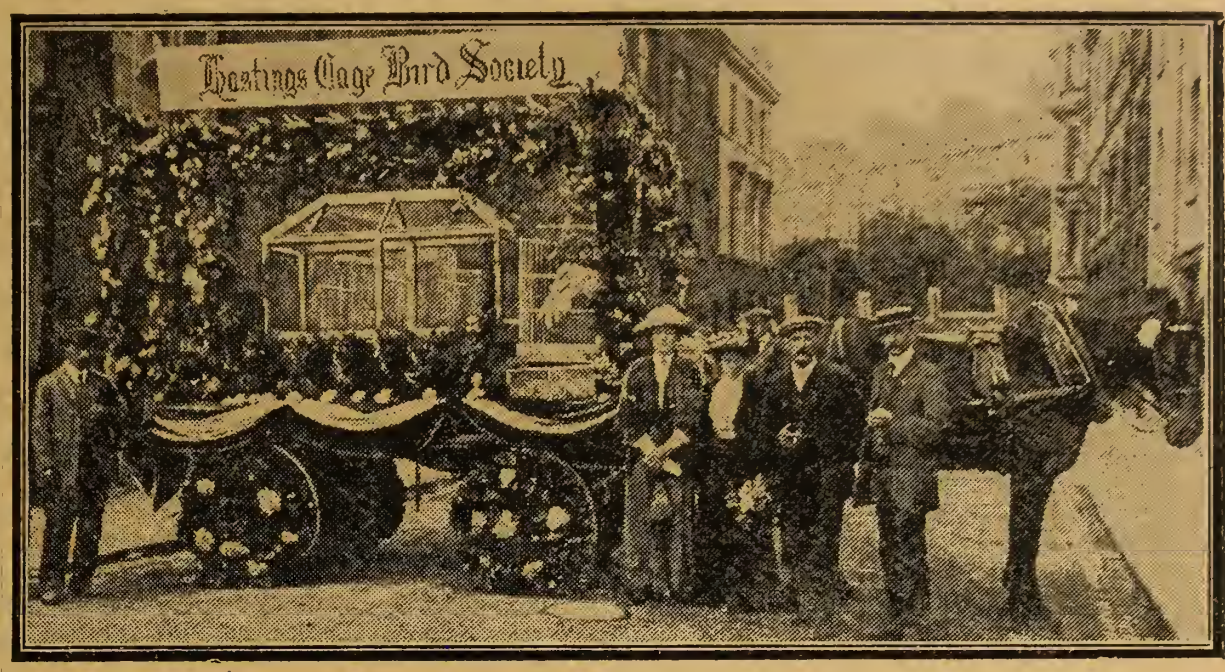
My difficulty now was what to do with them. Would it be better to put them all into a bigger cage, or to turn them out into the aviary where the sad tragedy had happened. The cage seemed the better plan, for many reasons, as I should have them under my eye, and it would not be easy to catch them in the aviary if anything went wrong, as it is difficult to wield a net, however skilful you may be, among a lot of pea-sticks! Finally, however, I decided to risk the aviary, as I knew it would be difficult to keep the plumage clean, especially of the youngsters, in a cage.

I, accordingly, put them out into the garden, set the babies on a bundle of pea-rods, and then turned in the parents. I had placed a big saucer of mealworms and gentles quite close, and the moment the babies began to cry for food, down went both parents to the saucer, and soon the little stomachs were filled, and the owners were sleeping quietly on their perch. The first moment the old birds got to themselves they had a thorough good wash in an old kitchen sink I had sunk in the ground, and by the time they were dry the youngsters were awake, and crying as clamorously for food as a lot of city men in a London restaurant at noon.

My anxiety was now at an end, as I felt sure that if only the food supply held out, the parents would see to the rest. I had never had an experience like this, but it was wonderfully interesting to watch the home life of the little family. When they reached me, I should say that the youngsters were about ten days old and nearly fully feathered. They could feed, and scrambled after the parents from bough to bough, but had no idea of using their wings, except to flutter them when being fed. It was wonderful to see how often they needed feeding, and I felt quite glad that it was being done by deputy, as I thought how tired I should have been by the time night came.

In about a week the parents evidently considered that it was time that the youngsters should do some of the feeding, and it was quite amusing to see a fat youngster following a parent about, plaintively cheeping and fluttering its wings, the said parent having his beak full of fat gentles. But no amount of cheeping would induce him to feed. He would drop a gentle on the ground in front of the youngster, and the little humbug would just touch it with its beak, as much as to say what is the good of this thing? But the father remained obdurate, and after a time hunger did the rest, and the youngster made up his mind there was no help for it, he must feed himself.

Feeding is a lesson which, once learnt, is never forgotten, and soon all the family gathered round the saucer, and it was wonderful to see how often the visits became, and what a number of unfortunate gentles disappeared.



The Family and the Gentle Bill.

Having succeeded in rearing my family, I began to grow anxious. Whitethroats are not valuable from a monetary point of view, and the gentle bill was going up at an alarming pace. I felt that there was only one thing to be done. I must give them their liberty. I should have to do so sooner or later, as the migratory fever would soon come, and then they would be restless and eager to be off, and I had no suitable place to keep them in during the winter, as they would require heat. So one fine sunny morning I opened the prison doors, and let them go forth. For some days they lingered round their old home, but after a time they came back no more, so I suppose they gradually made their way South, preparatory to going to Egypt.

There is one warning I might give: Be very careful in handling such birds as Whitethroats, as they are very soft-feathered, and the plumage almost brushes off them. They are exceedingly fond of bathing—indeed, they will tub four or five times a day, and their plumage, being so very thin, soon dries. I don't think Whitethroats are suitable for cage life, as they soon get dirty and messed up in a cage.

Whitethroats, by the way, are not birds to be left to the tender mercy of servants. I remember once reading in one of Phil. Robinson's delightful books a story to the point. His wife told him she was going to keep a Linnet. His comment was caustic and to the point: "My dear, God help that poor bird!" Whitethroats left to the care of servants will want a lot of help.

I am glad that I had this little experience. We are told that the way to a certain sultry place is paved with good intentions. I had intended to record the breeding of the Whitethroat in captivity, but seeing that our good intentions may not, after all, be so altogether excellent as our natural conceit would have us believe, it may be well that most of them find their ultimate destination in a place where—of course—we are not likely to meet them again! I had my dream, but I saw it, like Ariel's pageant dissolve into thin air.

On August Bank Holiday the Hastings and St. Leonards United C.B.S. took part in the local Floral and Historical Pageant, writes Miss Kirk-Bullock, the hon. sec. The car was beautifully decorated with evergreens and natural flowers, consisting of hydrangeas, rambler roses and other blooms. In the centre we had a large aviary of birds; also Parrots and other foreign birds in cages. The sides were draped in the National colours, finished off with a large Union Jack behind. Seated at the back were two children dressed as Canaries. The driver was dressed in feathers and headgear representing a Parrot. The Society was successful in obtaining 1st prize (£5 5s.). The prizes will be presented next Friday, by the Mayoress, at the Royal Cinema de Luxe. Our warmest thanks are due to the following: Rev. J. M. Paterson (President), loan of birds; Mr. White, for use of garden and evergreens; Mr. A. George, lending aviary; Mr. J. Stevens, calico printing; Mrs. Price and Mrs. Harris, Parrots; Mrs. Kent, drapery, Mrs. Tagg, Miss Sturton Johnson, Mrs. Godden, and Mr. T. Veness, flowers; Dr. Ligat, white coat. For decorating and arranging of car: Mrs. Stevens and Messrs. B. White, F. White, A. E. Godden, A. George, T. Veness, J. Stevens, B. A. Greengrass. The two children, little Miss Godden and Master Drury, made fascinating birds. Reading from left to right, those in the photograph are: Mr. A. E. Godden, Miss Kirk-Bullock (Hon. Sec.), Mrs. and Mr. J. Stevens, and Mr. T. Veness, The Tableau attracted great attention from the thousands of sight-seers.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:

(1) All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must reconcile with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonyme, or initials.

(2) The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3) Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4) Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5) The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6) If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7) Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8) All who receive letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9) All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the queriet desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SEED SAMPLES (G.W.).—The canary is a very good all-round sample of excellent quality. The rape is probably a mixture of bird rapes, and contains a proportion of hot "mustardy" seed. It would be useful as a component part of a seed mixture for occasional use, or for feeding birds in large outdoor aviaries, but for Canaries kept indoors you should try to procure a milder and more mature seed. Test a sample by chewing a pinch and holding it on your tongue. If it "bites," reject it and try another. You want a seed that has a mild nutty flavour when chewed.

NOT TAKEN LITERALLY (W.B., Belfast).—It would indeed be astonishing if the hen actually ate the first two nests. I take it her appetite was, however, only equal to the first two clutches of eggs. A vicious habit, which may or may not be due to some abnormal craving, is the cause. Whether the hen is worth keeping for future breeding depends very much upon her age, and typical qualities, etc. If of no special merit in typical points, or past the first flush of youth, I should certainly discard her. On the other hand, if still young, and her qualities make it specially desirable to breed with her, you may with a little trouble save her eggs, and give them to a more rational hen to hatch and rear. It is, of course, much too late to do any more breeding this year, but if you want to get young from her keep two or three dummy china eggs in her cage for a few weeks at a time from now until spring for her to "operate" on if she feels disposed. This may break her of the habit of investigating eggs, but if she repeats her performance on the first clutch next year, write again, and I will tell you how to proceed.

LIKE A BALLOON (R.S.).—The hen is suffering from a mild form of emphysema. Cage her alone in a moderate sized cage, and keep in a comfortable temperature with plenty of fresh, pure air, but no direct cold draughts or extreme fluctuations. Prick the inflated skin with a clean needle to allow air to escape, and repeat the pricking a few days later if the accumulation of air has recurred, but do not prick until the inflation of skin is pronounced. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. Every second day give in addition half a teaspoonful of summer rape; twice a week a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, black rape, millet, teazle, and broken groats, and on two other days a similar quantity of crushed stale sponge cake sprinkled with maw. Limit the diet to this for a month. In the drinking water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepennypiece, every second day for a week. After this give four drops each of tincture of gentiau, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternating days 20 drops of chemical food.

BARE ROUND NECK (R.H.).—The bareness round neck is a common natural defect, but the loss of feathers you mention is due to the normal moult, which is now taking place, and is also the cause of the bird not singing at present. If you carry out the following treatment you will stand a good chance of restoring the plumage around neck, and the bird's song will return naturally when the moult is quite finished. Keep cage in a fairly warm place where temperature is equable; throw a light cover over it until feathers cease dropping, and offer a bath daily. For staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give separately every third day for a month a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, dusted with flowers of sulphur, and finally sprinkled with soft sugar. On the intervening days give first a pinch of maw, and a half ripe plantain stalk, and next day half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts linga, millet, black rape, and teazle. In the drinking water give every second day for a fortnight 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepennypiece. Then omit the whisky and saffron and give only the potash on the days you are giving sulphur for the remainder of the month.

OUTSIDE RIGHT TOE CROOKED ("Greenfinch Mule.").—If, as I suspect, the toe is pliable, you should catch the bird and get someone to hold it whilst you tie the outer toe alongside the middle toe. Place the crooked toe in an extended position beside the centre one, and let your assistant hold the two toes together whilst you tie round them, near the tip of the outer toe, with a bit of very fine thread or silk. Pass it round toes twice, and make the knot underneath. Then make a similar tie midway between the tip of outer toe and the "ball" of foot. Tie securely, and firmly enough to hold both toes in position alongside each other, but be careful not to tie too tightly, so as to interfere with the circulation. Allow ties to remain on two months.

REFUSING COLOUR FOOD (H.P.).—Sorry I have forgotten, if you told me, whether your colour-feed is the pure tasteless pepper, with or without the addition of sugar, or a blend of hot and cold and sugar. Anyway, if it is quite unsweetened, add a pinch of soft brown sugar to the food when mixing it, and try the following process. Adhere to quantities named, and go by actual measures, trusting nothing to guesswork. Mix your egg-food as now, using the same proportions of bread crumbs and egg, but omit the pepper until you have first ground and mixed the egg and bread. Now take a teacup—not a breakfast cup—and fill level to the top with the egg-food, put this in the larger cup, add to it one moderate teaspoonful of pepper, take a heaped spoonful from the tin, and give handle of spoon a light tap on side of tin to dislodge the bulk of the heaped up portion, and put what remains in your egg-food; put in a similar quantity of maw, and half as much sesame, and a small teaspoonful of sugar if the colour is not sweetened, but not otherwise. Mix this thoroughly, and give the birds a teaspoonful each. If you have two or three in each cage for moulting, I can scarcely imagine them refusing this food. But if they do, then remove their seed the last thing at night, give the colour-feed first thing in the morning, and do not return seed until colour is eaten. After the first two or three days gradually increase the proportion of colour to four times the above quantity, but do not increase too suddenly or rapidly. If, as may be the case, the birds acquire a taste for the colour food in a few days, you may increase to full strength rather more quickly, but exercise discretion, and you may also stop removing seed. If they do not acquire such a taste, then there will be nothing for it but to go on removing seed nightly all through the moult.

YOUNG WITH ASTHMA (H.P.).—A slight crackling or wheezy noise in breathing is not always of vital importance at this season. It often means nothing more than a quite temporary catarrh, or even a little nervousness or overfeeding. So I should certainly give these birds a chance until next spring. Then, if you find the affection developed instead of having diminished, it would, considering the hereditary taint, be wise to mercifully pass them "behind the veil." At any rate, it would be most unwise to breed from them. Meantime, keep them in a comfortable temperature, and a pure, fresh atmosphere, free from cold draughts, damp, or extremes of heat and cold, but, at same time, do not coddle them. Add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece to the water every second day for a week, and then give them a month's course of the medicine advised to "A.M.O." last week.

WHITES OR BUFFS? (J.A.C.).—The birds you describe are not true white Canaries, but very pale, washed-out buffs. Some years ago, before the true "whites" appeared, birds like yours often aroused controversy as to whether they were "whites" or not. I examined a number of them at various times, some of them really very colourless, but, nevertheless buffs, and nothing more. It is just possible your birds might be very useful for mating with true white Canaries to increase the white stock, in which case their value would depend upon the enthusiasm of the would-be breeder of whites, or, in other words, what you could get for them. Beyond this they have no exceptional value. True white Canaries, though not yet common, cannot now be called rarities.

BIRDS IN SUMMER-HOUSE (F. D.).—If the summer-house stands in a fairly sheltered position, and your Canaries have been bred and kept hitherto under normal conditions of temperature, they will undoubtedly thrive well all through the winter in the place without any heat whatever, and in any case they will do far better without any heat at all than with having a fire in the place two or three times a week. If you begin to use heat you must continue it regularly all through the winter, so as to maintain a fairly equable temperature. The only time when it would be advisable to drop it would be during the day in any exceptionally mild spell that occurred, when the normal temperature may often be quite sufficient. At such times only a little fire at night would be needed to prevent any serious drop during the night. A high temperature would not be necessary—45 deg. being the point to aim at. The Linnets would do even better without heat than the Canaries.

MOULTING AND COLOUR-FEEDING (A Constant Norwich Reader).—It is not necessary to make separate lots of colour-food for each separate round of young. All you need do is to add a smaller proportion of the colour mixture to the egg-food for birds which have not commenced to cast their feathers, or birds, either young or old, which exhibit any dislike for the coloured food. Then you gradually increase the proportion up to full strength as soon as the birds show signs of beginning to cast feathers, or, in the latter event, as soon as they have acquired a taste for the new food. If your colour is the pure tasteless pepper, unblended, add to 1-lb. of it 4 ozs. of soft brown sugar, and you may also add 1 oz. of best salad oil, if none appears to have been added to the pepper, and thoroughly blend all well together. If you want a good hot colour, you may also add from 1 to 2 ozs. of hot natal before blending. Keep this as a stock colour mixture in air-tight tins or glass or earthen jars. For use make the usual egg-food, and to a small teacupful add a teaspoonful of the colour mixture and blend well together. If birds seem shy of it add a teaspoonful of maw when mixing the colour in egg food. This is the "weak" strength of "food." After a few days, increase the proportion of colour to 1½, then two, teaspoonfuls, and finally, when the moult gets in full swing, increase again to three, then to four, teaspoonfuls. When birds are nearly through the moult gradually decrease the strength of colour-food, and finish off with the same strength as you began. Give each bird a teaspoonful of the coloured egg-food daily throughout the moult. (2) The length of moulting period varies greatly with individuals, and in different environments. About two months would be a very fair average period. Some birds will throw off all their feathers in two or three weeks, others will be casting them for three months. In colour-feeding, remember the moult is not really completed for several weeks after feathers cease to be shed. (3) With strict attention to cleanliness you may moult 20 birds in the flight. At ordinary times 10 is sufficient. With such a number together you must be on your guard against plucking. (4) For highly-fed birds of a level colour "feeding" in flights is certainly not the best method. (5) For details of dietary see "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free. (6) You possibly give the colour-food too strong at commencement. Follow above directions, and this trouble should cease.

LOSS OF YOUNG (Mrs. E. C. L.).—I'm afraid there must be something wrong with your manner of supplying the food, assuming the food is correct, as seems to be the case, and the young are of a sufficient age to feed themselves when finally separated. I note you say the cocks feed them a long time, but you omit to mention any definite age at which the young are either separated or die. Do you give food in the cage, in egg drawer or inside hopper, when first separated, or merely place food in the usual hopper hanging on the outside? The former is the proper plan until the birds are able to fend for themselves, and you should continue giving egg food, or bread and milk as a substitute, until the birds help themselves quite freely to the dry, unerushed seed. A regular supply of canary is essential, and a little dry rape should be placed on top daily. A little cracked hemp is given daily until other seed is partaken of, and a little soaked rape added occasionally. This is only a brief outline, which may help you to see where you went wrong. It is quite too late to go on breeding now, so I advise you to get one of the handbooks from our manager—House's "Manual," 1s. 2d., or "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., both post free, and be guided by them next season. If there is anything you do not understand, or anything goes wrong, then write at once, giving full particulars, and I shall be pleased to help you as far as possible.

NO FEATHERS ROUND NECK (Cork).—The bird picking at herself is probably due to the moult approaching, and it is during this period that you stand a fair chance of restoring the plumage. See reply to "R.H." in this issue, and follow the advice contained therein, except that you need not cover the cage over until the bird has begun to cast its feathers in the moult. Feed bird as advised in the reply referred to, and stop the mixture you name for the present. If the new feathers are not appearing round the neck in, say, four to six weeks hence, write again, and refer to this reply.

DISTRESSING ATTACKS (W. H. L., Derby).—The birds suffer from epileptic attacks, which most generally occur in anæmic birds of weakly constitution. Very closely inbred birds are frequently subject to such attacks, and in these cases treatment is rarely of any material service. Keep these birds caged separately. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a month give each a small teaspoonful of egg-food, crushed sponge cake, or bread and milk, and well mix two drops of cod liver oil emulsion in it, and sprinkle with maw seed. On the alternate days give one or two half-ripe plantain stalks, or a morsel of banana, or a few seed-stalks of shepherd's-purse. Twice a week give a small teaspoonful of scalded rape. Continue this feeding through the moult. In the drinking water give as much sulphate of soda as will cover a six-pence, and half as much bromide of potassium, every second day for a fortnight, then miss a week, and give it again for a fortnight. On the alternate days during the whole period add 20 drops of chemical food to the water. Shall be glad to hear result in a month hence.

TREATMENT DURING MOULT (Lecturer).—For ordinary singing birds, kept under ordinary conditions, in normal health, and not being colour-fed, there is no actual necessity for any particular treatment during the moult. The diet may be made a little more generous by adding a small quantity of egg-food or some substitute three times a week, and giving, on the intervening days, a small supply of wild seeds, and once or twice a week a teaspoonful of scalded rape. The addition of 20 drops of chemical food to the drinking water three times a week will be helpful to the birds, and they must be kept free from cold draughts, or extreme variations, and a fairly warm temperature will help to expedite matters. The bath should be offered daily. To encourage a quick moult, or to assist birds that have a difficulty in starting, follow the above general treatment, but keep birds quite on the warm side and throw a light cover over the cage until feathers cease dropping. This, of course, must not mean exposing them to extremes of heat and cold, nor to impure air. For a fortnight or so at the commencement add 20 drops of whisky and six of syrup of saffron to the drinking water every second day, to get the birds well started; afterwards the above treatment and warmth will keep them going, unless some abnormality crops up.

YOUNG YORKSHIRES MOPY (Eight Years' Reader).—It is by no means unusual for young birds, or adults either for the matter of that, to appear thick and mopy when moulting, nor for some birds to show these symptoms much more than others, even when kept in the same flight or cage. Possibly you may have brought these youngsters on to full strength feed a little too suddenly, but, in that case, if they are taking it freely you had better leave things as they are, as the matter will soon right itself. As the other birds are thriving well on the same treatment, I advise you to place these youngsters in a rather warmer temperature, but see they are not exposed to cold draughts, or sudden and extreme fluctuations; add a pinch of maw to the colour-food each day, give 20 drops of whisky and six of syrup of saffron in the water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days 20 drops of chemical food. If this does not bring about the desired improvement in a week or so, write again, and repeat particulars, when I will advise you further, if necessary.

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

FEEDING GOLDFINCH-CANARY (K. Webb).—The food you are giving your young Hybrid is not good enough in quality. It is certainly an excellent food for large adult birds, such as Magpies and Jackdaws, but is not suitable for young, delicate small birds, and I am not surprised that he does not thrive. If you are anxious to rear him you may do so by giving him the prepared egg and biscuit moistened with fresh boiled milk, but I think you would do better by making your own egg and biscuit mixture. Boil a fresh egg for ten minutes, crush up some of the white and yolk together, add four times the quantity of powdered biscuit, a pinch of castor sugar, and moisten with fresh milk. Feed him with this every two hours. To induce him to peck up, leave a little of the food sticking to the wires of the cage, and when he is hungry instead of putting the food direct into his beak, teaze him with it, he will then probably peck at the stick or whatever you use to feed him with. After he can peck up, give him some boiled rape and crushed seeds, and so gradually get him on to hard food, but do not leave off the soft food too early.

YOUNG REDPOLL-GREENFINCHES (Anxious).—It is impossible for me to tell you the value of your birds, especially as you have not yet succeeded in rearing them, and can therefore give no information as to size, shape, colouring, etc. Good specimens are always worth money, and you would have no difficulty in disposing of a winner, whereas indifferent birds are hardly worth cage room. The second prize bird at the Crystal Palace (novice) was catalogued at five pounds ten shillings, and a vhc bird in the open at five pounds. Rear a good specimen and you could easily ask these prices, but he would have to be good, as this cross although not very plentiful, is hardly so showy as some of the others, and is frequently beaten by some of the Goldfinch-Hybrids. Anyway, if you manage to rear them, keep the best for another season, a nice specimen is a useful bird at small shows.

GOLDFINCH-REDPOLL (Lucky Lad).—Glad to hear of your success, and hope you will manage to get your young Hybrids safely through the moult. I gather from your letter that you are not particularly anxious to part with your birds. The matter of size is a big consideration, although many small birds at five weeks old will develop and sometimes pase their larger brothers. As regards colour-feeding I would only trouble to feed the large one (that is if there is still the great difference between them at moulting time). You could then show him occasionally, but not too often. The others I would put into a three feet flight and simply feed them well and let them grow. They may turn out good specimens another year. Do not let them get wild, but run them into a cage occasionally; if either of them should show a tendency to wildness keep him in a show cage for a few days and handle him gently, but often. Your very small one I expect will turn out to be a hen.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES.

BIRDS NOT USING SHELTER (J. M. W.).—The fact that there is no light in the shelter except that which comes through the opening in the front is no doubt the reason why some of your birds stay out all night. The wiudow you propose would be a very great improvement, and should obviate the trouble. Have you plenty of perching accommodation in the shelter? If not, it may be that the first birds to go to roost drive the others away. The three-quarter door will be a great acquisition, as it will partially close up the entrance, and make the shelter more cosy. You might arrange a frame covered with wire netting and hinged at the top, to drop down at night over the opening above the door, and so keep the birds in until the morning, or altogether in inclement weather. With these alterations, your aviary should be quite a satisfactory one, except that it is somewhat limited in dimensions, and you must, of course, be careful not to overcrowd it with birds. In the open flight you might introduce a well branched portion of a tree, as large as you can get through the door. Stick the thick end of the branch into the ground, and the birds will take healthy exercise hopping from twig to twig. When, after a time, the branch becomes soiled, throw it away, and replace it with a fresh one. Always glad to help.

THE LIABILITY OF RAILWAY COMPANIES (F. M. B.).—Unless there were evident on delivery signs that the package had been subjected to unduly rough usage, and you signed for the same as having been "received damaged," and could therefore prove to the satisfaction of a county court judge that there had been negligence on the part of the company, the latter would be certain to rely on their by-law which states that they will not be "common carriers" of live stock, and that they accept no responsibility beyond the five shillings stated. The only real safeguard when sending birds by rail is to declare their value beforehand, and insure them up to that value.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S

WHAT BIRD? (R.S.H.).—It is the way you have described the bird that has misled me, yet your description is not far wrong though widely differing from the usual one. Your bird is a Red-billed Weaver, and a cock, as the hen has no black mask.

WHITE-HEADED LOVEBIRDS (F. Moss).—Yes, these birds will breed in an outdoor aviary; they need a roomy nest receptacle, which they will line with leaves, bark, stalks, etc. Sexing these birds is quite an easy matter, as the hen has no grey head, she is an all green bird.

BUDGERIGARS (L. N.).—You should get our Nutshell "Budgerigars," 2½d post free from our Manager. It would tell you all about these charming birds. Canary, white millet and spray millet, with green food, grit and cuttlebone, will be the main requirements of this species. Oats may be given once or twice a week. As regards crushed or whole oats, it is a matter of individual taste; offer first one and then the other; afterwards supply that which they show preference for by eating most readily.

INDOOR AVIARY (W.G.H.).—There are one or two points you must bear in mind in fixing up your aviary. Sun and light must be able to reach it, and, it must be well ventilated, also free from draught and damp. If you can secure these conditions, then the suggested aviary should prove a very successful one. As regards number of birds, if you want breeding results then seven or eight pairs must not be exceeded, but if you intend it merely as a cage to house a series of birds, then you can put in three dozen. I am assuming that you desire to breed, and am naming a few suitable species to choose from. Cheap birds (3/6 to 10/- pair): Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Bengalese, Bib Finches, Cutthroats, White Java Sparrows, Lavender Finches, Cordon Bleus; Spice, Sharp-tailed, and Striated Finches; Grey, Gold-breasted, and Orange-checked Waxbills; Grey and Green Singing Finches. Others (10/6 to 25/- pair): Alario Finches, Cape Canaries, Gouldian Finches, Long-tailed Grassfinches, Ruficauda Finches, and Masked Grassfinches. You could choose from both series according to the amount you desire to spend.

AMAZON ILL (J.T.D.).—As the bird has lasted so long, and you say there is now an improvement, I should certainly say there is a strong probability of the bird's recovery. I have looked through my replies, and there is little really to add to same. With a spray or squirt you should be able to dodge the bird as readily as it appears to be dodging you when you wish to treat it. You must continue the treatment previously advised as regularly and persistently as is possible, and with as little excitement to the bird as the circumstances permit. Continue to use in the drinking water the ipecacuanha mixture (thrice weekly), and the hyno-phosphates also thrice weekly, giving clear water once a week. Continue to use the honey and borax at least daily, twice daily would be better. If the bird is inclined to bite at all, it will be easy to get her to bite the end of a stick smeared with it. You ought also to manage to spray the nostrils daily as directed; it does not matter if a little of the solution goes astray, and it will not harm the bird in the least if a little is swallowed.

FOR INDOOR CAGE (Poor Paddy).—The accommodation of your cage is two pairs for prospects of breeding. Merely as a cage for housing a mixed lot of birds you could put in eighteen small Finches and Waxbills, providing the cage had a daily clean. One pair each Zebra Finches (7/6) and Silverbills (3/6), would be likely breeders, if you put in, say, one Hartz travelling cage (fittings and perches to be removed and two bars cut away for entrance), one cocoa-nut shell nest, and two rush nests. Use twiggy branches, and do not put in any straight perches. Give good sound seed—canary, white and spray millet, fresh green food daily (especially flowering (seeding) grass, as long as it is obtainable. Lettuce is good for winter use; cuttlebone, grit, and water for drinking and bathing to be regularly supplied.

RED-CRESTED CARDINALS (H. C. Evans).—(1) The main diet will be seed—canary and white millet in equal parts, with a dash of hemp and sunflower—but fruit must be provided daily, also one or two live insects, mealworms, etc.; a little of some good insectivorous mixture should be offered, the Red-crest does not take much. Increase the supply of live food during the moult. A spider is a "tit-bit," as also would be the fruit it favours most. It can have as much fruit as it will eat, any kind it will take. (2) You can get good colour in house-moulted birds, without any aids whatever. Freshly obtained birds would not be steady enough for exhibition, as these birds are usually rather wild at first. (3) Almost any type of Bunting cage would suffice; pale sage green is a good colour for the interior, and black for the exterior.

YOUNG GREY PARROTS (F. J. Parr).—Many species of Parrots partially regurgitate their food when anyone they are fond of is near; in a state of nature they would regurgitate and feed each other. The taking on of the seed diet is merely a matter of time. The noise you describe as a "whinny" is common to all young Parrots. Put half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia over the maize twice a week, and the Byno-phosphates in the drinking water daily; but you must stop the laxative if there is any appearance of chronic diarrhœa. Put a little honey and borax in its mouth daily for a fortnight at least, and you had then better report progress. Having kept it so long, there is every probability that you will succeed in establishing it, though some of the symptoms you describe point to its not being "out of the wood" yet. You had better write at once, in the case of any adverse symptoms showing themselves. If it does not take fruit, offer it a little banana daily: it will ultimately take it.

WHAT PARRAKEET? (F.H.).—You have either the All Green Parrakeet (Brotogerys tirica), or one of the Grass Parrakeets, but your description is not sufficiently detailed for me to form a definite opinion, and I incline to the opinion that it is the former. Has it any frontal band (that is, across the forehead at base of upper mandible), and, if so, what colour is it? In any case, for the first winter I should bring it indoors at the end of October, and put it out again in early May, after which it might be left out altogether. All Green Parrakeets are worth about 40s. pair.

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (6d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." A l thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

"Novice."—Death arose from hæmorrhage, due to ruptured liver, caused by violence.

"Wallitone."—Enteritis, or inflammation of the bowels.

"Knowlite."—Cock bird, death occurred from fits, due to its plethoric condition.

C. Barlow Marricks.—Broncho-pneumonia.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

H. Holgats.—We have three coloured plates of Standard exhibition varieties of the Yorkshire Canary; post free, 7d. the lot, or 2½d. each.

H. Edwards.—We remember that amongst the "Illustrated Ideas" was published one showing how a stuffed bird could be used as a brace bird. Is this what you refer to? If so, we do not know of anyone who makes and sells the apparatus. Should we have misunderstood your letter, kindly write and make the matter clear.

A Homing Greenfinch.

Sir,—A young unfledged Greenfinch rescued from certain death by being killed by cats or dogs, as it had evidently fallen out of its nest, was brought up by its rescuer in a greenhouse. The bird grew strong of wing, flying about the house, and afterwards, when older, would take long flights in the garden, or fly round and round the house, returning to its owner when tired or requiring to be fed. Unfortunately its freedom eventually cost it its life, as it fell into a tank full of water in the greenhouse, and was drowned.

THE OWNER.

Expatriated British Birds

Inspire Thoughts of Home.

Sir,—I have just returned from a tour round the world, and on arrival at Victoria, B.C., I was interested in seeing a number of British birds which were imported from England two years ago. From inquiries I made I learnt that they are gradually becoming acclimatised, but have suffered owing to the large number of predatory birds. However, I saw some very fine young Larks, and the notes of these melodious songsters reminded me of our beautiful, sung little island home. I went as far north as Alberni in Vancouver Island, and found that some of the birds had migrated to that district. These English birds give great pleasure to bird lovers from the old country who have settled there, and they have every care and protection.

Novice Classes at the Open Shows.

Sir,—I would remind novices to look at these letters each week, as it will be very interesting to them, and they will see how the business cliques are worked to the interest of the champions, and not the novices. I will take the side of the novice and Mr. Laidlow the champion and his clique. I think Mr. Laidlow must be in ignorance of his writings; I am dealing with all varieties of novice classes. Let Mr. Laidlow answer my questions, and not use any false statements, especially in the papers. In regard to the question of the Gateshead Palace show in Mr. Laidlow's letter of Aug. 1, I called it the Gateshead Palace show, for which I apologise if I lifted the name of that society up a bit. But Mr. Laidlow pulls it down a bit; he says they don't call it that, but the proper name is the Gateshead and District C.B.S. Of course it must be right, as he is on the committee. Mr. Laidlow says he cannot understand it where the society receives £2 and gives away a sovereign. I took it on the cheap scale, he says. I am on the cheap, now; that is where the intellect comes in. He wants it on the heavy scale; not sufficient profit for him. Mr. Laidlow is very particular. I will base it thirty-seven per class: that is one of my numbers in July 25. For argument's sake, I will say if half of the thirty-seven entries pay 1s. 6d. each, that will work out at £1 8s. 6d., and the other half (members) at 1s. each; that will be 18s.—in all, £2 6s. 6d. for a sovereign prize-money. If they pay 1s. 6d. entrance fee, that works out at £2 15s. 6d. for a sovereign prize-money, leaving a net profit to the society of £1 15s. 6d. to help to pay for the champions with eight to twelve birds in a class. Is this fair or not? Gateshead Society knows. Mr. Laidlow refers to a member of the Newcastle committee who is a novice. He wanted to be in the novice society which I formed, but we refused him being a member. I made a small challenge with the same gentleman—which he accepted—about Newcastle show three weeks before the show. He had not the pluck to come forward, but walked on the other side of the street when he saw me coming. Mr. Laidlow says that I was at the Newcastle meeting when they elected the committee, and that I was not elected on the committee. This is a false statement. When the Newcastle committe were elected each committeeman proposed the other, and there were no seconders. They were all put up in one body, and were so elected. Of course only the committeemen's hands went up. As for me being proposed, I was not proposed, nor even asked to be, nor had I the slightest thought of it, so I could not be elected.

Mr. Laidlow complains about my subscription money—2s. 6d. What trifling things to talk about. I think January very soon for subscription money, being 10 months before the show. They could have had the 2s. 6d., if they were short, with pleasure. But I discovered the clique that night, therefore I never went again. I live about 30yds. away from the show, and I have every opportunity of calling in. So I know something. The year I left Newcastle Society some of the members entered their birds in the members' classes. There were plenty of tickets, but no money. So, members, wake up a bit. The prize-money goes to the open, along with your 2s. 6d., and you have to be content with a ticket or card.

With regard to Morpeth show, 1911, with fifty unflighted hens in one class. Mr. Laidlow has been looking for the biggest numbers in all his catalogues. He will not get another class with that number in the British Isles. That show was a very great credit to the Morpeth committee; but they are not the Newcastle committee. As for birds at 5s. per pair, do you remember there was a gentleman who sent for a pair of Norwich Plainheads, and he got a pair of "Dreadnoughts" to fire at the target, and could not hit it, so he took a "nut" with him to buy a yellow hen, which was on the shelf next to the Clayton Street wall in Newcastle Bird Market, for 5s. This was to improve his "Dreadnoughts." In regard to South Shields, a show we gave the patronage to, he says that we only had about two entries. This is not true. I sent 13s. 6d. down to South Shields show for many more entries besides this. So Mr. Laidlaw, be careful what you say in the papers.

A Good Match and a Good Supper.

Bradford West C.B.A. Spends Enjoyable Day.

Sir,—In connection with the Bradford West C.B.A. a cricket match was played last Saturday in the Girlington field. A good number of members turned up, and we were favoured with a fine day. The teams were captained by Messrs. Greaves and Cowgill, and Messrs. Stead and Cooper acted as umpires. Mr. Greave's team batted first and scored 57, our worthy president, Mr. W. Crabtree, doing much towards this score, and it must be remarked that he was the cause of violent applause from the spectators on his splendid fielding. Nevertheless, Mr. Cowgill's team won the match by eight wickets. Afterwards we adjourned to Headquarters ("Shoulder of Mutton"), where we partook of a pie supper, which was admirably prepared by Mr. Payne and his wife. After supper business was discussed. We had a good time in the field and a good supper afterwards, and everybody was highly delighted with the arrangements.

Why are Rochdale Fanciers Not Holding a Show?

Sir,—Mr. Fuller says we are not to have a show at Rochdale this year, and that "after the way the Lancashire and Lizard classes were muddled last year it is about time they shut up shop;" he further adds that he has "been expecting it for some time." So have I; but not for the reason which caused Mr. Fuller's anticipation. Few societies refuse to run shows through bad judging. They have an easy remedy in that case of changing their judges. The cause generally is an insufficiency of cash; and if Rochdale aren't in that boat, then—well, they're lucky. Year after year—from a perusal of their catalogues—one finds the Lancashire classes only half filled, and when it comes to eight and ten classes at an average of nine entries, there is a great loss on a show financially. One wonders they don't curtail their classification and promote competition, by having the birds standing 20 deep, as my friend Mr. Naden remembers seeing them. Ah; what a time that must have been, compared to the sparsely-filled classes of to-day. Not long ago, I was in conversation with a late secretary of one of the Rochdale societies, and the conversation turned on this very subject. He related an experience of his own in consequence of which he resigned the secretaryship. It was the annual open show and they had in their schedule one class for Crests and one for Crestbreds. Now, most fanciers are aware—especially those who have the running of a show—that when entries are hovering in the region of eight or nine, the members try to keep them at eight, the half-money limit, because of the saving in prize-money; and quite right, too, when it can be done amongst themselves, without sending back outside entries. The show I refer to had nine entries in each class, Crest and C.B., and only three were from outside exhibitors, the remainder being members' exhibits. I have the catalogue in front of me as I write, and I find that a certain official of the society had more than one entry in each class. Naturally, the secretary was anxious to keep expenses down, so, he informed me, he asked this said official if he would withdraw one entry in each class, so that it would leave the classes at half prize-money, but he absolutely refused. One bird in each class was catalogued at a very low price, and I am giving it as my opinion that the request was a small one to ask of anyone. But no arguments could persuade this official to withdraw the two entries. Can it be that he had an idea he could win in those classes, and wanted the shekels transferred to his own pocket? He only managed to get a minor award though; and I should imagine he blessed himself for his stupidity when he could see that he had let the society in for a matter of 19s., an item worthy of consideration in the running of a show. Is there any wonder at societies going down?

Identity of Friendly Birds.

SIR,—Can any of your readers tell me the name of a small bird, hardly as large as a Linnet, of a dull greenish colour, yellower on breast? I see many of them in the Silver Birches in the square in which I live. They seem quite fearless and fly round my Canary's cage in the balcony, sometimes perching quite close to me as I sit at the window. Can they be a kind of Tit, or possibly Willow Wrens, as I see them on the rose bushes, looking for insects? They do not eat the seeds I put out for them.

CHELTENHAM.

[The birds would be Willow Warblers; quite a little bunch of them may be found in the gardens near my own house—they come every year at this time.—Editor.]

Wild-Bird Life.

Birds in Harvest-time.

Although the summer days are passing all too quickly wild bird life is quite as interesting now as in the early spring months. True, the majority of birds have finished incubating, and the young have joined with the parents in making huge flocks or family parties, to wander over the fields and uplands, until Nature bids them seek more congenial climes to pass the dreary winter. Single-brooded birds have accomplished their comparatively easy task, but many double breeders are still tending young or starting on another venture. As the corn falls to the reaper, one can wander along the hedgerows, now overgrown with brambles and wild woodbine. Nests are difficult to locate, for the Greenbird and Linnet are able to bury deeply into the leafy mass, and not until the young are almost ready to face the outer world is the nest at all exposed, but the repeated visits of the parents to the young with food soon cause the stray shoots of bramble to seek another path, and a home that at one time was most difficult to find becomes exposed to view. Upon every stretch of common land and waste pieces by the roadside the hardy thistles flourish. Those exposed to the full sunshine are now distributing their seeds; in this they are greatly assisted by the flocks of Linnets, single wanderers, and small family parties. The flower heads have turned to a dirty brown in colour and the Linnet, perched upon one of these, pulls at the fluff, and is thus able to get at the seeds quite as easily as the Goldfinch, who with longer beak is able to dig into the mass and feed to his heart's content. On a patch of ground near to the writer's home the Linnets are busy the whole day, and here they are doing a vast amount of good, for no wild seed is scattered so far and wide as the thistle, and no weed is so difficult to eradicate.

THE SPOTTED FLYCATCHER.

The graceful little Flycatchers have been here again this summer in full force: almost every fence and gate post has its occupant. None of our summer visitors attracts our attention more than these little birds, it is impossible to pass them by, for they are constantly fluttering into the path in front of the observer. In its nesting habits the Spotted Flycatcher is almost as easy to please as the Redbreast. We have located the following positions: one on a beam over a summer house, one in a hole in a brick wall, one in a knot hole in a tree, and one on the trunk of an elm, simply supported by a few twigs.

H. NORMAN.

The Sexing of Canaries in the Nest.

Sir,—The best and easiest method to tell a young cock from a young hen is to watch the old hen when she is feeding. The young hens will always be the first to be fed and the cocks will always be the last. I find this is the best way to tell them when in nest.

The Testimonial to Mr. W. B. Cobb, of Leeds.

Sir,—I have to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of subscriptions amounting altogether to six pounds, eight shillings and sixpence. I am afraid the holidays have, in many cases, prevented a prompt response to my appeal. I shall be extremely obliged to intending subscribers if they will kindly write me at their earliest convenience.

Siberian Goldfinches and the Use of Grit.

Sir,—I notice in a reply to a query regarding a Siberian Goldfinch that your correspondent is told to be "very sparing of grit," I should be very interested to know why. All birds require grit, and I do not think it at all likely that they would eat too much of it. I have never seen or heard of such advice given before, as what one is always told by everyone who keeps birds or poultry is to give them plenty of sharp grit; of course, of a size suitable to the birds.

H. P.

The above letter was forwarded to Mr. Norman who gave the reply to which our correspondent refers, and Mr. Norman's answer is as follows (Ed.):—

My advice to a reader to be "sparing of grit" was given in all good faith, and founded upon past experience. These birds when freshly imported will have been kept weeks, and probably months without any grit, and when it is given to them they will leave the choicest of food to gorge themselves with it. My advice was to be "sparing with it" not withhold it. If one's birds have by accident been kept several hours without water one would not think of letting them drink to excess, which they would do if allowed. One therefore gives it to them sparingly, until the desire for it is somewhat abated. The same thing applies to the supply of grit after a long deprivation. Grit is quite necessary to the health of captive birds, but they should always have it before them. If you are buying Siberian Goldfinches this coming winter you will be able to experiment with one or two of them.

Bolton Show and the Norwich Plainhead Club's Patronage.

Further Applications Required.

Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your columns to say that owing to Bolton Society having decided not to hold its open show this year, as previously arranged, at which show the Norwich Plainhead Club's patronage had been given, the Club will now have to select another show for its patronage. Will societies, therefore, who desire such patronage, kindly communicate with me at once. They must be prepared to give 16 classes (10 for champion and six for amateurs), give four money prizes amounting to 22s. per class, and appoint one of the club judges. As the committee will meet on Saturday, Aug. 23rd to go through the applications, same will be sent in at once.

A Young Scots Fancier for Canada.

Sir,—Mr. James Ward, jun., left the Clyde on Saturday last for Alberta. Mr. Ward, who is a graduate of Glasgow University, has always been an admirer of the Scots Fancy Canary—I might say was born in the Fancy. He is the youngest son of Mr. J. Ward, Shettleston, the well-known breeder and judge of that variety. A number of school teachers and fanciers accompanied Mr. Ward to the harbour to bid him farewell and wish him success in his new home. He has promised to send to Cage Birds a report of the Fancy as he finds it in Canada. He also intends putting up a few pairs of Scots Fancies when he gets settled down. He should prove himself a great help to the breeders out there, as I understand he knows the ideal required, and although a young man has judged several shows, and always given satisfaction. We all wish him good luck in the new country. Many fanciers here will anxiously await his promised report in Cage Birds.

THE MASTER SINGER OF THE CANARY TRIBE

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

I HAVE seven of these four-compartment cages made to fit into a recess between a fire-place (chimney-piece) and a window. Each cage is five feet long, fourteen inches high, and eleven inches wide; divided into four compartments by removable wooden slides. I have also a few wire slides to take the places of the wooden ones, in case a pair of birds do not at first take kindly to one another; they are then separated, a wire slide being placed between them, as I have previously described.

Outside Nesting Receptacles Recommended.

The cage fronts are removable, and made of half-inch mesh punched bar. If a larger mesh (say, the next size, five-eighths) is used, a Roller will be able to get its head through the wires, and often is unable to extract it again; then there is a danger of the bird being hanged. Each front has two head holes for seed (which allow the birds to reach both sides of the seed-hopper) and one head hole for water. In the top right-hand corner of each cage front is a small door that swings backwards, and in front of this a nesting receptacle is hung, being attached to the cage front by two wire hooks. These nest-pan holders are of tin, with a swing wire door at the front; they are 6½ inches high, by 4½ by 4½ inches. The advantages of these outside nesting receptacles are: the birds have more space inside the cages, the inside of the pan can be seen without removing it, and the eggs or youngsters can be removed without having to put the hand inside the cage; further, the birds are not nervous or shy when anything is being done to the nest. I have only found one disadvantage with these nest holders, and that is, in the event of having a nervous or shy hen, she will often leave the nest when anyone approaches closely. To obviate this I hang a piece of cardboard on the wire door of the nest-holder, allowing several inches at the top to admit sufficient light, and this has proved very satisfactory.

A Winter's Rest for the Cages.

One pair of birds I allow the use of two compartments; but by having another small door in the top left-hand corner of the cage front, another nest-pan receptacle can be used, when each compartment would accommodate one pair of birds. With all the slides removed these breeding cages make a very useful flight cage in a case of emergency. I do not recommend this, though, for I believe that a cage which has been used to breed birds in is better for a winter's rest. This will allow the fancier time to thoroughly clean and renovate them before the breeding season comes round again. A favourite method of mine is to choose a bitterly cold, frosty night—the kind of a night when it is "enough to freeze one's whiskers"—and place all the breeding cages out of doors, letting them remain out until a change in the weather compels me to bring them indoors again.

The flight cage brings me to the last of the various kinds of cages that we use. There is little to be explained about this. As a rule flights are made as large as the fancier can accommodate, consistent, of course, with them being easy to remove at any time that this may be found necessary. As a rule they are of wood, about six feet long, two feet high, and eleven or twelve inches wide. These flights are used to keep the hens and stock cocks in during the time they are not required for breeding purposes. They are very useful to moult the young birds in, allowing them plenty of room for exercise, which is necessary to develop them into strong healthy birds.

How Working-men May Economise.

As Canary fanciers are chiefly working-men (the term working-men is a very fine point with some people, but kindly accept it here as meaning those classes in receipt of a small wage) it may be necessary to study economy, and the handy man will be able to make many of his own cages. For instance, useful flight cages can be made from Colman's starch packing cases, or the large tobacconists' packing cases, and a useful breeding cage can be made from a Quaker Oats box. So it will be seen that our stock-in-trade need not necessitate any lavish expenditure, though, of course, such cages are far from being so neat and pleasing as those bought from a good cage-maker, and the prices nowadays are very moderate. I have mentioned charpie as a nesting material; usually this is made in Germany, but can be bought of most dealers. A sample can be made at home. First cut a piece of calico about two inches square, then with a stout needle pull it to pieces by drawing out the threads. It will be seen that charpie is composed of short pieces of stout cotton about two inches long.

The Choice of a Breeding Room.

To lay down a rule for the new fancier, and say he should use this or that room to breed his birds in is not always advisable; because the construction of our dwelling houses may be said to vary with the districts. A room with a south aspect, or at least one that will catch the sun at some time during the day, is certainly to be recommended. The cages should not be placed in such a position that they will be exposed to its direct rays; if this is found to be unavoidable, the window blind should be dropped until the sun has passed off the cages.

The ventilation can be arranged from the window, and if this is one of the ordinary sash pattern windows, a draught board can be fitted. These are quite simple to make, and also to use, as it is an ordinary piece of board cut to the width of the window, and about six inches wide. To put the board into position, raise the bottom sash, and place the board on edge underneath, the sash is then drawn down on to the edge of the board to fix it. This will prevent a current of air or draught from rushing straight into the room, as the air then rises, and enters the room between the two sashes. The top sash should be drawn down about one inch to make an exit for the impure air. Damp rooms, direct currents of air, and draughts blowing straight on to the birds are death traps.

Avoid Changes of Temperature.

The majority of hens will feed their youngsters better in a room where people are not continually moving about, and until the height of the breeding season the red mites do not become so numerous as is found to be the case with birds that are bred in a living room or kitchen where it is customary to have a fire in the daytime, and when during the evening the temperature is often raised by a lighted gas jet. As a rule when the family retires at night the gas is turned off, and the fire is allowed to burn itself out, consequently the temperature of the room falls just at a time when it would often be most desirable to keep it cosy.

Good ventilation without draughts is necessary, so one ventilator should be placed low down towards the bottom of the room, and another high up towards the top as an exit for the foul air. A wooden shield should be placed on the outside of the room, over the ventilators, to prevent the rain from beating through. On the inside a slide should be arranged to close, or partly close, the ventilators if it is necessary at any time. The room to stand six inches, at the least, clear off the ground to prevent it from getting damp. In all outdoor Roller Canary birdrooms it is advisable to have some kind of a heating apparatus, for although the Roller is quite capable of withstanding the cold to the extent of having the drinking water frozen, there are very few of us who care to be snug beside our firesides and think that our pets are likely to be suffering from the cold.

The Use of Artificial Heat.

Undoubtedly the safest heating method is by hot water pipes, with a boiler and fire-place outside the room, although for several seasons I used very successfully an oilstove, claimed by the makers to be smokeless and odourless. I found a little smell did arise for a few minutes on it being relighted after it had been cleaned and refilled. When an oil stove is used, if it is necessary to study economy in the use of oil, a couple of hot bricks can be placed on the top of the stove, and just sufficient heat turned on to prevent the temperature from falling below 45 to 40 degrees. As a precaution against any fumes or smoke that may arise, a tin funnel can be placed over the stove. The funnel will require a tin pipe fitting to it, to run upwards and be turned outside the room towards the top, or through the roof, if the roof can be afterwards made waterproof.

A couple of blinds should be provided to the windows, and a table at one window, underneath which can be placed either a nest of drawers or shelves to accommodate the seeds and various spare utensils.

In the Courts.

Bristol Man Fined for Catching Goldfinches.

Thomas Nicholls (30), of Barton Hill, Bristol, was summoned last week for being in possession of two Goldfinches which had been newly taken.

P.C. Slocombe stated that on the evening of July 29th, when he was on duty in some fields called Brook Hill, he saw the defendant, who was carrying a basket on his back, going along the public footpath towards Brislington. Knowing him to be a bird catcher witness stopped him and said he suspected him of being in illegal possession of wild birds. In the basket witness found the bird net produced, which had been recently used, also two cages. One contained a Mule bird and the cage produced contained two Goldfinches. The following morning he found one of the Goldfinches dead in the cage.

What the Defendant Said.

Witness handed back to defendant the cage containing the Mule, but told him he should retain the Goldfinches and the net. One of the Goldfinches had traces on. Defendant said they were two call birds, and he had not caught them on witness's beat—he had been to Shortwood, miles away. Witness said to him: "You know you had no right to catch Goldfinches," and he replied, "I must do something for a living, and there's no harm in catching a few paltry birds." One of the birds had undoubtedly been recently caught and the tips of the wings had been tied to keep it from fluttering.

Defendant, on oath, volubly defended himself from the witness-box. He opened by saying: "This is one of those peculiar cases that arise from time to time. Although I set forth in the morning with the intention of breaking the law, yet I was returning in the evening without having broken the law, because I was returning the same as I went forth. It does not signify that because a man goes to shoot with a gun that he has shot anything when he comes home." He contended that the birds had been in his possession since October, and that he could bring witnesses to prove that they had belonged to someone else previously.

Police Press for Substantial Penalty.

Superintendent Jennings said if the Bench thought the case proved he asked that a substantial penalty should be inflicted. He and other superintendents in the county had been requested, through the Chief Constable, to pay special attention to these cases, which were brought under a by-law of the County Council. Goldfinches had been almost extinct, and there had been comment upon the fact that they were snared by bird-catchers.

The Chairman said the by-law had been passed by the County Council because they desired that these rare birds should be preserved. Defendant would be fined 10s. The cage would be returned to him, but the decoy bird and the net and pegs would be forfeited.

The defendant inquired upon what point he was convicted.—The Chairman replied that the magistrates had convicted him for having in his possession a Goldfinch recently taken—the Goldfinch that died.—"Bristol Times."

A. Wood, bird-dealer, was charged at West Ham Court, on August 12, with cruelty to fowls, pigeons and Canaries exposed for sale, the allegations being that they were dirty and without food and water. He was fined £5.

"Cage Bird Hybrids."

By CHARLES HOULTON

Edited by C. E. WESTON.

A glorious work on a fascinating subject. Charles Houlton has had a lifetime's successful experience in Mule and Hybrid Breeding, and the information he gives is priceless to those who wish success.

Two Chapters on Cages, Aviaries, Nests and Nesting Material.
One Chapter on Foods.
One Chapter on Selection of Stock.
One Chapter on Light Mule Breeding.
One Chapter on Dark Mule Breeding.
One Chapter on Hybrid Breeding.
One Chapter on each of the Mules and Hybrids already obtained, treating each in detail, and showing how they are to be obtained.
One Chapter on Hybrids yet to be produced.
One Chapter on the Standard Points of Exhibition Hybrids.
One Chapter on Feeding and Moulting of Hybrids.
Also Chapters on Washing the Birds for Exhibition, Exhibiting, and four Grand Appendices.

THE SAD SIDE OF LIFE.

Tragic Fate of Hyde Park Sparrows.

A correspondent of the "Evening News," wants to know if the Herons in Hyde Park, which live between the Albert Gate and the Serpentine, can't be fed sufficiently well to prevent their "merciless preying" on the local Sparrows.

"It is," she writes, "positively distressing to see the way in which some unsuspecting young Sparrow is pounced upon, seized in the Heron's long, cruel beak, and borne off screaming into the bushes."

An "Evening News" representative arrived at the enclosure just in time to see one of the Herons snap up a Sparrow, and hasten with its victim to the pond, where the small bird's terrified cries were quickly hushed.

One of the spectators related how he had seen another Heron get a tiny Duckling. When the mother Duck gave the thief chase a second Heron rushed up and seized another Duckling. The Duck's family originally numbered seven, but now there were only two.

A park keeper answered the correspondent's complaint. "It is true," he said, "that the Herons lead the small birds a bit of a dance, but there is no ground for the suggestion that they are forced to it by hunger. They are regularly fed on fish, but, I suppose, like human beings, they fancy a change now and again. They certainly relish a Sparrow, especially a young one. It goes down whole, feathers and all, but I've often seen them take the bird first to the pond and hold it under water for a while."

Fourteen Years in Love with the Norwich Plainhead.

This contribution, by J. Bagshaw, Penkhull, was awarded first prize in the essay competition promoted by the Stoke-on-Trent C.B.S.

I HAVE heard some fanciers say they never take the seed box off, their birds eat the colour food first. Of course, in some instances we find one that eats it greedily. The greatest objection I think is the smell. Mine I always mix a day or two beforehand. This gives the colour time to penetrate through the egg-food, and also weakens the smell. You need have no fears as to it keeping, it will be as sweet at the end of three days as when you made it.

The second round youngsters we shall treat on exactly the same lines as the first, these will break into moult when about eight weeks old, and by the end of July all breeding pairs should be broken up and the birds put on colour food at once. When about three parts through the moult, I single out the best youngsters and finish them off by themselves. I then give sulphate of iron in the drinking water about twice a week. This fixes the colour and tightens up the feathers. You can now with advantage give a small quantity of linseed, either in the colour food or on the cage bottom, this will put a sheen on the feather, and counteract the constipating tendency of the iron.

Steadying the Show Birds.

They should be run in the show cage as often as possible, and if a fellow fancier visits your room don't forget to let him handle them, this will help to get them steady. It is useless showing a bird that flutters all over the cage when handled, the judge will ignore it no matter how good a specimen it is. In finishing off the moult, you can either reduce the strength of your colour food or give it in smaller quantities. I prefer the latter way and miss them now and then a day when they are getting well through with the head. Here the beginner often makes a mistake and takes them off colour food before they are finished round the eyes and nostrils. It should be continued until they are fined down. We shall have to breed a certain amount of colour in our birds, for, as stated previously, it is useless colour-feeding unless we have got some green blood in our stock.

I will now pass on to the last but not least important subject, that of preparing our birds for the show bench. Our success or failure will depend much upon this, and if two birds in a class are of equal merit the best staged one will certainly win. The first thing necessary is the wash, this should be done by a practical fancier. If you cannot wash your birds get someone to do them for you; of course, it will be more honour to you if you can do them yourself. I always wash mine about four days before a show, this gives them time to tighten up again. Many birds are spoiled, not in the washing but in the rinsing, you cannot be too particular about this, especially round the neck. If you don't fetch all the soap out they will wear a collar.

After washing it will be necessary to hang on the bath, or, failing this, spray them every day, and if any of them seem slack in feather give a small quantity of millet seed; this will soon put them right. You must also see that your show cages are perfectly clean, nothing looks worse than a clean bird in a dirty cage.

Read page 183 this week and fill up and post the form thereon.

DO IT NOW

if you wish the splendid offer to be open to YOU, as the demand is simply phenomenal.

When attending shows do not grumble if you do not win, but compare your own birds with the winners, and if you cannot find out where you are beaten ask some practical fancier to show you. Start at the bottom of the ladder and climb upwards, don't try to run before you are able to walk. A man who starts in the Fancy with more money than brains will buy expensive birds before he understands anything about their management, and at the first disappointment he will die out of the Fancy as suddenly as he came in. I will now give you a useful bit of advice; keep in with the wife, and try to interest her in your hobby. If you can do this it will go a long way towards success. I am pleased to say I can get mine to do anything but to wash birds, and I have hopes of teaching her to do this in the near future.

CITY & COUNTY OF PERTH O.A.

Monthly meeting held in Laidlaw's Temperance Hotel, Leonard Street, Aug. 6, Mr. A. G. Forest chair. After sec. had read all correspondence he was asked to write to the British Bird and Mule Club sec., asking about the classification of that club, as our classification is to be gone over at next meeting. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chair.—J. L. Smith, Hon. Sec.

NEW CROSS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held headquarters, Aug. 7, Mr. Hill chair, and a fair number of members present. Balance sheet of July show was submitted, which showed a profit of 2s. 7d. We are glad to say there has been a profit on each of the shows held this year. Mr. Humphries, Lewisham, was elected a member. Other business was rapidly got through, and the rest of the evening was spent in "Questions and Answers," which proved very entertaining and instructive. Committee meeting, Aug. 21, to draw up schedule for annual show.—Barton Bros.

STANLEY VICTORIA CLUB.

Meeting held August 10, Mr. T. H. Curry, chair, stated he was very pleased at the success of the sec. in securing a seat on the Board of Management of the club, and he thanked the members for the way they had worked on behalf of the sec. Decided to have the pens from the same firm as last year. It was proposed to start a fund to have a trip to the Scottish National Show on New Year's Day. All fanciers in this district that wish to go are invited to join us, whether members or not. Our char-a-banc trip is on Saturday, next, and I hope members will enjoy themselves.—R. Peart, Sec.

WEST STANLEY C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held August 9. Mr. Butler, chair. Five new members were elected, Messrs. A. Dawson, Underwood, Barron, Robsons, and Oxley. Next business was the open show schedule, and members' schedule for annual show, Nov. 7 and 8. In open section we have 28 classes, and in members' 37. We are promised a good many extra specials in open classes, and cups for members' show. As we have had a record breeding season here, and some extra good birds have been bred, competition will be very keen. We have again secured the Hiberian hall for our two days' show. Schedules, etc., are in the printer's hands, and will be ready in a day or two. We have only three more meetings before show, so I hope members will turn up to a man, as they did on Saturday last, and no doubt we will not be disgraced on Nov. 7 and 8.—W. Elliott.

CHESTER C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Boot Inn, July 29, Mr. F. C. Parker chair. Mr. W. A. Carr and Mr. Club were elected members. Date of annual members' show was fixed for November 22nd, and Mr. J. W. Metcalfe was elected judge. Next meeting, August 26th.—R. L. G. Simpson.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S.

Meeting held in Bay House Tavern, Mr. T. Wildridge presiding. In the absence of secretary, Mr. Wm. Duff read the minutes of previous meeting, and was then voted assistant sec. in place of Mr. M. Kelly, who cannot see his way to fill the position. The coming show was discussed, and canvassers were appointed to call on all probable subscribers. A goodly lot of specials are already booked, and the schedule promises to be a large one.—H. Muir, Sec.

MIDDLESEX O.S.

Monthly meeting held August 7. One new member nominated. Decided to hold annual members' show Nov. 6. Mr. R. Cambers was elected assist. sec. owing to the resignation of Mr. T. H. Fletcher. Special for most points at the young stock show, presented by Mr. T. L. Salter (Vice-President) was handed to winners, Messrs. Taylor and Wright. Members please make a point of attending next meeting, Sept. 4, as classification for annual show will be arranged, also other business in connection with the show. Jeffery Jefferis, Sec.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held August 7, Mr. T. C. Crawhall in chair. Correspondence read from Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League, Northern Crest Club, re patronage, and the following specialist clubs, granting patronage for our open show, Oct. 17 and 18: G.C.A. for Borders, B.F.C.C., N.B., and S.F.C.C., N.B.B.M. and F.B.C., N.Y.C.C. The following were elected members:—Mr. Makepeace, Linty Colliery, and Mr. Wilson, Cramlington. A proposal to put on seven Crest classes for open show was lost; there will be four classes for Crests. Special general meeting, Aug. 21. Will members please note. Messrs. Crawhall and Maddison had an interesting debate, "Canary v. British," Mr. Crawhall taking Canary, and Mr. Maddison British. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

WALLASEY C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held at headquarters, Fairhaven Institute, Iscard, Aug. 7., Mr. Benson chair. Mr. C. Houlton was appointed to judge Old Show. Before a good muster, Mr. George Barker gave a most interesting lecture on the "Fauna of Wallasey and District." The lecturer covered the table with a large and splendid collection of various specimens, which included wild flowers, moths and butterflies, land, fresh water and marine shells, seaweeds, fungi, and grasses. Mr. Barker named each specimen, and gave us brief descriptions as they came to hand. At the conclusion of the lecture many questions were asked, which the lecturer answered in a most able manner. Mr. Geoff. Benson, in a lengthy speech, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Barker for coming forward and giving such an interesting lecture, as it enlightened the members as to what could be found in our district. Mr. W. Mallinson seconded, and said it was a pleasure for him to be there that evening to hear such a lecture, the company unanimously agreeing. Mr. Barker briefly responded, and said he hoped in the future to give several more such lectures.

ARDWICK & MANCHESTER C.B.A.

General meeting held Aug. 5, at headquarters. Mr. A. E. Long presided over a fair muster to discuss the business of the Amalgamated Societies' show. Agreed, that we join in with other societies, and that Mr. Vine, Mr. Robinson and myself, with Mr. Thorpe as reserve man, to represent the society at the delegate meetings, and to support the suggestions from last meeting that date of show be December 20th, also that three successful exhibitors, one for each variety, who have never judged at an open show, be elected as judges. It is not that we are dissatisfied with the present popular judges, but it would be a change, and a chance to infuse new blood. Will the small committee elected for the purpose of selecting new design of show bill submit designs and prices at the next meeting. We are arranging a cycle ride through Alderley Edge and Knutsford on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 24, weather permitting; will those who intend going let me know at the next meeting, so we can arrange tea? Mr T. Hunt will act as captain. Local fanciers invited. The proposed date of our annual show is Nov. 22; if this clashes with any other local society will they let me know at once before we fix?—J. Spencer, Hon. Sec., 193, Palmerston Street, Manchester.

CAMBRIDGE & COUNTY C.B.A.

Y.B. show held in the Alexandra Hall; a fairly good entry was secured. Silver medal for best Canary bred in Cambridgeshire this year was won by Mr. Langley with a cl. yell. Yorks. of good quality. EPWORTH.

On Bank Holiday a few cage bird classes were provided at the poultry, etc., show, and fairly well supported, considering the unfavourable time of the year. We noticed that few of the visitors missed inspecting this section. The birds were nicely staged and received every attention. In Mr. Burrows, the Society has a first-rate secretary. The judging was very well done by Mr. J. Wheldrake, of Goole.

CAMBRIDGE.

The classes in connection with the great Bank Holiday gala on Midsummer Common were poor this year, due in great part, we should think, to a radius of 20 miles being put on them. The section, however, proved as great an attraction to visitors as before, and was well managed and looked after. The cup for best bird fell to Mr. Papworth, a very nice Goldfinch "turning the trick." The judge, Mr. Harrison, of St. Ives, gave every satisfaction with his awards.

EASTERN COUNTIES (Ipswich) C.B.S.

Annual Y.B. show held at the Ipswich Social Settlement, Aug. 9. The season has been particularly adverse for Canary breeders, and it was not surprising that the entries fell one or two short of last year. But the decrease was very slight, and on the whole the society has every reason to feel proud of the present show, and especially should the result be gratifying to the indefatigable and obliging hon. sec., Mr. W. Barritt, who handled the arrangements in a thoroughly business-like manner. The silver challenge cup of the society for best bird was won by Messrs. Andrews Bros. with a very fine Glossy Starling, shown in the pink of condition. Specials for second best given by Messrs. Andrews Bros., and Mr. J. Bevan—and in the novice section, were awarded to Mr. E. Baker, with a typical Norwich Plainhead. The same exhibitor also won spl. given by the Ipswich Working Men's Poultry Club for most points. Mr. C. Simpson judged.

DERBY C.B.S.

Second Y.B. show held Normanton Hotel, August 9, and proved to be a very good one considering that young birds are now beginning to fall into moult. Some really excellent specimens were staged in every section. Mr. J. H. Drakeley judged, and his awards were very popular. There was a fair attendance and the show all round reflected great credit upon the efforts of the society.

DONCASTER C.B.S.

Show held Aug. 4 in connection with the Bradeworth Horticultural Society. The show was a decided success, there being 76 entries, which is not bad considering the time of the year and the bad breeding season we have had in this district. In Yorks some fine birds were put down by Messrs. Truman, Poppleton, Hall, and Hunt, and in Norwich excellent teams were shown by Messrs. Leam, Truman, Brown, Bagnall, and Baxby. In British, birds of merit were staged by Messrs. Pogmore, Truman, Wade, and Bescoby. Special winners were: Best Yorks, J. Hall; best in show, T. Truman; best in Woodlands and Dis., W. Twine; most points in Yorks., G. Hunt: ditto Nor., T. Truman; ditto Brit., H. Wade; second most points Brit., T. Truman. Judge, Mr. Clarence Presley, who gave every satisfaction.

GRANTHAM C.B.S.

Annual Y.B. Show, held at Headquarters, Brewers' Arms, Aug. 11, when there was a grand reunion of the members. Entries were very good, particularly in Yorkshires, but no doubt the lateness of the date affected the numbers considerably, many of the exhibits being far advanced in the moult. Messrs. Mann & Tilley's winner in Yorks. was much admired for size and type. Although not very numerous, Norwich were of good quality, and much may be heard of the 1st and 2nd birds later on in the season. British were of good quality, and Mr. W. Bailey's winning Linnet easily scored. Mr. W. E. Allen judged, and his awards were received with general satisfaction. NOR.: 1, vhc, hc, Ratcliffe; 2, 3, Garton; c, Mann and Twilley. YORKS.: 1, 2, c, Mann and Twilley; 3, vhc, Garton; hc, Muxlow. BRIT.: 1, 2, Bailey; 3, Mann and Twilley; vhc, hc, c, Bond.—H. LARKHALL C.B.A.

Annual young bird show held Aug. 2, in Camera Club Studio, a very suitable and excellently lighted room. Larkhall fanciers have not been favoured in the way of breeding results. Still, we had an extra good entry of over forty birds, quality being of a high standard. The classes contained several birds of great promise. Mules excelled all previous shows, both in quantity and quality. It was pleasing to note the enthusiasm of the novice members, and their exhibits were worthy of mention. Points sp. was won by Mr. Pollock. The awards, placed by Mr. Braidwood, Burnbank, met with entire satisfaction. BORD. YELL.: 1, McGhie; 2, Pollock; 3, McLure; 4, Hannay; 5, Craig; 6, Rundell. COLERAINE.

Show held Aug. 7 in connection with the flower show, and proved a success. Some fine exhibits were staged in a cosy room free from draughts. Miss Lyle, the sec., deserves great praise for the manner in which she executed her duties. The committee, Messrs. D. Kennedy, R. Forsythe, and F. W. Wright looked well to the wants of the exhibits. Mr. W. Gillespie judged and gave every satisfaction. It is rumoured that another show will be held in October. NOR. CK.: 1, spl, Miss Lyle, lovely exhibit, well staged; 2, Creighton, close up; 3, McKervill. HEN: 1, 2, sp, Mackey, two nice ones. CREST: 1, spl, Creighton, good one, wins well; 2, Mackey, not quite so good in crest. COM. CAN.: 1 Montgomery; 2, McLarnan; 3, Kennedy. A.O.V.: 1, spl, 2, 3, Dunlop, sen., splendid team of Scotch Fancies, an old warrior leading, a gem; 2, 3, two good ones, often described. YORKS CK.: 1, spl, 2, Jamieson, two good ones, will be hard to beat; 3, Forsythe. HEN: 1, 2, 3, Jamieson, good team, will be heard of again, a credit to their owner. MULE: 1, spl, 2, Creighton, gems, will hold their own anywhere; 3, Anderson, nice one, but beaten to-day in hot company. GOLDF.: 1, spl., Dunlop, sen., fine square-cut blaze, well tanned, nicely staged; 2, Newman, not quite so good in blaze or tannings; 3, Dinsmore, close up on 2nd. BULLF.: 1, Lady Bruce, nice one, but on the small side. FOR.: 1, spl, Kennedy, lovely Parrot, not a feather out of place; 2, Lecky, nice exhibit, well worth its place; 3, Creighton.

A TALKING CANARY.

This tame and talented bird is the pet of Mrs. J. T. Tapp, of Thornton Heath. He is reputed to speak two or three words quite plainly. Our photographs show him on the head of his mistress, taking a little jam at tea-time, and inviting the dog to join him at play.

Photographs by Clarke and Hyde.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous Issue, Page, and Column are stated by the advertiser.

Advt. Manager. "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which me must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expirration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES. In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

APPLIANCES.

ANOTHER RECORD

During last season I sold nearly 800 pairs of clapnets; all were sent on approval on the distinct understanding that if they were in the slightest degree unsatisfactory I would immediately refund the whole of the purchasers' money. Despite this fact, not one pair were returned, nor was one single complaint received, but on the other hand, I received (and published) more testimonials than all other advertisers put together. This fact alone should prove to you who is the right man to supply really serviceable catching appliances. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All guaranteed 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. These clap-nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed exact measurement as above. Price includes all pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use, and are guaranteed the only nets on the market that are properly armed or reinforced all round. Loose netting, as used in above nets, made specially for bird catching, 7 feet deep, ¾-inch mesh, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. Extra stout netting, ⅝-inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard; Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 each; self-acting spring net traps, latest and best, 24 inches by 18, 1/2 each; ditto, 18 inches by 14, 10d. each, post free; single trap cages, 6d. each, 5/- dozen; double traps, 1/- each, 9/- dozen; treble traps, 1/3 each, 12/- dozen; all these have separate compartment for call-bird; self-acting and self-setting trap cages (reg. No. 2392), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; call cages, all wire, soldered tops, and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun, 60 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed strongest lime made, stands all weathers and holds birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1-lb. 1/6; large sample, 3d.; all post free; catchers' store cages, stave poles, drinkers, and thousands of other articles always in stock; send stamp for full copyright list, which also tells you how to buy netting for making your own nets. Please note:—I am the actual maker of all nets, and thoroughly understand what is required for successful catching. I supply every professional catcher in the kingdom, and as these men depend upon their nets for their living, they must have the very best articles going.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To all bird-lovers. We are anxious that every fancier should know the value of our bird medicines. Ditchfield's medicines have been used for over five years by most leading fanciers, and are supplied to the London Zoological Society. They are genuine remedies, which can be given with perfect confidence, to all classes of cage birds. We guarantee to return full money if our medicines fail to do as we advertise. Dichfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for Soft Moult, Going Light, Dullness, Not Singing, Feather Plucking, Diarrhœa, and Inflammation of the Bowels. For the latter complaint, and for Going Light, this medicine is invaluable, and if given immediately the bird shows symptoms of the disease, will invariably restore the bird to perfect health in a day or two. We have hundreds of testimonials testifying to the value of this medicine for the above diseases. Sold in 7d., 1/1, 2/-, and 5/- bottles, each size bottle being about treble the former size. For Bronchitis, Wheezing, Hoarseness, and Inflammation of the Lungs, get Ditchfield's Special Lung Tonic; there is no finer medicine advertised from chest and lung affection in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. To advertise our medicines, we will send a 7d. bottle of each of the above medicines for 1/-, or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9. All medicines post paid, per return, at our risk. Also Two Valuable Seed Recipes, How to Feed Rollers and Linnets for contest Singing, given free to all purchasers of our medicines.—FRANK DITCHFIELD, Bird Specialist, Oldham. (824)

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

Don't be gulled with spurious imitations and advertisement copiers. Just send your cash to the Editor and your order to me. I am bound to please you. My birds are sent to you on seven days' approval, on the understanding that if they are not as described you have only to return them and back comes your money. Where is the man I have failed to please? Why do all the leading fanciers and judges send to me for their birds? Why? Because I don't care where you send, or how much you pay, you cannot beat the class I stock. Look, gentlemen; real giant Norwich type cork Linnets, good heads, show well, real gems, and same class as last year's winners, 2/-, 2/6 each; cock Linnets, on quality notes, taught under my undefeated champion of England cup winner, 2/-, 2/6; contest cages, 1/-. I have the finest strain in England bar none. Everybody welcome. Come and hear my wonderful Linnet singing Canary. Hear him make 30 strokes of scraping, and do three turns along with wonderful riding and whinnying. Cock Goldfinches, singing beautiful, real gems, 2/-, 2/6 each; cock Chaffinch, a good one, 1/-; Yorkshire cock Canaries, on song, 4/6, 5/-; Norwich cocks, on song, 5/- each; special Linnet mixture, 2/6 stone; softbill food, 4d. per lb., 7 lbs. 2/-. Some Hints on Colour Feeding.

Mr. W. Curry, in a lecture delivered August 14, gives the members of the Northern Counties N.P.C. the benefit of his wide experience.

We have met together this evening to consider the question of colour feeding, although a more important subject, in my opinion, is breeding for colour, for unless you breed for colour it is practically impossible to colour feed to perfection. As a rule young birds commence to moult at about ten weeks old; old birds mostly start in July, and from this time your bird rooms should be very carefully attended to, as the moulting season is a very critical time for the birds. First of all, you should see your birds are in good condition, for strong, healthy birds moult in about 6 or 8 weeks, whilst birds in poor condition usually hang in the moult for weeks after those which are in good health are finished. See also that your room is well ventilated, but free from any draught. As a rule I select my best young birds, and moult them in twos; but those of my old birds which I intend for exhibition I moult singly; the rest I put in a large flight. Now light has a great influence on colour, and it is very important that the birds should be protected from all strong light during the moulting season. In mixing the feed, the colour food should consist of the ordinary egg food, to which must be added a proportion of the pure tasteless pepper. My own method is to commence with one slice of bread (pretty thick), one hard-boiled egg, two teaspoonfuls of fine sugar, and one teaspoonful of tasteless pepper, and I gradually increase the amount of pepper until I reach the amount required, that is, three teaspoonfuls. I might say that I add two ounces of hot pepper to every pound of tasteless, as by doing this I find I get a better colour. To ensure that the pepper is well mixed in with the egg food I rub well with my hands, and let it stand overnight, giving it to the birds the first thing next morning. I allow a level teaspoonful to each bird per day, and I have always found this quantity sufficient. Canaries, like ourselves, need a change of diet, and for that change I sometimes give Osborne or Marie biscuits, in each case adding sugar and pepper as stated. Some fanciers advocate withholding the seed, and forcing birds to eat the colour food. I contend this is very unwise, as the birds require seeds to build up their constitution, although the egg contained in the colour food aids in this respect. The colour in the food charges the bird's blood with colour, and the blood in turn colours the plumage. I maintain that it is necessary to feed for both stamina and colour, and to do this the birds must be fed daily on both seed and colour food. If the food is made palatable there is not the slightest need to remove the seed-box, which should contain the best of Spanish canary seed only. Towards the end of the moult a little iron as a tonic should be given, as iron feeds the blood with its colouring matter and fixes the colour in the plumage. Colouring matter deposited by vegetable substances fades more or less, so it is very important that something should be given to fix the colour. This year I am trying one good teaspoonful of Parish's Chemical Food mixed in the egg food twice a week. Don't forget to use the bath during the moult whenever the weather is warm and bright, for this is a great assistance towards getting the birds into good condition. No green food should be given during moulting season to birds that are being colour fed, as the feed is somewhat relaxing. In case you find it too relaxing, add a little rice flour to the feed. Where birds are being shown, a little colour food should be given once a week throughout the show season. Be very careful to remove all stale food; there is nothing that will turn a bird against colour food sooner than stale or musty egg food.

A BIRD BUSINESS BUILT UP BY "CAGE BIRDS."

"We feel it only our duty to give your paper—CAGE BIRDS—the credit due to it as an advertising medium. Through its medium, and this alone (for we use no other medium) we have from mere hobbyists, breeders, and acclimatisers in a small way, worked up a huge business, which we can justly claim to be by far the largest private breeders' concern in England, which is continually calling for further extensions and assistance. We trust your supporters and readers will grow as rapidly. —F. COLLINGBOURNE AND CO. (East Sheen).

To Interest the Children

The Decorated Cage Competition at Dartford.

Notes by the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE.

LEAGUE members will remember that in my notes of July 19, I referred to the efforts of our enthusiastic friend, Mr. G. H. Peck, of 5, Baldwyn's Rd., Bexley, Kent, in promoting a Decorated Cage Competition among the children of the members of the Westgate House (Dartford) Working Men's Club.

In his letter to me, Mr. Peck desired me to ask his fellow members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE to assist him by sending along any spare Redpolls, so that every child competing should be assured of a prize. I now hear from Mr. Peck that Mr. G. Haslett, of Finchley, has kindly forwarded him two Redpolls, and Mr. S. Coote, Cambridge, has contributed four.

Mr. Peck tells me that he is sending on Monday next a Greypate to Mr. Haslett. This is in fulfilment of his promise to send to members forwarding a Redpoll or two for the purposes of the children's competition some British birds of his own catching, as some return for their kindness in assisting him in his charitable project.

I hope that any member of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE who has one or two Redpolls which he can spare will send them to Mr. Peck at the address given above, and if the donor should desire some other British birds in exchange I am sure that Mr. Peck will send him something at least to the value of the Redpolls contributed. It is by acts such as these that members can help on one of the ideals of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, the establishment of goodwill and fellowship among bird-keepers generally.

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE is an organisation of bird keepers and bird-lovers, banded together in mutual interest to promote good-fellowship and union, to inculcate the principles of humane cage bird keeping, and to protect the hobby against unjustifiable interference.

How to become an Associate.

Many readers of CAGE BIRDS have written to say that they would like to join CAGE BIRDS' LEAGUE, but cannot afford the subscription. To meet their wishes we have decided to form, in connection with the LEAGUE, a body of Associates. All we ask of these Associates is that they will promise to give every possible attention to the wants of their birds. And they must induce others to see that their birds are kept happy and contented.

All that the intending Associate has to do is either to sign the coupon herewith, and send the same, together with sevenpence, or to get five of his or her friends to sign each a similar coupon, and send the six, together with a penny stamp, to the Secretary of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, who will forward by return an enamelled Button Badge of the LEAGUE. There will be no other charge. NOW, THEN, BIRD LOVERS!—USE YOUR BEST EFFORTS IN THIS SPLENDID CAUSE.

Mr. Robt. Elliott, Sec. Bishop Auckland C.B.S., has removed to 1, Diamond Terrace, Butterknowle, Co. Durham.

Mr. R. B. Gibb, 2, Alexandria Terrace, Govan, hon. sec. of Yorks. C.C. of Scotland, would be glad if Mr. Knight, of Glasgow, would send him his address.

At our last meeting, writes Mr. E. Thomas, sec. Upper Rhondda C.B.S., it was decided that all members must pay their subscriptions by Sept. 10; otherwise they will not be allowed to compete for members' special.

At a meeting of the Felling and Dist. F. and F.S., held August 13, writes Mr. G. Garbutt, Hon. Sec., 15, Balmoral Terrace, Felling-on-Tyne, it was resolved that the membership of the club be open to the counties of Northumberland and Durham.

OBITUARY.

Mr. John Stirling (Brechin).

It is with regret, writes Mr. Geo. Mitchell, sec., Brechin C.B.S., that I have to intimate the death of Mr. John Stirling, one of the oldest members of Brechin C.B.S. He died very suddenly on Wednesday, July 30, after only an hour's illness. He came to Brechin about 25 years ago, and immediately associated himself with the local Society. From the start Mr. Stirling was a very successful breeder and exhibitor. He was a well read, "couthie" old man, and in many matters pertaining to the work of the Society his sound advice was a great help to the members. He leaves a widow and grown-up family, with whom much sympathy is being expressed.

Mr. Wm. Gardner (Lancaster).

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. J. Bostock, Hon. Sec. Lancaster C.B.S., that I notify you of the death of Mr. Wm. Gardner, of Lancaster, at the age of 58 years. Deceased had been a member of the Lancaster and Dis. C.B.S. for upwards of 30 years, and had held all positions possible in the society, being trustee up to the time of his death, also steward at our last show. Mr. Gardner was a great exhibitor of Crests and Norwich up to about 5 years ago, when he had to cease through ill-health. He will be sadly missed by his friends and members of the society. He leaves a widow and four daughters.

I regret to announce, writes Mr. W. L. Smith, Hon. Sec. South Shields and Dist. C.B.S., the death of Mrs. Thompson, the wife of our chairman, at the age of 70 years. At the funeral our society was well represented, turning out in good numbers. Mrs. Thompson was a remarkable old lady; a good judge, a keen critic, a constant visitor at our shows, and a great help to her husband in the Fancy. Even at her great age I have known her to wash his birds for the show bench. She was laid to rest on Tuesday last. Poor old "Bill" was suffering greatly at the loss of his life-long pal. It is hoped that it may be some consolation to him to know that he has our deepest sympathy.

Patronage of the Southern Yorks C.C. for season 1913-14, writes Mr. J. W. Rennie, hon. sec., has been allotted to the following shows: Cup; Plymouth, Wimbledon, Taunton, Cardiff, Leyton, and London C.B.A. Trophy: Clapham, Wimbledon, Taunton, Cheltenham, Cardiff, and London C.B.A. Novice: Wimbledon, Taunton, Cheltenham, Cardiff, Leyton, and London C.B.A.

To Society Secretaries, and Correspondents generally.

Will all correspondents, and secretaries and officials of societies in particular, please note that CAGE BIRDS now goes to press on Wednesday afternoon so that all matter for publication in our issue of the same week MUST reach us on TUESDAY TO BE CERTAIN OF INCLUSION or first post Wednesday at latest.

It would much facilitate our work if Secretaries and others would kindly write out their club reports, notices, etc., in the style in which they see them printed. Write on ONE SIDE ONLY of each sheet of paper used.

A Misprinted Address.

The new address of Mr. W. Reid, of Sunderland, is 4, Edwin Street, Pallion, Sunderland, not Edward Street as printed last week.

The Scottish British Bird and M.C.

Clubs wishing the patronage of the Scottish British Bird and M.C., writes Mr. John Allan, Sec., 69, Dalmeny Street, Leith, must have their applications in by Sept. 3, along with fee and full list of classification. Members not having already paid their subscription kindly note this is now due.

Rawtenstall F.S.

A general meeting of all fanciers and members, writes Mr. H. Kershaw, sec., will be held August 26, at 7.30, at the Mission Room, Hall St., Rawtenstall. Business: Arranging date for annual show, judges, classes, etc. Will all cage-bird fanciers in the district make an effort to attend, as they are all cordially invited?

A White Skylark for Lochgelly.

A pure White Lark, writes Mr. R. Muir, Hon. Sec. Lochgelly C.B.S., has been captured at Oakenden by one of our members, Mr. Alex. Cooper. This bird has been the cynosure of all eyes in the district for the past week or two. He is a fine singer and is taking to cage life admirably. With the careful attention he will receive from his owner, we hope to see him on view at our show in October.

Addresses Wanted.

Will Mr. Robt. Gracey, of Saltcoates Lane, Hull, and Mr. W. Scales, junr., who writes from Enfield Highway, please send us their full addresses? The former wrote for our free Illustrated Brochure on "Our Canaries"; and the latter sent a deposit of one shilling with his request to be supplied with the complete volume. Letters sent to the addresses given have been returned to us endorsed "Not to be found."

Read page 99 this week and fill up and post the form thereon.

DO IT NOW

if you wish the splendid offer to be open to YOU, as the demand is simply phenomenal.

Idle Fanciers in Luck.

The recently-formed Idle and Dist. C.B.S. are offering a treat to the bird-lovers of the district. As will be seen by the announcement in Club Notices column this week, the Illingworth silver cup and the Idle Subscription Shield will be presented at a smoking concert to be held at the White Bear Inn, Aug. 27. Not only will admission to the concert be free to all, but pipes and tobacco will be handed round without charge. A full house should be assured.

Wet Weather Birds.

In some districts rain has been too plentiful; this has been the case in some parts of Ireland, and where Snipe are resident the birds have benefited by the continuous downpour. Unlike most birds, these fare well in a damp season, and this year the second broods have been plentiful. These birds of the second hatch seldom grow to any size, and when shooting commences they are still upon their native ground, while their brothers and sisters of the first brood have emigrated to other lands.

Changing their Costumes.

The young Robins are rapidly changing their yellowish-brown baby costume for one of richer hue. To see the ruddy colour gradually spreading over the breast of a wild bird is wonderfully interesting. One can occasionally meet a parti-coloured Bullfinch away in the woods, but the baby Robins are almost our daily companions, consequently we are able to watch quite closely the change to adult plumage. Already some of them have commenced to warble their songs, although only just breaking into moult.

A Re-union of Old Friends.

An interesting meeting of two of the "old time" fanciers took place recently when our old friend "Sam" Cook made a sojourn with his life-time "pal," "Joe" Hills. These two old-stagers (Sam is 74 and Joe is 80) had a rare time together talking of times as old as themselves, and of the many years judging they had together in the British bird section at the Crystal Palace. Readers will be sorry to learn that our old friend Mr. Hills is now quite blind, and has to have his CAGE BIRDS read to him weekly by his devoted wife. The Cockatoo belonging to Mr. Hills, and whose portrait some time ago appeared in our pages, is now ninety-four years old, fourteen years older than his master, and knows almost as much. He says nearly everything, and looks like living to double his present age. Messrs. Hills and Cook judged the British birds at the Palace, the former for thirty years and the latter for ten, and both made their last appearance as judges at the Jubilee show of 1909.

"Cage Birds" Championship Scheme.

Will Benefit all Societies and Provides £200 in Cash Specials for Exhibitors.

SOCIETIES to notify this week their acceptance of our Championship Competition at their annual shows are:—

ARBROATH C.B.S.
BISHOP AUCKLAND C.B.S.
BROUGHTY FERRY C.B.S.
COVENTRY GODIVA C.B.S.
LEEDS C.B.S.
SITTINGBOURNE C.B.S.
SOUTHEND AND SOUTHERN COUNTIES O.S.
UPPER RHONDDA C.B.S.

Please include our annual fixture in your list of Coupon Shows, writes Mr. W. A. Wilson, hon. sec., Leeds C.B.S. Will send on later for coupons, which will total a big number.

The members of my society are all anxious to go in for your scheme, writes Mr. J. Gray, sec., Arbroath C.B.S.

Please forward a book of coupons for your grand competition.—R. Elliott, sec., Bishop Auckland C.B.S.

CAGE BIRDS' Championship Scheme (a few of the benefits appertaining to which were explained in our issue of Aug. 9, is open to every society which has enrolled its annual exhibition amongst the guaranteed fixtures appearing in our list of "Show Dates Fixed" (vide page 107 of this issue). We may say that all guaranteed shows also secure substantial benefits (a reduction in our advertising rates ils one) quite apart from those attaching to our Championship Scheme. A request addressed to our Advertisement Manager will bring full particulars to the officials of any interested society.

Pamphlets giving particulars of the scheme will be forwarded to any secretary of a society good enough to notify us of his desire to have one. We have also ready our pamphlets explaining the scheme from the exhibitor's point of view, and shall be glad to post a copy to any interested fancier who sends a postcard applying for one. We invite anyone in doubt upon any point concerning the scheme to write us at once. All letters should be addressed to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A Brief Outline of the Scheme.

The main idea of CAGE BIRDS Championship Competition is to discover which are the Twelve Best Champion Birds and the Twelve best Novice Birds of the Season. The Competition is open to every Show appearing in CAGE BIRDS List of Guaranteed Fixtures (this covers every quarter of the United Kingdom) provided application is made to us by the management of that Show before Saturday, Sept. 20th next.

TWO PRIZES OF 10S. EACH, one for novices and one for champions, will be offered (under certain stipulations), at each accepted Coupon Show.

TWELVE DIPLOMAS OF HONOUR will be offered, in addition, at each Coupon Show, for Champion exhibitors, and for Novice exhibitors, such diplomas to be given for the best Champion Coupon Bird and best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the following sections:—

(1) YORKSHIRE CANARIES.
(2) NORWICH.
(3) CRESTS AND CRESTBREDS.
(4) BORDER FANCIES.
(5) SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS.
(6) GREENS.
(7) LANCASHIRES AND LIZARDS.
(8) ANY OTHER VARIETY CANARY.
(9) MULES AND HYBRIDS.
(10) BRITISH, HARD-BILLED.
(11) BRITISH, SOFT-BILLED.
(12) FOREIGN.

The winner of any one of the foregoing diplomas will have the right to compete with not more than four birds, on payment to the Palace Show Authorities of the usual entry fee, in our final championship competition at the Crystal Palace Show of 1914.

FIRST PRIZE, £3;
SECOND PRIZE, £2;
THIRD PRIZE, £1.
FOURTH PRIZE, 10s.

The following cash prizes will also be offered for competition at the Crystal Palace Show:—£10 10s. for the best Coupon bird exhibited in the Champion classes in the above twelve sections; £10 10s. for the best Coupon bird shown by a novice other than the winner in the Champion Section. We shall also offer A TEN GUINEA CHALLENGE SHIELD, to be won three times in succession, for the best bird at the Crystal Palace Show entered in our Competition.

Some Important Points to Note.

1.—One coupon entitles one bird to compete at any one Diploma Show. Any number of coupon birds can be entered at the same show.

2.—No coupons sold after the last day of September, 1913, except to previous purchasers, who have the right of duplicating their order up to the end of October.

3.—No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage, will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bonafide property of the exhibitor.

4.—The birds entered may be of any age.

5.—The Judge will be instructed to withhold a diploma should the merit of the competing birds in any particular section not justify its award.

6.—We reserve the right, in the event of there being less than 10 separate competitors altogether in our competition at any one Diploma Show to withhold the cash prizes thereat, the diplomas remaining on offer for as many birds as are eligible for them.

7.—No exhibitor may win more than one diploma in the season in any one section, and no exhibitor will be allowed to win more than two of the 10s. prizes offered at the Diploma Shows, each of which must be won with a different bird; but an exhibitor may (if able) win one diploma in each of the 12 sections.

8.—An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning the diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in any one of the 12 sections for the final competition, and for each entry made for the final competition at the Crystal Palace a coupon will be necessary.

9.—No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

10.—In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

11.—The Editor reserves the right to alter the conditions from time to time in whatever manner he thinks best in the interests of competitors themselves, and also of the competition.

BREEDING OF RARE BIRDS AT THE ZOO.

An interesting and remarkable event is the breeding in the New Bird House at the Zoological Gardens of a pair of Spot-billed Toucanets (Selenidera maculirostris), certainly for the first time in Regent's Park, and most probably the first time in captivity. Toucanets are rather small Toucans from tropical South America, with the characteristic large bill of the family, in this case curiously striped and blotched. Unlike most of the Toucans, the male and female Toucanets are dissimilar, the males being brighter and more conspicuously marked with yellow and black, in place of the pale yellow and rusty chestnut of the females. They are active, gregarious birds, feeding chiefly on fruits and seeds, but probably not disdaining animal diet, as in captivity they show delight and excitement when they are offered cockroaches, mealworms, or even small mice and pieces of meat. They tear animal food to pieces with the serrated edges of the mandible, and then, throwing back the head, swallow the little lumps with every token of pleasure.

A few weeks ago the pair in one of the large compartments of the Bird House showed signs of courtship, and were provided with a hollow log. It was evident that breeding had taken place, but as the birds were left undisturbed the oval and glossy white eggs usual in the family were not actually seen. The cock and hen took turns in incubation, the hen usually remaining inside the log all night, and the male assuming her duty in the morning. About a fortnight ago the keeper was able to ascertain that a single chick had been hatched. It was unusually large and completely naked. The parents feed it assiduously on animal diet. Live cockroaches and mealworms are placed in a tin on the floor of the aviary, and the parents, first satisfying themselves, fly up to the log, the living prey in their bill. So far as has been noticed they do not masticate the food first or regurgitate it for the chick.

Other interesting birds that have been bred are Spotted Tinamous, Douglas, Mexican, Californian, and Rain Quail, Crested, Bronzewing, and White-fronted Doves, Green-backed Porphyrios, Red-shouldered Starlings, Mexican Rosefinches, Snow-birds, Weaver-birds, and Shoveller duck. The Western Aviary and the Summer Aviary near the ape-house are the most successful places for breeding. It is astonishing how quickly wild birds recognise that they are safe from intrusion and go through the duties of nest-making, incubation and rearing with complete confidence if they are secluded from others of their own kind, even though crowds are passing close to them on the other side of the wire enclosure.—"The Times," London, Aug. 18.

CAGE BIRDS 1913 ANNUAL; A Few Copies Now for Sale.

Some time back we had to announce the fact that our very successful "Annual" for 1913 was out of print. We, however, succeeded in getting together about 50 copies from various agents, and have a few of these left, which can be obtained direct from our offices at the usual price; viz., 8d. post free. Orders should be sent early, as there is no possibility of more of this splendid edition being on sale. Please note that these copies can only be obtained through the post, direct from 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

The Cultivation of Wild Plants for Cage Birds

By R. MORSE (Hitchin)

SECTION 2: PERENNIAL PLANTS.

Flowers in the Winter.

THE COLTSFOOT (Tussilago Farfara) produces abundance of flower heads, which, coming as they frequently do in the depth of winter, possess a charm of their own. Although the leaves of this plant are well known to most country people, the flowers are comparatively rarely seen, except by those few who take their walks abroad during the bleak months of February and March. The leaves, which make their appearance as the flowers wither, remain all the summer, so that little difficulty should be experienced in finding ample supplies of the creeping rootstock for removal to the wild-garden.

The Coltsfoot thrives best in moist situations, and grows particularly well in clayey fields, and amongst limestone rubbish. The rootstocks may be removed at any time during late summer or early autumn, and if the operation is successful, a good crop of ornamental flowers on stalks about six to nine inches high should be produced during the following February or March. Those who wish to grow this plant from seed, may sow the latter at any time from April to July, and the young plants will mature much more quickly if transplanted as soon as large enough to handle, and removed again when nice sturdy plants to their permanent situations. This latter operation should be performed early enough for the plants to become firmly rooted before winter sets in. The seeds, being somewhat small, should be covered very lightly with finely sifted soil, and the rows might be some five or six inches apart.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Those who cultivate Coltsfoot will find it almost impossible to keep the plant within bounds when once thoroughly established, for the underground rootstocks spread far and wide, and flowers spring up in the most unexpected places, sometimes even in gravel paths. The most suitable spot for its cultivation is a plot of ground which the plant can have all to itself. If planted in small clumps, it will rapidly cover the whole area, and an abundant annual harvest of seed may be gathered.

THE COMMON RAGWORT (Senecio Jacobæa) is a stout, much-branched plant, and not infrequently reaches a height of four feet. It therefore requires a lot of room when grown in the garden. The flower-heads (which are similar in structure to those of the common Daisy) are of a bright yellow colour, and since they are produced in immense numbers, and often measure an inch in diameter, they render the plant quite ornamental, especially when large quantities are seen together.

Ragwort occurs abundantly in waste places and pastures, where it is in flower from June to September. The plants may be safely removed to the garden during early autumn, preferably after the seeds have ripened. The stems will die down on the approach of winter, but the roots will retain their vitality, and a fine crop of seeds should be forthcoming the following season.

Those who wish to grow Ragwort from seed may sow the latter at any time from April to July, transplanting the seedlings as soon as large enough to handle, and finally removing them to their permanent situations. The drills should be about six inches apart, and the seeds thinly covered with fine soil. When planted in their flowering quarters, the plants should be from nine to twelve inches apart, according to the space at disposal. A sunny situation is preferable.

Inelegant but Useful Weeds.

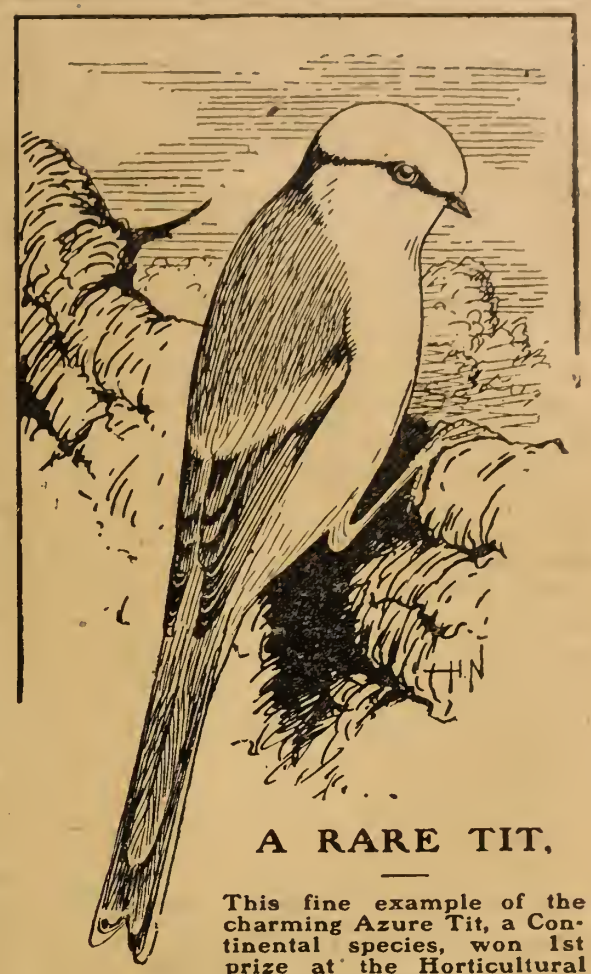
THE GREATER PLANTAIN (Plantago major) is in bloom from May to September, during which time its well-known seed-spikes are conspicuous objects along the borders of fields and by waysides throughout the country. The average height of these spikes is perhaps about a foot, but great variations are frequently found.

To grow Plantains from seed, the latter may be sown at any time from March to July, the young seedlings being transplanted as soon as large enough to handle, and finally removed to their permanent situations when they have become strong young plants. The seeds should be sown in shallow drills, and only lightly covered with fine soil. If too close together, the plants must be thinned out early until an inch or two apart, or successful transplanting will be a most difficult operation. When placed where they are to flower, the plants should stand about four to six inches apart.

A simpler method of cultivating Plantains, however, is to remove the plants bodily from their natural habitats (see previous instalment, page 77) during September, retaining if possible a fair amount of soil round the roots. They should then be planted in a rather dry, sunny aspect in the garden, where a fine crop of seed-heads should be forthcoming the following summer. This Plantain will thrive in almost any soil, but one that is too rich should be avoided, for under such conditions many immense leaves are almost invariably formed, and correspondingly few small flower-spikes.

THE RIBWORT PLANTAIN (Plantago lanceolata) is very similar in most ways to the one above. The seed-heads, however, are very much shorter, and consequently this plant is not so productive as the other species. It grows abundantly in pastures, meadows, and waste places, where it is in flower right on to October, and may be cultivated in exactly the same way as the Greater Plantain. It is better in each case to select those plants for removal to the garden which have fully matured, rather than those which are in flower, and the spikes should always be removed before transplanting.

Favourites of Greenfinch and Bullfinch.



DOCKS (Rumex).—There are at least ten species of Dock which occur in the wild state in our land, and as these are very difficult to distinguish—except to botanists—a detailed account would not be suitable for these pages. All the common kinds, however, may be cultivated from seed by sowing this at any time from March to July in drills about half an inch deep. The seedlings should be transplanted twice, as recommended with Greater Plantain, as this will tend to promote early maturity. The plants commonly reach a height of about three feet, and should stand about nine inches apart in their permanent situations.

Docks are very common in our fields and waste lands, though some species thrive only in moist places, such as river-sides. The plants will readily grow in the garden if the roots are removed from the fields during September, and the hints already given for transplanting are followed.

Cocks-foot Grass, Common Rag wort, and Sweet Vernal Grass.

It would be wise when removing any plants from their natural habitats to note as far as possible the aspect and surroundings, and to choose for them whenever practicable a similar situation in the garden. It is remarkable that vast numbers of our native plants, although they thrive without the slightest attention in their natural homes, require that great care be given to such details as soil and situation before their cultivation can really be called successful.

Two Useful Grasses.

COCKSFOOT GRASS (Dactylis glomerata) grows abundantly in meadows and by waysides, where its well-known spikes are in flower from June until August, commonly attaining a height of about eighteen inches. The seeds may be sown during summer in shallow drills a few inches apart, and no further attention is likely to be required. No seed heads will as a rule be produced the first year, but for many years afterwards large crops can be gathered with very little trouble. Those who do not wish to go to the trouble of sowing the seeds, may dig up the plants in autumn, and remove to the garden, where they will flower profusely the following summer.

SWEET VERNAL GRASS (Anthoxanthum odoratum) is another of our abundant meadow-grasses, similar in height and culture to the preceding species, and hence no further remarks regarding its cultivation will be necessary. It is interesting to note that it is chiefly this grass which imparts, when drying, its pleasant scent to new-mown hay.

NOTE.—For full descriptions of the plants dealt with in these articles, reference should be made to "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants for Cage Birds" (1s. 2d., post free, from our office), which contains in addition, much useful information regarding the medicinal and other properties of the various plants and seeds commonly used in the bird-room and aviary.

MY FRIEND THE ROBIN

A Charming Happening on a Summer Holiday

ON a summer afternoon, as I came through the wooded grounds of the hotel where I was staying at the edge of the beautiful "Punchbowl" in Surrey, I saw a Robin on the bough of a tree close beside me. As my habit was with birds I stood still and softly whistled to him; to my surprise, he not only listened, but seemed pleased, and came nearer to me. After talking to him for some time, I passed on and left him, thinking little more about the incident..

On Sunshade, Foot, or Lap.

The next day, or the day after, when I was sitting in the quiet and unfrequented part of the garden where I often spent most of the morning, the same little fellow came to me, and appeared to have very friendly intentions. After this first visit I provided him with some sweet biscuit; and he daily grew tamer, and came frequently to and fro to me. "Flop" would come something on my sunshade, or "pat" on my foot, and there was "Bobbie"! He soon came on my hand, and would jump on my lap and tap the little box in which I kept his crumbs until I opened it for him.

"Bobbie" would sit on the seat beside me and sing; but he was very jealous, and drove away every other bird that came near—not one was allowed a morsel of biscuit. When it was wet I used to sit under the porch of the house; and I had only to call "Bobbie" and over he would come.

As the time drew near for my departure I felt sorry at the thought of leaving my pet, for I had grown fond of him; but a heavy thunder-storm broke a few evenings before; and, strangely enough, I never saw "Bobbie" again!—ELSIE F. ALABONE.

Wild Birds on Dartmoor.

Wild birds are plentiful on Dartmoor, and one can note many species in a day's journey across the moors and the surrounding country. All the Finches make a home here, the Linnets and Bullfinches being particularly plentiful. The Buntings are also well represented. The Yellow bird being abundant everywhere, and in no part of England have we seen finer specimens, writes a correspondent. They are large and especially brilliant in colour. Old inhabitants say that the Yellow birds have always been numerous, the place seems alive with them, and one cannot travel far without seeing a dozen or two upon the hedgerows bordering the lanes. Tits are plentiful, and nest in the stone walls surrounding many of the fields. Out on the moors the larger Hawks and the Crows claim one's attention. Local names prevent one gleaning much information from the inhabitants.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions regarding advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

[We are sorry to get, as we are preparing for press, a note from Mr. St. John that he has been taken suddenly ill, and has been therefore unable to complete the whole of his replies. Will correspondents who are not answered this week kindly excuse the unavoidable delay? Urgent cases will be replied to by post, and the remaining answers will appear next week.—Editor.]

ALARMING ATTACKS (R.B.).—The bird is doubtless suffering from acute epilepsy, most likely brought about by suppression of the moult. Keep her in a fairly warm temperature, but see she is free from cold draughts and that the cage is free from red mites, and throw a light cover over the cage for a time. Give a staple diet of plain canary. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of scalded rape, and on the alternate days a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and well sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week give a small teaspoonful of mixed seed, and four times a week a half-ripe plantain stalk. In the water add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn, and as much bromide of potassium as will cover a threepenny piece for two days. After this give 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny piece in the water every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days 20 drops of Chemical Food, continuing the latter until bird is stronger. If any more attacks occur dissolve as much bromide of potassium as will cover a threepenny piece, and the same quantity of sulphate of soda, in two teaspoonfuls of water, and give two drops of this in the beak three or four times a day for a few days, and still go on with the above-advised treatment.

WEAKLY YOUNG (T.P.).—If the cock has been in apparently good health since the moulting ceased, as I presume it did, in April, or soon afterwards, I see no reason to attribute the condition of the young to his being unhealthy. As a rule, birds are not in good song when they ail anything, even though the trouble is rather trivial. The probability is that there is something wrong with your method of feeding the young, but as you have sent along for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," I need not go into details on that score here. Follow up the system of feeding and management generally which you will find given in the book; keep the cage clean and strewn with clean gritty sand. Do not give a large quantity of lush rank green food, but a few plantain or shepherd's purse seed stalks, grass seeds, or a few marigold or nasturtium blooms to pick over will do no harm and will keep the birds healthfully occupied; and I have no doubt you will find the young get along all right. If they appear to droop you may add a little bread and milk with two drops per bird of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and well sprinkled with maw seed to the diet each day for two or three weeks, and mix 20 drops of Chemical Food in the water every second day for the same length of time. There is nothing to be alarmed at in birds appearing dull and sleepy to a certain extent just now. Many birds show such symptoms on the approach of the moult. Do not try to do any more breeding this year.

GROWTH ON WING (W. B.). The substance is evidently an abnormal feather growth. Moisten it once with a feather dipped in tincture of iodine. This may cause it to dry up and fall off naturally in the course of a week or two. If it does not, wait until the moult is over, then tie a ligature of silk or thread firmly around the base of the growth and leave the rest to Nature. You will find some day, perhaps in a few days, or it may be a week or two, that the growth and ligature have both suddenly disappeared, having dropped off and left the wing practically quite normal. Do not on any account attempt to pull or cut it off.

ANXIOUS FOREBODINGS (S.P.Q.R.).—As you ask for my candid opinion, I give it you plain and unvarnished. I think the giving of a few drops of raw brandy to a Canary which is in "extremis" and too weak to swallow easily, is mistaken kindness, and is much more likely to cause great discomfort, if not actually increase its suffering, than to do any material good. I would not force undiluted spirits upon a far more active and strong bird. In your case you should have diluted it with at least an equal quantity of milk or water, or if an aperient medicine was called for, an equal bulk of syrup of buckthorn would have been as good and served the double purpose. Where food and stimulation are urgently needed, equal parts of brandy, milk, and malt extract are excellent if given a drop or two at a time in the beak, but the raw spirit itself—well, personally, I would not give it. Probably the bird would have died in any case—so why worry?

MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H NORMAN.

YOUNG REDPOLL-GREENFINCHES (Alex. J.P.).—It is just possible that your Greenfinch hen has mated with the cock Redpoll in preference to the Greenie, such things have occurred before, especially where the cock of the same species has been somewhat backward and inattentive to his mate. Young Greenfinches are bold in beak and head, and have yellow wings and are tinged with yellow underneath, although generally mottled over the body. The head alone should be sufficient guide for you to identify your young birds. If Hybrids, the beak would be smaller, and the head less bold, and the edges of the wing feathers only slightly tinged with yellow, while the general appearance of the bird would be browner than in true Greenies. The cross is not particularly rare, and as regards the value, kindly look up the answer to "Anxious," in the issue of August 16. If your birds turn out to be Hybrids, I would advise you to keep the old ones together the whole of the winter, and try them again next year. Remove the cock Greenfinch; you can perhaps find him another partner.

TROUBLE WITH GOLDFINCH - CANARIES (E. T. B).—You are very unfortunate in losing your young Hybrids, when doing so well. Young birds are naturally very greedy, and I think you have been somewhat overdoing it in the matter of food. What I mean is that hemp, niger, linseed, mixed seeds, and egg food is a very rich diet for baby birds, especially when nothing has been given as a corrective. I would advise you to be less liberal with the richer seeds; let canary and rape be the staple food, and the mixed seeds given only two or three times a week. On other days, give boiled rape or milk sop. Your object should be to keep your birds healthy, and in good condition, without being fat. If you are not certain how they are going on, catch them occasionally and examine them, and feed accordingly.

BRITISH BIRDS.

Answered by H. J. FULLJAMES'.

IDENTITY OF WILD PLANT (C. Williams).—The spray you send is from the common Burdock, a biennial plant, which is very plentiful in many waste places and along hedgerows. The seeds are greatly relished by Bullfinches and Goldfinches, and you need have no hesitation in offering them to any seed-eating bird whatever.

ABOUT JACKDAWS (G. E. Le'Grys).—The slitting of the tongue of a Jackdaw or of any other bird would certainly not improve its talking powers. It is difficult to imagine what could have been the origin of such a barbarous idea, and it is strange indeed that credence should have ever been given to it. There is scarcely any limit to the diet of a Jackdaw; it will eat almost anything. Soaked dog biscuit, table scraps, meat (cooked or raw), cracked nuts, beech mast, green peas, any kind of fruit or berries, Sparrow's eggs, an occasional young Sparrow or a mouse, cockroaches, garden worms, smooth caterpillars, all of these will be useful in turn. There is no disputing your statement that "they like mealworms," but I am afraid you would not like the look of your mealworm bill if you gave your four Jackdaws all they would eat of these. A pint a day would look small when they had had their fill. The breeding of enough mealworms to satisfy them would be a very formidable task indeed, and you would not get any results for many months. If you care to breed some as occasional "tit-bits" for the future, provide a good-sized box or chest, partially fill this with layers of sacking and broken dog biscuit, add some barley meal or "middlings," and turn in a quantity, say a quart, of mealworms. Make a few holes in the lid of the box for ventilation and put the whole away in a dry and moderately warm place for twelve months at least. Then you would have a supply from which you could take out an occasional handful as a treat for the Jackdaws. The difference in the demeanour of your birds would suggest that two of them are hand-reared and two are adult caught. Teach the latter to expect some especial treat every time they see you, and they should soon get as tame as the others. A Jackdaw makes a most entertaining pet if one does not object to the trouble of keeping him clean, but I should think there are few bird keepers who would care for four of him.

EGG FOOD AND PNEUMO-ENTERITIS (H. P.).—The answer to which you refer is quite a positive one—there is no mistaking the statement that the disease was due to ptomaine poisoning. How the poison got into the bird's system is, of course, problematical, it may have happened in various ways. You should certainly get from our office (sevenpence, post-free) our little book by Dr. R. H. Clarke, on "Septic Fever in Cage Birds." This goes very fully into the various ways in which that disease may be conveyed, and the remarks are applicable to any contagious disease. It is much too serious a matter to be treated in a short answer.

DEAD BIRDS IDENTIFIED (C. C G.).—The bodies you sent were those of two unfortunate young Yellow Wagtails, cock and hen. It looks like a case not only of cruelty, but of imposture, for the heads of the birds had been artificially stained with aniline dye, so that they looked like no bird that exists. It is not to be wondered at that they only lived one day. They were probably nearly dead when you bought them, and in any case, your "feeding" them on canary seed would have killed them, for Wagtails are purely insectivorous in a natural state, and require the best of "insectile" food in captivity. It is such cases that bring disrepute upon the hobby of bird-keeping, and lend a handle to those who would tar all bird-dealers with the same brush. I should be very glad to hear that you had been able to institute a prosecution against the person who sold the birds to you. Wagtails are protected throughout the year in the County of Middlesex by the Wild Birds Acts, and the catcher was liable for taking them, the dealer for dealing with them, and yourself for having them in your possession as recently-caught birds.

BRITISH BIRD QUERISTS

should consult Norman's British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Moult British Birds." HOW TO KEEP THRUSHES AND BLACKBIRDS (F. W. Armley).—These may be kept on any good "insectile" mixture, such as advertised in our columns, together, of course, with some live food such as mealworms, small garden worms, snails, etc. They need a large cage of the box type, not less than two feet long, eighteen inches deep, and eighteen inches high. During the moult it is only necessary to keep their cage in a place free from draughts, and not subject to great variations of temperature. You will find full particulars of how to keep and feed these and other insectivorous birds in Nutshell No. 26 (2½d. post free), see advt. inset in these columns. You sent neither name nor address, and both these should be forwarded with any query.

SEXING NIGHTINGALES AND REDSTARTS (Mealworm).—It would require a cleverer pen than mine to tell you in writing how to sex Nightingales. The plumage is alike in both sexes, and one would need to be very expert indeed to be at all certain with any individual example. As with many species in which there is no describable difference in plumage, there is an indefinable something which would guide an expert in forming an opinion, but even then it would only be an opinion. (2) The number of mealworms a Nightingale would require daily depends a great deal upon the quality of the "stock food" provided for it, and also upon whether it is getting other kinds of insect food, such as house-flies, spiders, gentles, etc. Roughly, with a good stock food, from half a dozen to a dozen a day would be sufficient. Too many are harmful, because of the indigestibility of their tough skins. (3) With Redstarts it is easy to distinguish the sexes. The trace of the white forehead which is evident in the male, even in immature or in winter plumage, is entirely absent at all times in the female, and this in itself is sufficient distinction. The feeding should be the same as for the Nightingale—a good stock mixture containing a liberal proportion of best ants' cocoons and dried flies or silkworm pupæ, supplemented by from six to twelve mealworms or live insects daily. Most Redstarts are fond of ripe fruit, and any such may be offered them, as also to the Nightingales, although the latter are not likely to take it so freely. You should get Nutshell No. 25, which treats fully upon the proper keeping of these and other small insectivorous birds (see advt. inset).

MANAGEMENT OF LINNETS (Young Fancier).—While we are at all times very pleased to help bird-keepers in any difficulty in which they find themselves, and are especially glad if we can do anything to assist "Young Fanciers," yet I think you will allow that it is much too large an order to give in a paragraph "advice on the management of Linnets." It would take columns to outline ever so shortly the details involved. You would do well to get our Nutshell No. 2 (twopence, from your local bird-dealer or newsagent, or 2½d. post free, from our manager). In this you will find full particulars of the proper feeding and management of Linnets, with instructions as to sexing, moulting, hand-rearing, and exhibiting, together with details of the treatment of Linnets which are kept for their song alone. In fact, everything worth knowing about this popular little songster is comprised in this useful little booklet.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S

BREEDING IN CAGES (A Beginner).—Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Long-tailed Grassfinches, Bengalese, and White Java Sparrows, are all probable breeders in roomy cages; the larger the cage the better for your prospects of success. Cages should be of the box type, and a minimum size of 30 x 15 x 18 inches high, with a bunch of twiggy branches and a nest receptacle at each end. Most certainly the birds must have sun and light, also all the fresh air you can give without draught. You would find our "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1s. 1½d. post free, from our Manager, a great help to you in starting your series. You can procure your birds from now onwards, as opportunity offers; watch our advertisement columns.

ROSELLA IN A BAD WAY (A.D.).—I am very pleased to get so good a report, and congratulate you on your success in treating it. Of course, I can only advise on information supplied, and after being ill and helpless for some time, it appeared as if too far gone for treatment. The emulsion you refer to is used regularly by many bird-keepers, especially with softbills, more particularly the honey suckers, and is a great help for any weak bird that can be got to take it. If your bird is tame enough I should let it out of the cage for a short time daily for a fly round; it will benefit greatly from the exercise. Such daily exercise is of great benefit to caged Parrots of all species, and the lack of it often lies at the root of many of the ailments this group of birds is liable to.

AVIARY SHELTER (R.H.M.S.).—(1) While perhaps not really necessary, double boarding certainly makes things more comfortable for the birds, and certainly would play a large part in their well being. Such is the action of the weather on a single course of boards, first shrinking and then swelling, that for a part of the year at any rate it certainly is not wind-tight, and open seams or split boards spell draught. Double boarded, and with a layer of felt between, the board should give a dry, weather-proof shed, and I certainly advise it. (2) Zebra Finches, Silverbills, Bengalese, Bronze Mannikins, Avadavats, Gold-breasted Waxbills, Spice Finches, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Bib Finches, Cutthroats, Black-headed Mannikins, Magpie Mannikin and Red-billed Weavers.

SAFFRON FINCHES (Ginger).—Note: Your query did not arrive till Tuesday, and queries received after Monday morning cannot be answered in the ensuing issue, as "Cage Birds" goes to Press on Wednesday, during the summer months. Weather conditions may have been responsible for your mishaps; it has been rather a poor breeding season with Foreign Finches. You do not say how your birds are kept, whether in cage or aviary. I assume the latter; if so, when giving live food scatter it among growing grass or over plants and bushes, thus compelling the birds to do some amount of foraging. There is a good deal of variability among respective pairs of same species, and some never make good parents. You can add to your dietary but little, but you might try moistened ants' eggs, and give the live food often and in small quantities, rather than a larger quantity once or twice a day. As indicated above, many fledglings have been lost this year from unfavourable weather conditions.

TO KEEP WITH BUDGERIGARS (E.G.B.).—You give me no idea of space or other conditions, but, providing you have room for them, you can keep any of the following with Budgerigars:—Cockatiels, Rosella Parrakeets, Lovebirds, Cardinals, Starlings, Thrushes, Java Sparrows, Pekin Robins, and other species of similar size and strength; but I do not advise the mixing of Parrakeets and Finch-like birds in the same aviary. You will be more likely to have success if you keep only the Parrakeet tribe in your aviary. If it is large enough, it would look very bright with, say, two or three pairs of Budgerigars and one pair each of Cockatiels, Madagascar and Black-faced Lovebirds, Rosella and Passerine Parrakeets, and all these would thrive on practically the same treatment.

AILING BUDGERIGAR (F. W. Todd).—There can be no general remedy; such must be prescribed to meet the particular ailment. Put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose, and on the intervening days half a teaspoonful of the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, glycerine and oxymel of squills in equal parts, also in the drinking water for a fortnight, and then put it on a course of byno-phosphates (half a teaspoonful in the drinking water) till the bird is in normal condition again. Exercise will count almost as much as medicine, and an occasional fly round the room will help greatly. Keep it in a light and airy position, but do not subject it to draught. The main thing to watch about a bird's condition is to note whether the bowels are moving freely, and at the least sign of constipation to give a laxative, and then a short course of byno-phosphates.

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-Keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

SEXING SPICE BIRDS (L. Hilbert).—I have never been able to distinguish any difference in the plumage of this species, but have invariably found the hen to be slightly smaller (slighter build), her beak also slightly shorter and stouter than that of her mate, and the crown of her head is also a little narrower than that of the male. The above differences are not very noticeable, and the eye needs a little educating before being able to readily sex them, but once you have had a true pair under observation for a little time they become quite obvious. The distinctions only apply to adult birds.

BUDGERIGARS (Clay).—(1) The print you send is that of a Budgerigar, of which there are three varieties, viz., Green, Yellow, and Blue, the latter being very rare and costly. Budgerigars, Lovebirds, etc., are all Parrakeets. The Budgerigar comes from Australia, and it is frequently called the Undulated Grass Parrakeet. If your bird is exactly like the print, it is a Green Budgerigar. (2) The season is irregular, practically all the year, except during the period of the moult. (3) canary and white millet seed, a few oats, and a millet spray occasionally, with green food (lettuce, flowering grass, etc., according to season), and fruit if they will take it. Grit, cuttlebone, and water must be regularly supplied. Get our Nutshell, "Budgerigars," 2½d. post free from our Manager.

WHITE JAVA SPARROWS (F.O.M.).—(1) A seed mixture of one quart each of canary and white millet seeds, half a pint each of crushed oats, hemp, and paddy rice; well mix and keep a supply in cage. Give a millet spray once or twice a week. Supply green food, grit, and cuttlebone regularly. Give a little insectile mixture (soft food) when they are feeding young. (2) Get a roomy box cage, furnish it with twiggy branches for perching accommodation, and hang up a large rush nest at each end of the cage. Hay, grass, and a little moss will suffice for nesting material. They are hardy and robust birds, and will do quite well either caged in a cold room, or will live out of doors all the year round in a garden aviary, if put out in May or June.

WHAT IS IT? (Iredale).—I have never previously heard the name you mention, but your bird is evidently a Serin of some sort. If as I read your note, its plumage is lightish grey, with a yellow rump, then it would appear that your bird is a Yellow-rumped Serin. The cock bird of this species has quite a nice song, but frequently he does not pipe up much except during the breeding. Regret I cannot be more definite, but the above is all I can say from the details you supply. The value of Serins is not large, from 4s. 6d. to 15s. per pair being about the average value, but there are a few rare species which would command a higher figure.

BUDGERIGARS (Wallitone).—Unsound and sour food of all kinds would be likely to set up the trouble, as also would dusty and musty smelling seeds, or during late autumn, winter, and early spring, frosted green food, or the same saturated with morning dews, would be likely to have a similar effect. Attention to perfect cleanliness, good, sound, sweet seeds, and the washing of green food, should keep the trouble at bay—note, washed green-food should be partially dried before being supplied to the birds. To keep birds such as Budgerigars fit, keep a watch on the action of the bowels, and whenever the voidings appear at all hard, give a dose or two of Dinneford's Magnesia, the condition of the bird to regulate the frequency of the doses. In all complaints accompanied by diarrhœa the patient should be isolated, and the voidings frequently destroyed (burning is best). Bismuth is a useful remedy, and in acute cases one drop of tincture of opium, to the beak, daily for a week, should give relief. Get "C.B. Annual" for 1913, and consult the chapter on bird diseases.

CRESTED CARDINALS (A.L.O.).—(1) I should say the plumage difference in your birds is merely a matter of age. There is really very little colour difference in the sexes, but ages being about equal, the hen is slightly less brilliant than her mate, slightly smaller, and she has a longer beak, the ridge or culmen of the upper mandible being less arched than that of her mate. (2) The English spring and summer. (3) I do not think there is much probability of young being reared in a cage, even in an aviary the young hatched out are not always reared, as a more or less continuous supply of live food is necessary, at any rate for the first seven days, and it must not be cut off too suddenly then. (4) The aspect of your aviary (East) is bad, and when you add draughty to this it makes a combination as bad as it well can be, and there are few birds that would survive a winter in it. It is small, and you say nothing about the shelter, so a definite opinion is not possible. (5) As a rule Cardinals will not take insectile mixture, but they are the better for it if they will do so. Their main dietary is canary and white millet seed, with smaller quantities of rape, hemp, and sunflower seeds; the supply of ripe fruit should be continuous, and each bird should get several live insects per diem. (6) Either in a box or construct an open cup-shaped nest in some branches or bush.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Identity of Wild Seed (E.C.).—The seed you send is that of the Sea Plantain (Plantago maritima), a perennial plant growing on sea shores and on mountain sides. Like the seed of all the plantains, it forms an excellent food for any kind of Finch. The fact that your British birds and Canaries seem to relish it better than any other seed, and that both young and old birds thrive on it is a sufficient testimony to its usefulness.

Addresses Wanted (W.P.).—It is against our rules to recommend individual dealers. You will find addresses both of cage makers and of dealers in bird-shop requisites in our advertising columns. If you wish to purchase cages and requisites for re-sale, a short advt. would doubtless bring you several price lists from wholesale dealers.

REVIEW OF SCHEDULE.

THE STOCK BOOK

Compiled by G. E. WESTON.

Simplifies the operations in the Bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. It affords facilities for the recording of the complete pedigree of all your birds; of your experiences during the season; an account of every bird reared. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird and Show Registers of simple and unique character; Cash and Profit and Loss Accounts for the year. Gives valuable hints for times of emergency during the breeding season.

Order "The Stock Book" at once: Now is the Season it will Help you.

As Never Before

the Societies holding Open Shows next season have need to adopt "Cage Birds" Guarantee System of advertising.

Over one hundred have already done so, and the enormous pull which it will give them over non-guaranteeing Societies as regards entries, will be tremendously increased by "Cage Birds" Championship Scheme.

JUST THINK! A simple guarantee of 25/- (which need not be paid until you commence advertising), entitles Societies to 5 inches of advertising space (a reduction of 1/- per inch); the publicity of the "Dates Fixed" column; and a Special Prize value 5/-. And that is not all. By fulfilling simple conditions, Guaranteeing Societies secure the patronage of "Cage Birds" Mammoth Championship Scheme, which will prove the greates source of entries in the history of Cage-bird Shows.

Send along for our Special Guarantee Form at once Don't delay; never was time more valuable.

TIMELY HINTS.

Two prizes of 2s. 6d. each (cash or our books to value, at option of winners) given weekly to the senders of the two best Hints. All hints must be WRITTEN ON POSTCARDS, with sender's name and address at foot.

To Prevent Sore Feet in Softbills.

Get a supply of old cycle tubing. Place round perches and stick with solution. Use sawdust for the cagebottoms. I find this a great preventive of sore feet.—Thos. J. Edwards, 183, Newgate Lane, Mansfield, Notts.

Lengthening the Yorkshires.

Fix at one end of a perch an oblong piece of mirror. It is surprising how it makes the birds pull themselves up, and improve their carriage. The Yorkshires in my aviary seem to have lengthened out considerably since I put the mirror in.—W. Duke (Scarborough).

Keeping Cats from the Aviary.

An effectual method of keeping cats from raiding outdoor aviaries, is to stretch limed twine where cats are likely to come and touch it. No self-respecting cat will come into contact with bird-lime. Tried and found successful.—Mabel Dunn (Darlington).

A Pinch of Salt.

Cut some fine muslin into three inch squares, fill with table salt, bind, and hang up in the cages and flights for the birds to peck at. Birds are very fond of salt. If the salt does not show through, perforate the muslin well with a pin.—Alex. Hewitt (Govan).

Oil-cloth as Roofing Tiles.

To keep my aviary nice and dry I get some odds and ends of oilcloth and cut up into pieces 6ins. square. Then I get some tintacks and a hammer and tack the oilcloth on top of my aviary with the red side up. It keeps out the rain and seldom wants repairing.—H. A. Davies (Tonypandy).

Dust in the Bird-room.

A dusty atmosphere accounts for many cases of asthma and throat diseases. Most of the dust is created when sweeping the floor, so to prevent it obtain a damp cloth and tie over the bristles of the brush, then sweep as usual. You will be surprised at the remarkably clear atmosphere.—E. Moore (Bramley).

Another Red-mite Perch.

I find a good method for keeping down red-mite is to bore holes in the ends of the perches with a ¼in. bit (about ¼in. down into each end). Then soak some pieces of cotton wool about the size of a pea in creosote oil and place in each end of perch. Get a piece of cage wire about 2 inches long, and drive into the end that goes to the cage back. I find the above keeps my birds clear from red-mite.—E. Wignall (Clitheroe).

Rust Proof Holders.

Winner of Half-crown Prize.

Instead of using ordinary cage wire to make holders for drinking vessels, I use aubo-bronze picture wire, No. 4½ (cost about 9d. per 25ft.) I find, owing to the flexibility of the wire, that the drinkers "sit" better, and as the wire is absolutely unaffected by damp the holders are practically everlasting.—T. M. Millan (55, Vernon St., Belfast).

Butter for Laying Hens.

When you see your hens making their nests, place a little tip of butter (or margarine) on the end of a perch, as much as will cover a sixpence, every day until they lay their first egg. You will see them "worrying" it before you have got away from the cage, and I know perfectly well you will not have another dying egg-bound—I have never had a hen die this last three years, since I tried this "tip."—J. E. Peters (Little-Hulton).

A Cure for a Broken Leg.

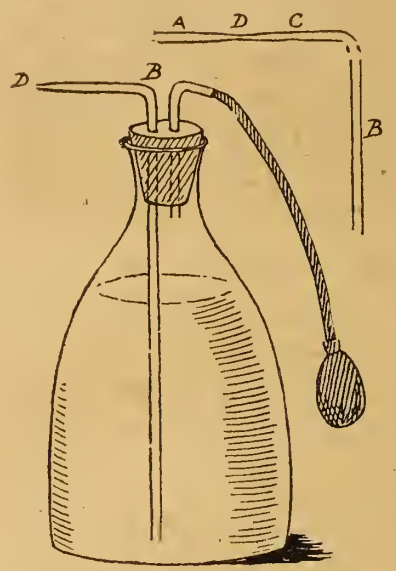
Winner of Half-crown Prize.

Should a bird have the misfortune to break its leg, it can be easily cured. Break a raw egg into a sancer and soak a small piece of tape in the white part. Then tightly wrap the tape round the broken leg and fasten with a piece of thread. The egg will set very hard and hold the leg in position. After about three weeks the bird will be moving about again with its usual ease, then, after removing the thread, the tape can be soaked off in hot water. By this method we perfectly cured one of our birds.—Fred Godley, 27, Knowles Street, Rishton.

Ideal Perches for Nothing.

Ask the shopman where you buy your butter to save you some hoops off the butter tubs. Open them out carefully and cut off lengths two inches longer than cage from back to front. They are easily straightened out by pressing on a board. Then cut a slit in one end, 1¾ inches from the end. That slit will fit in wire front and hold tight, and you can take out to clean without putting your hand in cage. Dip both ends in paraffin once a week and your birds will not be worried with red mite, and you will have an ideal perch ready for use. I have found them most useful.—T. S. French (Fulham).

Correspondence.



Linnet Singing at Devonport.

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me a little space in your columns for one or two questions on the subject of Linnet singing clubs? There are quite a number of Linnet fanciers here, and it is with great interest that we watch the results of Linnet singing contests in CAGE BIRDS from week to week. Would some of your readers kindly inform me how these Linnet clubs are formed? What officers are required? What entrance fee is charged for membership, and is any fee charged for birds entered to sing? We hope to form a club here and report to CAGE BIRDS every week.

W. C. C.

A Home-made Sprayer.

Sir,—The sprayer illustrated is easily made, and costs very little. Procure a conveniently sized bottle (with a fairly wide neck, and a tight-fitting cork), a length of glass tubing, rubber tubing, and a bulb (the same as used by barbers will do). Bore two holes in cork same size as glass tubing; bend tubing as shown in sketch, and make end of longest piece with a point. To bend glass, take care that it is quite dry, heat in ordinary gas flame until quite soft, and bend to angle required. To make the point, join small piece of tubing A to longest piece B by heating in flame and sticking together when soft. Allow to cool; then heat again at C, and when quite soft stretch as far as it will go. Break off at D, so as to make a very small hole. Put together as shown, making sure that the cork is quite air-tight. I have a sprayer made like this, and find it acts quite satisfactorily.
